National DHIA Eliminates Geographic Barriers

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

RENO, Nev.—After years of working with official policy that did not reflect common practice across the nation, the delegates to the National DHIA convention unanimously voted this week to adopt new by-laws that eliminate state lines as definitive boundaries for regional affiliates.

Largely at the prodding of the Northeast caucus and Lancaster DHIA in particular, the new organizational structure reflects the growing demand among dairy farmers for freedom to patronize record providers that offer services that meet cost and personal need choices.

With the new national direction, competition for member loyalty among the affiliates is likely. One director who attended the convention described it as an "open door from the cooperation mode to the competition mode." But another official saw it as the possibility for even greater cooperation. He reported that there had been a very large number of meetings between state organizations on possible mergers and cooperative ventures. His hope is that in the end the breakdown of geographical barriers will bring groups together rather than send them into strong competition.

Because the change of direction is so new and unfamiliar, the ramifications of the move and the working details to accomplish it are somewhat limited. What is known comes from the resolutions that were passed at the convention.

First, it is known that no new DHIA affiliates will be approved at this time. The national board's thinking is that it would be best to have "significant experience involving existing DHIA service affiliates operating under a system without geographic barriers" before developing policy to accept new affiliates.

The Samuel Hayes' thank you dinner drew more than 422 people. Those who played an important role in the evening's events are, left to right, Dr. Don Evans, assistant dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences; Joey Del Grosso of Del Grosso Foods; the Honorable Samuel E. Hayes, Jr.; Bob Pieva, vice president of Hoss's Steak & Seafood Restaurants; and Dr. Robert Neff, president of Juniata College.

Many Express Thanks To Hayes At Banquet

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — "When our friend Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. retired after 22 years of service in the 81st Legislative District of the conmonwealth of Pennsylvania, he left a legacy of lawmaking for the people unparalleled by a state legislator," said Dr. Don Evans. "Sam, tonight we are going to announce the beginning of two endowed $25,000 scholarships in your name, the Honorable Samuel E. Hayes, at Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and Juniata College."

It was an evening for honoring Sam Hayes — and honor they did. Mre than 422 people from all over central Pennsylvania converged at Ellis Hall at Juniata College last Saturday for a testimonial dinner for Sam Hayes, Jr.

The scholarship announcement capped off an evening of recognition for the accomplishments, values, and integrity for Hayes' ser-

Pennsylvania Holds Purebred Swine Show, Sale

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Bad weather kept at least four major breeders away from the Pennsylvania State Yorkshire, Hampshire and Duroc Show and Sale, held Saturday at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds.

There were 62 lots listed on Saturday's sale sheet which was further broken down to 27 Yorkshire entries, 11 Duroc, and 24 Hampshires.

The sale results were not available by presstime.

The show recognizes three divisions in each of the three breeds for nine champions — a champion boar, gilt, and bred gilt. The open gilt division is further split into senior and junior divisions, from which a champion must be chosen.

Show judge was Jack Ricker, of Ft. Jennings, Ohio, a Hampshire breeder and a national director of the Hampshire Association. According to Steve Wilson, show and sale organizer, the group gets an out-of-state judge every year for the event.

Taking the top three places for Yorkshire bred gilts, were entries by Leon Arnold, of Lebanon. Arnold entries also placed in junior division open gilt class, and second in the Yorkshire boar class.

The Hampshire bred gilt champion was an entry from Carolyn Thomas, of Stewartstown, who also showed the second and third place animals.

James Parlett Jr., of Arville, showed the two Duroc bred gilts. He also showed the champion open gilt and the champion boar.

The only other winner in the

Environmental Education Under Attack, Says Director

ANDY ANDREWS

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Environmental education has been under attack as anti-growth and anti-income, which may be costly for our children, according to Dr. Dean Steinhart, who spoke at the Dauphin County Conservation District's annual banquet Tuesday night.

Steinhart, director of the Office of Environmental Education with the Pennsylvania Department of Education and Department of Environmental Resources, said that promoting the concerns of the environment is often viewed as anti-American, which is wrong. He said that, inevitably, to survive, we don't have the luxury of continuing to waste resources. In environmental education, "we have to get involved."

According to the educator, many have forgotten that our wealth is derived from what we produce from the soil. For too long, many people have been making money merely by "paper shuffling," not by producing a product. Many don't understand the relationship between wealth and the soil.

And we have to be concerned, he said, because of the overwhelming growth of the population in the world. It took four million years for the world's population to reach 2 billion in 1927. Seventy years after, the population will triple to 6 billion people.

America makes up only about 5 percent of the world's population, yet it takes up 25 percent of the world's resources. In this area, between 1950 and 1980, more than 500,000 poeple were added to the Susquehanna River Basin. The relationship of the people, water, and the resources has taken on "unprecedented" meaning. He said the world's resources and wealth are tied together. "But not everybody believes in stewardship. Many worry about managing it today, (and think) let's not worry about tomorrow," said Steinhart.

The rain forests of South America are being cut down, and will soon be depleted. Steinhart pointed out that those who are removing the forest, when asked what they are going to do when it is all gone, merely shake their heads and don't really know. They'll worry about that when the time comes, according to Steinhart.

He said that 20 years ago, there was no bottled water on the shelves in grocery stores. Now, shelves are lined with bottled water. It is a resource that many take for granted.

The district's Distinguished Service Award to the cause of conservation was presented to Morris Lebo, a retired farmer from Millersburg, left. Ellen Chapman was honored as Outstanding Environmental Educator at the banquet. Chapman is a biology, earth space, and environmental science teacher at Bishop McDevitt High School.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, March 10, 1993

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to higher in the Northeast and Midwest, unchanged elsewhere. The market tone continued steady to firm. Demand was light to instances good, mostly moderate into retail outlets. Inter-dealer inquiry remained active for the limited offerings, and current trades were at steady to premium prices. Supplies covered the full range, and extra eggs were maintained with confidence. Breaking stock supplies were short to adequate from regular commitments. Live hen offerings were short to adequate of the fair to good demand, and the market tone was at least steady.

Philadelphia Eggs

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, March 10, 1993

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow at some plants, fair at others. Offerings varied in a range of fully adequate to readily available and difficult to place. Live supplies were generally moderate; weights were mostly desirable. Processing schedules were heavy. Less than truckiot asking prices were unchanged at 49 to 60 cents. Trade sentiment was steady/weak. In the parts complex, boneless skinless breasts and leg quarters were fully adequate, instances ample. Bone-in breasts were noted as adequate and in best balance. Wings were irregularly balanced, and for some, slow to clear.

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY TRADERS AWAIT TODAY'S USDA SUPPLY/DEMAND REPORT. WHEAT PRICES CONTINUED TO DECLINE, WEDNESDAY, ON PROSPECTS FOR LARGE WINTER WHEAT CROP, INCREASED CARRYOVER ESTIMATE, AND LACK OF RUSSIAN AND CHINA EXPORT BUSINESS; CORN PRICES SLIGHTLY HIGHER DUE TO LIGHT FARMER SELLING AND SPILLOVER STRENGHT FROM SOYBEAN PRICES; EXTENDED GAINS MADE IN BEAN PRICES AS TRADERS ANTICIPATE SMALLER THAN EXPECTED 1993 PLANTED ACREAGE ESTIMATE AND IMPROVED EXPORT DEMAND. WHEAT 2 TO 6 CENTS LOWER. CORN 1 CENT HIGHER. SORGHUM 3 TO 5 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 2 TO 8 CENTS HIGHER. WHEAT PRICES SLIPPED LOWER AS SLOW DOWN IN CHINA AND RUSSIAN EXPORT BUSINESS EXPECTED TO INCREASE WHEAT CARRYOVER ESTIMATES. LARGE WINTER WHEAT CROP PROSPECTS VERY GOOD DUE TO NEAR IDEAL GROWING CONDITIONS ACROSS MOST OF THE U.S.. 1993 SPRING WHEAT ACREAGE IS BEING FORECAST BY PRIVATE ANALYSTS AT 19.9 MILLION, UP FROM 18.689 MILLION LAST YEAR. CORN PRICES MOVED HIGHER ON GOOD NEARBY DEMAND, LIGHT FARM SELLING AND SPILLOVER STRENGHT FROM BEAN PITS. TRADERS AWAIT TODAY'S USDA SUPPLY/DEMAND REPORT AND IDEAS 1993 PLANTED SOYBEAN ACREAGE WILL BE SMALLER THAN EXPECTED, ADDED STRENGTH TO BEAN PRICES. LIGHT EXPORT DEMAND ALSO A FACTOR IN HIGHER PRICES.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, Okla.
Wednesday, March 10, 1993

OKLAHOMA NATIONAL STOCKYARDS WEEKLY CATTLE SUMMARY Compared to last Thursday's advance: Feeder steers over 650 lbs. steady to $1.00 lower. Stocker steers and steer calves to 700 lbs. steady. Feeder heifers steady; heifers under 550 lbs. regained Thursday's loss and sold $1.00-$3.00 higher. Demand good for calves and stockers. Demand moderate for feeder cattle. Quality of cattle and all conditions attractive to buyers inducing top prices per cwt. Quality attractive to average. Feeder cattle in sightly thin to moderately fleshy wheat condition. Stocker flesh moderately thin to average. Weigh-ups gaunt to average. Due to poor wheat pastures cattle are coming off considerable lighter than this time last year. Over 800 lb. cattle comprised 28% of Monday's supply compared to 43% same period last year. Slaughter cows $3.00-$5.00 lower. Slaughter bulls $1.00-$2.00 lower. Cow and bull demand moderate. Sharp declines reflect the steep downturns of the dressed product last week. Receipts this week 21,750; last week 10,861; last year 15,175. Run consisted of 77% feeders over 600 lbs.; 20% calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs.; 3% cows and bulls. Bulk price ranges follow. Weighted averages in parenthesis.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

VERNAL EQUINOX, MARCH 20.

HOME TO MOTHER

Not to be confused with Mother's Day, "Mothering Sunday" was originally designated for Mother Church in England On this mid-Lent Sunday people were encouraged to return to the church of their baptism. Since this generally meant returning to the hometown of ones' parents as well, it came to be a time of family gathering and of taking gifts to parents, especially mothers It was also the custom to eat a traditional food on such a feast day. The special food for Mothering Sunday was furmenty, a porridgelike dish of wheat boiled in milk and variously flavored with nutmeg or cinnamon and sugar One very old English recipe also includes egg yolks, salt, and saffron, with white sugar if served in the lord's house but "black" sugar for commoners.

On Mothering Sunday, above all other, every child should dine with its mother. — English Proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Bread will stay fresh longer if you keep a piece of celery in the bag.

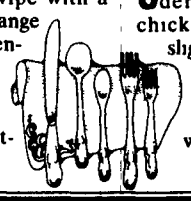
EARTHWISE

You can clean and add a warm luster to your wood paneling with this nontoxic, homemade solution: Mix 1 ounce (2 tablespoons) olive oil with 2 ounces (4 tablespoons) white vinegar and 1 quart warm water. Dampen a soft cloth with this and, working on one section of wall at a time, wipe the paneling, then wipe with a dry soft cloth. Change the dry cloth whenever it becomes too wet or soiled. Be sure to use nonsynthetic, lint-free cloths.



SUNDAY CHICKEN HASH

- ½ onion, chopped
- ½ pound mushrooms, sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 3 small potatoes, peeled, boiled, and diced
- 2½ cups chopped, cooked chicken
- ½ cup heavy cream
- ¼ cup parsley
- 2 tablespoons toasted slivered almonds

Sauté onion and mushrooms in butter until tender. Add potatoes and chicken and cook until slightly browned, stirring occasionally Stir in cream and parsley; heat through. Garnish with almonds.

Makes 2 to 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Snow, heavy west and north, rain south; then cold with intermittent snow.

SOUTHEAST: Seasonable, cold north; rainy, snow north, turning colder.

MIDWEST: Very cold and snowy, then clearing and milder; rainy south.

NORTHWEST: Cold with light rain and snow; then turning slightly milder.

SOUTHWEST: Clear and milder, snowy and cold mountains; then clear and cool desert, rainy and seasonable California.

OPINION

4-H Week Is Time To Join

Many 4-H members learn things that help them in later life. In fact, some very famous people were in 4—H clubs as youth. Orville Redenbacher, popcorn magnate; Reba McEntire, singer; Johnny Bench, baseball star; Harold Poling, Ford Motor Company chairman and Vice President Al Gore, Jr., to name a few.

But mostly ordinary people benefit from the variety of 4-H programs and opportunities now available through extension. Dr. Robert Lewis, professor of 4-H and youth development at Penn State, says youth in 4-H learn and grow by completing projects in activities they're interested in.

"Along with practical skills, 4-H'ers acquire good work habits, responsibility, business skills, cooperation and sportsmanship," Lewis said. "By setting goals and making plans to reach them, 4—H'ers learn to make decisions and use time efficiently. In the course of each activity, they gain experience in public speaking by demonstrating their new skills and giving oral reports to their clubs.

"4—H not only helps youth grow personally, but also prepares them to help lead their communities. It's hard for young people to develop leadership skills if they never get to lead. 4—H provides opportunities for them to practice being leaders in a variety of situations," Lews said.

The week of March 15 to 21 has been designated Pennsylvania 4-H week. Since the late 1970's, this week has marked the start of a new 4-H program year. Local clubs enroll new members and prepare for the year ahead. Since this program, coordinated by Penn State Cooperative Extension through the local county offices, benefits so many people, we suggest that if you have youth between the ages of 8 and 19, encourage them to join 4-H this year. We're sure they will find some program of interest that will help them expand their skills for life.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Salute Agriculture Week

March 14 through March 20 has been proclaimed Agriculture Week.

This week recognizes Pennsylvania's diverse food and agricultural industry. Its cash income generates $3.8 billion each year and an additional $38 billion in related economic activity.

Twenty percent of the commonwealth's work force is engaged in agriculture. Agriculture Week gives us the opportunity to remind people of the extraordinary food system we have. It is a system that is known for variety, abundance, dependability, and quality.

Americans spend ten percent of their disposable income on food compared to 60 and 70 percent in some other countries. However, if we begin to take this system for granted, we are in great danger of losing it.

As Eastern Europe is trying to learn how to build a modern agriculture system like ours, we need to understand why they need to rebuild their agriculture system and not repeat their mistakes. The agricultural industry must continue to develop new ideas, concepts, and technological advancements so it may continue to provide quality products in abundant supply.

So, this coming week take time and tell people the importance of agriculture and be proud you are a part of this large industry.

To Check Corn In Storage

Last fall a lot of corn went into storage at high moisture levels after outside temperatures had dropped.

As long as the storage temperature stayed cool, this corn may have been stored successfully. However, as outside and storage temperatures increase this spring, these stored masses of corn may start heating and spoiling.

To minimize the risk of increased spoilage, try to feed out the corn before warm weather sets in. Or, after temperatures rise, dry it down by aeration. The use of drying fans, spreading it out to dry, or transferring the corn to other storage may help.

Check your stored corn and monitor its temperatures regularly to prevent excessive losses.

To Watch For Children

Spring work is rapidly approaching. This also means children will be playing more outside.

To prevent accidents, we must be aware of hazards around the farm.

A few safety rules are:

- No seat = no rider!
- Idle farm equipment are not toys. Keep children from playing on, in, or under machinery and equipment.
- Know where children are when you start farm machinery and vehicles.
- Fence ponds and manure pits.
- Lock up chemicals and electrical power sources.
- Have monthly family safety reviews. Taking a few extra minutes to be safe could prevent a very serious accident or death.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

BORN AGAIN?
March 14, 1993

Background Scripture:
John 3:1-21.
Devotional Reading:
John 3:22-36.

There is hardly any human experience that cannot be trivialized by human systematization. While rituals are important and valid for human life, there is always the danger of reducing experience to a ritual or formula.

Particularly in the realm of the spirit. While it is understanable that we should want to hold on to and repeat our spiritual highs, it is arrogant and even blasphemous for us to assume that we can write rules and specifications for them. In a sense, it is telling God that he must do it "this way" and no other. God intends for us to experience these things, not to package and merchandise them.

We need to keep that in mind when we approach the matter of being "born again." Few human experiences have ever been so systematized than the encounter between Jesus and Nicodemus. It is ironic that this experience of regeneration should serve to divide so many Christians. Some wear it proudly as a badge of their spiritual superiority. Others shun it because of their discomfort with those who have advertised themselves as "born again." The problem is not with being "born again," but what people try to make of that experience.

THE OLD ORDER

The story of Jesus and Nicodemus in John 3:1-21 is a good example of the kind of attitude that can spoil rather than enhance the experience. Nicodemus, a member of the supreme council of the sanhedrin, comes to Jesus at night. He comes as a Pharisee, a representative of the old order which Jesus seems to want to supersede. According to that old legalistic order, the kingdom of God is entered by moral achievement based upon faithfully keeping the law.

But Jesus makes it clear that the new order is dependent, not upon moral achievement, but God's grace: "...unless one is born anew, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (3:3). A variant reading, the Jerusalem Bible and a footnote of the RSV, says "born from above," while the King James version say "born again." It really doesn't matter, for the intent is to say that one must be transformed, not our own efforts, but by God. What Jesus is lifting up for Nicodemus here is not a formula but a spiritual reality.

So, how does Nicodemus respond? Immediately he looks for a formula, a system, a ritual: "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born?" (3:4). If Jesus will just tell him the right way to do this, he can package it, make it a rule or ironclad procedure for all Israel.

WHERE IT WILLS

Jesus responds by explaining that spiritual rebirth is not something to systematize or ritualize. "The wind blows where it wills, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know whence it comes or wither it goes: so it is with everyone born of the Spirit" (3:8). We cannot capture or detain the Spirit. Nor can we regulate it.

Note what Jesus does NOT say about a spiritual rebirth. He does not put a stopwatch or calendar on it. He does not say that it carries a lifetime guarantee. He does not suggest that rebirth is so much an event as it is a continuing condition and reality.

Spiritual rebirth is not just for some people, some time, but for all of us, all the time. It will take place whenever we open ourselves to God's renewing grace. And when it does, we will be humble, not proud.

Organization Seeks Attractive Dairy Farms

KINGSTON (Luzerne Co.) — Once again, dairy farmers in Penn-sylvania can participate in the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which offers the prestigious Dairy of Distinction Award to farmers who maintain beautiful farmsteads while promoting dairy products in a wholesome environment.

The program which started in Pennsylvania in 1987 has honored 468 farms.

Qualifying farms, that make application, will receive an eye-catching colored sign to display near roadside.

Judging teams in each of Pennsylvania's 10 districts will select those farms which meet specified standards. Part of the judging process in Pennsylvania is the approval of milk quality, made by the farms milk handler.

Winning farms are rejudged each year in order to maintain the standards of excellence set by the program.

Paul Nichols, a local representative of American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., from Kingston, said, "Attractive farms stimulate public support of the dairy industry.

Farms will also be judged in New York and New Jersey. Applications will be distributed in farm newspapers or by request from the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Avenue, Kingston, 18704-3378, or The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17710.

The CLAAS® Quadrant 1100 big square baler—The new standard equipment for dairy farmers.

All dairy farmers know that the denser the bale the better the bale. The 1100 delivers the density you want, along with the high production capacities and ease of handling you need.

Its dense 32" x 20" x up to 79" bales inhibit spoilage by keeping air out. They retain quality because denser bales suffer less nutrient loss. Your cows know the importance of this.

The Quadrant makes easy work of dry hay, haylage and silage crops—whatever you need. And because Quadrant bales are produced in flakes, they easily divide into smaller portions. That makes them easy to handle for feeding and bedding.

CLAAS's shaft-driven knotters have earned a worldwide reputation for reliability and low maintenance. Other notable features are its two-stage prechamber, 71" wide pickup, powerful transmission, heavy-duty worm gear, 1000rpm pto, adjustable density, capacity for up to 16 balls of sisal or plastic twine, and 4 dependable CLAAS shaft-driven knotters.

High production capacities. Convenient handling. Dense bales. Quality bale silage.

Incidentally, CLAAS quality is also available in a larger Quadrant model designed for commercial operators.

Call CLAAS now and raise your own standards.

HYTEST BRAND CORN DOES IT AGAIN ...

NCGA CHAMPIONS

HYTEST Brand Corn has done it again in 1991! Two National Championships and 4 State Winners in the National Corn Growers Association Yield Contest.

Mr. James C. Justice II of Beckley, West Virginia was named the Class A, Non-Irrigated Division National Champion with a yield of 259.0697 Bushels per Acre and the No-Till Non-Irrigated Division National Champion with a yield of 251.7041 Bushels per Acre. These yields were also the Virginia State Winners. HYTEST Brand HT650A was used for both wins.

Mr. Jim Russin of Sharon, Connecticut was named the Class A, Non Irrigated Division State Champion with a Yield of 178.8533 Bushels per Acre using HYTEST Brand HT650A.

Mr. Joe Matejik of Mechanicsville, Pennsylvania was named the Class A, Non Irrigated Division State Champion with a Yield of 200.5841 Bushels per Acre using HYTEST Brand HT736.

PROVEN PERFORMANCE

HYTEST Brand Corn has had 16 State Winners and 3 National Champions out of the east in the past 2 years! This is a record of performance many larger National Brands can't match!

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

The same careful breeding, testing, and selection process that went into producing these Champion Hybrids goes into all of our varieties. Each variety, under the proper conditions, has the potential to be a Champion.

HYBRID SELECTION

Your HYTEST Brand Sales Representatives and Regional Agronomists are trained to help you select the best variety for your particular growing conditions. They will follow up with technical assistance right through harvest time.

TOP SELECTIONS FOR 1993

Each season, after review of the many test plots, demonstration plots, and numerous grower's fields, Joe Butwin, Manager – Farm Seed at Beachley-Hardy develops his own special "favorites" list to share with all of us. Joe's choices this season are:

NORTH	SOUTH
HT7224-SX – 90 DAY	HT7510-SX – 113 DAY
HTX7228-SX – 95 DAY	HT7728-SX – 116 DAY
HT318-SX – 100 DAY	HTX7748-SX – 118 DAY

YOUR CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON

Championships are nice, but what's really important is producing the highest grain and forage yields possible in the most cost effective manner. HYTEST Brand Hybrid Corn Seed will allow you to do just that. Proven consistently season after season!

NEWS FLASH

Beachley-Hardy Seed Company of Shiremanstown, PA has recently purchased the assets of HYTEST SEEDS, INC. HYTEST Brand Seed Products will continue to be available through your previous HYTEST Dealer and Beachley-Hardy Seed Company.

MARCH 11, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was fairly light on all items. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts continued in close balance to about adequate for current needs. Extra buying interest was quickly covered but trading was at generally unchanged prices. The trade sentiment was at least steady. Line run breasts were fully adequate and offered to very cautious buyers. Shipper asking prices were unchanged; however, the market undertone was soft. Yellow skin leg quarters from nearby production areas were at least adequate with trading reported at lower trending prices. Wings cleared at steady prices.

Unverferth cross auger fills your planter fast!

Unverferth's new hydraulic cross auger fills all your planter boxes from a single position. You enjoy a lot more convenience while using a lot less time.

The cross auger is driven by a reliable hydraulic motor with a readily accessible control valve and handle. With an auger featuring rigid, interlocking nylon flighting segments on a stainless steel shaft and a rugged 6" ABS cross tube, the unit is virtually impervious to wear and corrosion.

All Unverferth cross augers include safety grates to prevent contact with the auger, hopper lid hold-down straps, and all necessary mounting hardware.

Chore-Time And Northeast Agri

Following are 27 claims taken from our competitors' recently placed adver

Their Claims	Our Response
1. (We are) #1 in owner loyalty. More people buy (from us) when they remodel than any other system."	Since Ultraflo was introduced Chore-Time has out sold other brands in new and remodeled houses, in our sales area and nation wide. We admit we have had an advantage because much of our remodeling has been complexes. But when companies order 2, 3, 6, 20 or more houses at a time, changing over entire complexes - what does that tell you? Almost all houses remodeled with Chore-Time previously had other brands of cages. Send for our list of over 200 Ultraflo houses in the Northeast.
2. "(Our) superior suspension systems keep cages from sagging between stands."	Producers with older houses say truss rods have always been a problem - they eventually stretch, especially with cages installed on 10 foot centers. This results in trough wear and egg roll out troubles. That is why Chore-Time has designed truss rods out of their systems. Chore-Time uses 4 foot, 5 foot or 8 foot centers and has no truss rods. Cages are straight when new and stay straight.
3. "Our chain feeder trough allows easy access to feed but keeps feed levels further below the lip of the trough compared to drag auger trough."	The distance from the back lip of our trough is the same. Birds do not have to reach any farther to find feed. In addition, Ultraflo contains feed in the bulb shaped bottom of the trough and the auger acts as a grid reducing waste compared to chain. It's Another ULTRAFLO® By [redacted]
4. "Our chain feeder trough has a steep sidewall, discouraging feed build-up. Their slope can allow a build-up inviting mold and disease."	Ultraflo has the steepest sidewall of any feeder on the market and the least feed build-up. Ultraflo moves all the feed in the trough while theirs leaves feed beside the chain causing feed separation. Flat chain has barrels which are difficult to clean. Ultraflo will completely clean out in one run prior to wash down. 5. "Our trough is "ribbed" for strength. Theirs is built for price alone."	Chore-Time trough is not built for price alone, actually it is made with more expensive 20 gauge high tensile strength steel and has more continuous breaks (9 verses 7) for greater strength.
6. "Actual feeding space with drag auger is skimpy. In fact our chain feeder has 2½ times more feeding space per bird."	Actual feeding space is the same for both. The only space limitation is the birds per cage. Ultraflo actually carries more feed than chain at normal levels!
7. "This allows the chain feeder to run as few as three times per day while the auger must run eight or more times per day."	According to producers and field service people the Ultraflo is run as few as 3 times a day with the average being only 5 times. Each time Ultraflo runs, the feed is re-mixed at start-up making it more appetizing to the birds. With Ultraflo you are free to feed more often without concern for wear and tear or electric usage you have with chain. You also can use stimulations. (running the feeder for 30 seconds) Ultraflo can do this. Flat chain cannot. Breeders and producers agree that being able to add or subtract feedings, change feeding times and use stimulations is a valuable tool to limit feed consumption and fine tune egg size. With Ultraflo you can control feed consumption and you won't have to keep your house 90° in the middle of winter.
8. "Chain carries feed and supplies a uniform ration, with no feed waste."	When you watch chain run you will see that it only carries the feed that is on the top of the chain not what is along the sides. This results in a lot of feed separation. Ultraflo moves all feed. Chain allows birds to high-grade or pick over feed. Ultraflo's design and 80 feet per minute speed prevents birds from high grading feed. Our side by side video shows layers picking over feed when the chain runs, while when the Ultraflo runs birds do not eat until the auger stops. See for yourself! Send for our video showing chain feeders and Ultraflo running side by side.

Our Response	Their Claims	Our Response
Birds turn their heads on both systems. The Chore-Time auger does not cause any harm to the birds and in fact saves feed by preventing birds from raking feed out the trough. Birds waste excessive feed on a chain by flicking and piling feed. (Ask to see side by side video.)	18. "Extra inches of auger, trough, cage wire, egg belt and building per cage really add up. Put a pencil to it."	While we do have extra supports, stands and cage wire, it is because our cage is designed to last longer. We have no more auger, trough or egg belt than our competition. Chore-Time cages are installed on 8 foot centers. Our competitor recommends cages which are on 10 foot centers. Although 10 foot centers save at first, cages built on 10 foot centers have had higher maintenance costs and have not lasted as long as cages built on 8 foot centers.
Birds per cage and therefore feeder space per bird are the same with either system.
Because Ultraflo runs faster than flat chain, because it doesn't have to be run around the cage row 1½ times each feeding like flat chain, because Ultraflo comes with a Microprocessor control not a 15 minute time clock you have greater flexibility in feeding times. Ultraflo completes a circuit in about half the time it takes the typical chain system. You get better results with less feed.	19. "Our chain feeder seems never to wear out. Some thirty year old units are still performing, day in and day out. On the other hand some "short term" drag auger systems are beginning to show their weaknesses. Time is the enemy of the drag auger system. Just a litte time."	We have seen chain trough worn through in less than one year. The chain itself is made out of metal stock made from scrap metal. It drags on the bottom of the trough or on top of the feed. It has a tendency to bunch up and break expensive corner wheels. Ultraflo moves easily through the feed in the trough in a predesigned "bulb" in the trough bottom. We have replaced less than 1% of the trough and elbows in over 11 years of operation. The poultry industry agrees - over 80% of the major egg producers (1 million birds or more) have already switched to Chore-Time. Send for our list of major egg producers who have switched to Chore-Time.
This feeder has shown much extra wear even at the slower speed of 60 feet per minute, especially on the long cage rows required by today's capacities. The 120 feet per minute system is not proven and in fact there are few in the field. Some of these systems have had to install 3 horse power motors to run properly.	20. "Lower maintenance costs."	Our biggest problem is lack of repair parts business. Talk to users who have both Chore-Time and other equipment. Get the facts about who has lower maintenance costs.
Chore-Time's repair parts sales run less than 1% of total sales. Competitor's are much higher. Ask them.	21. "It's a proven fact. Chain feeders use less electricity."	Call for our list and talk to users who have both Chore-Time and other equipment. Get the facts about who has lower energy costs.
Chore-Time has not used brazing for 5 years. Our auger connector is simple to use and only requires a small Allen wrench which can fit in your wallet. The easy-to-use auger coupler has eliminated all brazing. Remember, all you need with Ultraflo is a small Allen wrench, no chain breaker, hammer and come-along.	22. "Better Performance! This isn't just talk. Ask your feed company..."	Feed service people will tell you that Chore-Time Ultraflo out performs flat chain. Ask them yourself. Chore-Time producers consistently do better than their peers. That's why most major egg producers have switched to Chore-Time and keep on buying it. (send for list of major egg producers)
	23. "Re-use your old corners... re-use your old gearboxes...Your old hoppers aren't wore out... save money and re-use them on your new system."	Sounds like a good idea, maybe. Save money initially but when you do have to replace corners, hoppers, gearboxes, sprockets, wear shoes, etc., you will probably have to pay parts price. You end up paying more!
When you watch our video you will see that when Ultraflo runs birds stay calm until the auger stops. Then, they all begin eating at the same time. The opposite is true with chain. Because hens on the out going side are already eating, birds on the return side have to wait long periods for fresh feed. See for yourself. Send for our side by side video.	24. "(We have) a stronger cage top and front than competitive cages."	Chore-Time's new front and top is heavier and thicker than competition's. In fact Chore-Time cages are over 11% heavier than their cages. That's over 3½ tons more galvanized wire in a typical house. Call or send for actual test results on Chore-Time verses their cages. Or ask to see both cages side by side.
With chain system, heavy feed components such as corn and calcium tend to be left behind along the edges of the trough. This combined with birds ability pick out means hens on the return side of each cage row may not get enough calcium to form strong egg shells. With chain, because of separation and pick out, birds get different nutrition as the chain travels further from the feed hopper. This results in higher feed consumption, poorer performance and causes shell and uniformity problems. Since Ultraflo moves all feed and birds can't pick out while its running, all birds get the same ration. Birds in Ultraflo house are uniform throughout the house. Producers confirm production is better, feed consumption lower and undergrades are the same or less with Chore-Time.	25. "(Our) collector is the best there is."	You get a choice of three collectors with Chore-Time, including our new Ultralift, all built stronger with solid shafts, solid rollers and galvanized steel. Our rubber finger collector eliminates all transfers and isn't as steep as other collectors.
	26. "Our cage design allows eggs to roll front and out of the cage, not get stepped on and cracked by birds as in competitor's cages."	Once again talk to the users. Our undergrades are lower than other systems. Major egg producers would not keep switching to Chore-Time if this was a problem. (send for list) Our egg tray is much further away from the cage front to keep eggs cleaner and prevent dead bird caused jam ups.
Who is buying 12 inch cages? According to Chore-Time sales records 60% of Chore-Time cage sales are 16"x20" - 6 bird cage. In this area we sell mostly 24"x20" - 9 bird cage - same as the competition.	27. "(Our) systems provides a bigger percentage of larger eggs for a longer period of time."	Like a lot else, you only hear this from our competitor. Chore-Time producers say this is ridiculous. They get the egg size they need and do it with less feed. Check out the facts for yourself.

This has clearly established Chore-Time as the cage industry leader and made it the largest supplier of cage systems. But please, if you have thought of something or have better ideas we would sure like to hear from you.

Think about it. In only 7 years, 1 out of 3 layers in our region and 1 out of 4 layers nation wide have been switched to Chore-Time with Ultraflo. Many farmers bought one Chore-Time house and after seeing the results ordered more. Some large farms have replaced all their equipment with Chore-Time cages and Ultraflo feeding and are now only buying Chore-Time.

Annual Meeting This Week

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Don't forget the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association will hold its annual meeting in Pittsburgh this week. The two day corporate meeting is scheduled for March 19 and 20 at Hotel Pittsburgh in Monroeville.

Officials with Pa. DHIA said they hope to see as many members attend as possible.

Also expected to attend are Pa. DHIA leadership and representatives of the dairy industry.

The meeting is to begin with lunch at noon on Friday and end with lunch at noon on Saturday.

If you have any questions, call Dixie Burris or Michele Dorman at 1-800-344-8378.

This year's meeting carries a cooperative theme, "Partners in a Changing World."

In addition to the meeting, the event also provides for the opportunity to talk with other members and leadership. Included at the meeting site will be a trade show, a Hawaiian dinner-theater show, awards presentation, and a spouses program.

If you have not already done so, call us now for your reservations at 1-800-344-8378, or send a registration form to Michele at PA DHIA, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802.

Dot [•] indicates variety is susceptible or no resistance claimed.

Most highly promoted alfalfa varieties report resistance to 5 or 6 major alfalfa pests. Not bad. But new CimarronVR has resistance to 15 of the major diseases, insects and nematodes that attack alfalfa. And according to scientists, 11 of these pests are likely to be present on your farm. So why settle for second best. If you are concerned about loss of yield, quality and stand, why not go with the winner?* Why not plant advanced CimarronVR alfalfa?

FFA Has Positive Influence On Young People, Says State President

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "FFA is a personal, academic, career development program that makes a positive impact on the lives of youth today," said Mandy Hilbert, state FFA president, on Tuesday during a southeast Pennsylvania media tour.

Mandy, 18, 5-year Littlestown FFA member, joined state secretary Jacy Clugston, Grassland FFA adviser Cliff Day, and Grassland reporter Kim Thornton early this week on a tour of the region, which included stops in elementary schools in Allentown and schools in the eastern part of Lancaster County.

Mandy Hilbert, 18, state FFA president and 5-year Littlestown FFA member, second from right, joined state secretary Jacy Clugston, second from left, Grassland FFA adviser Cliff Day, far right and Grassland reporter Kim Thornton early this week on a tour of the region, which included stops in elementary schools in Allentown and schools in the eastern part of Lancaster County. They also visited and spoke with Lancaster Farming on their statewide responsibilities in FFA and the future of the FFA organization. Photo by Andy Andrews

They also visited and spoke with Lancaster Farming on their statewide responsibilities in FFA and the future of the FFA organization.

The ag-based, leadership-driven organization that is FFA, according to Mandy, strives to become more proactive for agriculture through various events, including the media tour, FFA Week, and visits to schools. These "examples stress the development of individuals who are going to make a major impact on the world," she said.

"Through the media tour, we are doing what we can to promote ag literacy in Pennsylvania," said Jacy Clugston, 19, 5-year Manheim FFA member. "The last few days, we have talked with newspapers, done radio spots, and given presentations in different schools.

"Throughout the year we often find the opportunity to talk to business leaders and others about FFA and the changing field of agriculture," said Jacy.

The nationwide organization, according to Rick Perkins, eastern vice president, in a recent interview in Lancaster Farming, is striving to be more proactive and to reach out to young people and educate them about agriculture. Throughout the year, according to Mandy, state officers are able to touch on many areas of ag, including "leadership, motivation, marketing, and education.

"Because the field of agriculture is so broad, state officers find an opportunity to involve any student, no matter what their background, in agriculture," she said.

Mandy, daughter of Harry and MaryJane Hilbert, Littlestown, plans to study animal science at Delaware Valley College and to major in international trade relations. She chose international trade relations as a career as a result of her recent visit to Germany.

Mandy said that FFA has "truly broadened my horizons by opening my eyes to education and the importance of communication. I truly believe that this nation was built with a strong foundation of agriculture — farmers helping farmers," she said. "Education plays a major part in developing our future."

Jacy, daughter of Ken and Phyllis Clugston, Manheim, is a freshman at Millersville University, studying education. She said she would enjoy teaching younger students because she believes they are more impressionable and teachers have more of an influence on them than later on, after the kids enter high school.

"FFA has really developed the person that I am today," said Jacy. "FFA people recognized talents in me, made me realize them, and then helped me to develop them. FFA has developed my public relations skills and helped me to realize how much I enjoy working with people. Nearly all the growth and development I experienced in high school can be attributed to FFA. FFA prepares people for college and the job market no matter what field they decide to go into."

Environmental Education Under Attack

Environmental education is under attack, especially when the possibility of a job is lost because of environmental pressure. We have to get "that mentality out of the way," he said, and continue the vital process of environmental education.

The district also presented several awards at the banquet to honor contributors to the conservation district.

Farmer of Year

The Dauphin Conservation Farmer of the Year Award was presented to J. Richard Alwine, Londonderry Township, who farms 223 acres of owned land and 50 acres of rented land in partnership with his son-in-law, Dale Brandt. The fifth generation dairy supports 150 head (85 milking, 65 replacement calves). The cows are all registered Holstein.

According to the district, all but a few acres of permanent grass hay are farmed according to either a contour farming or contour stripcropping system. According to the district, the contour strips on the home farm were some of the first to be installed in Dauphin County.

The Alwine Farm, cooperators with the district for the past 25 years, also installed one of the initial liquid manure storages in the county. Since then, a second storage structure, concrete circular, has been added.

In all, the conservation practices include 6,640 feet of terraces, 4,450 feet of diversions, and 4.5 acres of waterways. Also included are two water control structures. Cover crops help keep the soil and nutrients on the farm.

Alwine also participates in the Chesapeake Bay program and follows a nutrient management plan. The dairyman has been chairman of his Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service community committee and served as a board member for Dauphin County Cooperative Extension.

Alwine said his goal is to "keep on taking care of the land so by the time my grandchildren have it, it is as good as it is now."

Outstanding Educator

Ellen Chapman was honored as Outstanding Environmental Educator at the banquet. Chapman is a biology, earth space, and environmental science teacher at Bishop McDevitt High School.

Chapman was honored for her efforts at promoting environmental education at her school. There, she organized and sponsored an environmental club. Members of this club research topics of student interest and present the "Environmental Minute" twice a week during morning announcements.

The club also sponsors an "Environmental Bowl" for grade school students, recycles cans used in the school and school sporting events, composts leaves, and participates in other studies and activities to increase environmental awareness, according to the district.

Chapman organized four-day marine biology summer class trips to Seaville, N.J. in 1991 and Wallop's Island, Va. in 1992. Students learned first-hand the study of the marine environment.

Also, the teacher has convinced her own school cafeteria to become aware of environmentally friendly packaging.

Distinguished Service

The district's Distinguished Service Award to the cause of conservation was presented to Morris Lebo, a retired farmer from Millersburg.

Lebo, in 1954, began his first term as a director of the district. The district presented the award at the banquet to recognize Lebo for 39 years of "exceptional dedication and devoted service to the conservation stewardship of Dauphin County's soil and water resources."

Twelve students competed in this year's speech contest. This year's speech topic was pesticides. Grant Campbell, center, was honored with the first place award, and a $150 check, for his speech, "This We Know," which he presented at the banquet. William Donges III, right, won second place, and was presented with a $100 check for his speech, "Use of Pesticides In and Around the Home." Michael Horchler, left, was honored with the third place award and $50 for his speech, "Pesticides: Your Role As a User."

Special Recognition

A special recognition award was presented to the Lower Dauphin School District for conservation awareness. In May, 273 fifth grade students from the Londonderry, Conewago, Hummelstown, East Hanover, and South Hanover elementary schools will travel for for a week-long educational and camp experience at Camp Hebron. This follows a tradition for the past 25 years in which between 6,000-7,000 students have already participated.

Dr. Ronald Snavely, assistant to the superintendent for curriculum instruction, and teacher Tim Bartholomew were on hand to receive the award.

Scholarships

Proceeds from the annual consignment auction were used to present two $500 scholarships to college students and sponsor a public speaking contest for high school students in the county.

Environmental education has been under attack as anti-growth and anti-income, which may be costly for our children, according to Dr. Dean Steinhart, who spoke at the Dauphin County Conservation District's annual banquet Tuesday night.

This year's scholarship winners were Christopher Patackis, a junior in environmental engineering at Wilkes University, and Kimberly Sturm, a freshman in environmental science at Thiel College.

vice to the people of the 81st District.

Dr. Robert Neff of Juniata College began the evening with greetings. "It is appropriate," Neff said, "that a dinner honoring Sam Hayes be held in an educational institution. Sam has been a friend of education, but more importantly, a friend to all of us, a true public servant."

Moderator Dr. Don Evans, assistant dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Science, chronicled Hayes' life. Born in Johnstown, Hayes' family moved to Pine Grove Mills and then to the Warriors Mark area where Hayes became active in 4-H and FFA. Through high school, Hayes worked on the Peterson Farm, and after graduation he served five years in the Army.

He returned to Penn State in agricultural extension education and was graduated in 1958. While returning to the Army for the Vietnam War as a commissioned officer, Hayes earned the Bronze Star. Hayes taught at the Tyrone Area High School, and in 1970 was elected to the House of Representatives. He was elected 10 more times for a total of 22 years of service to the 81st District.

To show their appreciation, 24 speakers from Huntingdon and Blair counties, representing all walks of life, took to the podium to express their thanks to Hayes, and to outline the specific ways he helped their particular organization.

The kaleidoscope of speakers began with Christy Christoff, a student at the Huntingdon County Area Vocational Technical School. Ben Gordan, FFA member and senior at Juniata High School, noted Hayes' active membership in the Warriors Mark Chapter of the FFA as a teenager and is now the State FFA Foundation President. Hayes formed leadership conferences for FFA students and exemplified the FFA motto, "Learning to do, Doing to learn; Earning to live, Living to serve."

Dawn Rudy, a senior at the Huntingdon Area High School, said Hayes took his knowledge of rural Pennsylvania to the state legislature, was involved in legislation for school funding, and arranged educational trips for students to Harrisburg, earning the respect and gratitude of all.

Amber Leman, Huntingdon dairy miss, represented the dairy industry, while Kim Brown, president of the Huntingdon County 4-H County Council, thanked Hayes for his words of encouragement to the youth in his district, through visiting the fair and letters to kids for their accomplishments.

Speaking for extension volunteers, 4-H leader Fred Brown said Hayes deserves to take a lot of pride in the Huntingdon County Fair, for having a hand in building the exhibition halls and for investing in the future of our young people. Brown said 4-H turns out future leaders, and appreciates the role model Hayes has been to kids everywhere.

Senior citizens were represented by Shirley Myers while Barb Stapelton spoke for the Huntingdon County Sunday School Association. Stapelton said, "Because of his good name and integrity, people depended on him and trusted him to make decisions, to promote a better life for all of us in Central Pennsylvania."

Mark Saussure of the Ambulance Association said we all owe our life to Hayes for obtaining vital medical services. Hayes assisted in obtaining low interest loans, provided Hepatitis B vaccines for emergency personnel, and, in his last term of office, spearheaded a project to supply pagers for paramedics, for reaching the paramedic closest to an emergency.

John Neuman of the Volunteer Fire Service commended Hayes, whose district has 60,000 people, for always having time to chat with people, and George Fitzgerald, who represented the Huntingdon County Fair, the Sinking Valley Farm Show, the Bellwood Antis Farm Show, and the Williamsburg Farm Show, said Hayes' efforts contributed to the success of these fairs.

Boy Scout representative Linda Goodman pointed out that only one out of 1,000 boys in Scouting reach the level of Eagle Scout. Goodman said Hayes appeared at many of the Eagle Scout ceremonies, something a Scout is bound to remember.

Peter Hofstetter spoke for health care agencies while Larry Newton of the Bar Association said, "It is said that success has nothing to do with what you gain in life or what you accomplish for yourself, but what you do for others. We make a better life by what we give, and that is Sam Hayes."

Don Talasky hailed Hayes' service to the 360 members of the Huntingdon County Business and Industry Association, and Police Chief Dan Varner, who represented all enforcement, said Hayes earned respect by working hard, by being the first to turn the Rotunda lights on in the morning and one of the last to turn them out at the end of the day.

Jim Hunt, editor of the Daily News in Huntingdon, said politicians and the media ofttten have a love-hate relationship, but in this case, Hayes can appropriately wear the title Honorable because Hayes, in all he did, never set out to praise Sam Hayes.

Eugene Garner spoke for the Huntingdon County Grange, and Shirl Dillon represented Blair County Grange. Clair Grove of the Huntingdon County Farmers' Association said Hayes always gave real good advice when they had questions, and that Hayes' wife Betty Lee deserves a special thanks for putting up with Sam's schedule. He encouraged everyone to get involved locally for positive change, and to continue to support our legislators.

Van Montague of the Huntingdon County Township Officials thanked Hayes for giving local government more flexibility, to allow local officials to be more responsible to local people.

Former Huntingdon County extension agent and current chairman of the Huntingdon County Commissioners, Harold Lockoff, credited Hayes for his part in the billion dollar bridge build program and for his dedication to the youth at the fair.

Dr. Robert Neff, representative for higher education at Juniata College, thanked Hayes for seeing the future of this state in the minds of students, for talking about responsible citizenship, and for establishing student internships in government.

Blair and Huntingdon County extension agent Terry Maddox bestowed the title of Honorary County Agent to Hayes, an award given only 30 times in the 74-year history of the Pennsylvania Association of County Agricultural Agents. Maddox said, "Sam's interest in helping people paralleled the same interests of County Agents. We bestow the title of Honorary County Agent to you and the privileges that go with it — long days of work, lots of meetings, and time away from home helping people. These are the things Sam has been doing for the past 22 years."

"Friends of Extension Award" is a national honor for outstanding public service and support of Penn State Cooperative Extension and Education Programs and the highest honor to a special friend in Extension. Hayes received that award from Lee Miller, county extension director of Beaver County, and from Extension fraternity Epsilon Sigma Phi. Miller said Hayes earned this award for key legislation for forming the new Governors School of Agriculture, for facility improvements, for computer based extension education programs, and has been named the dean of agriculture and education on the Hill.

Hayes heard letters from Congressman Shuster, and Bob Jubelirer commended Hayes for "putting in extraordinary hours, wrestling with details of legislation, and cutting through the puffery of politics."

National DHIA Eliminates

Second, it is known that individual producers may now change affiliation at any time. According to the transfer procedures adopted by the national board:

- The individual producer shall file, with the two affiliates involved, a written intent-to-transfer.
- The original DHIA shall have a 60-day transition period to respond to the notice of intent, after which the producer, who has no action pending in regards to payment or rule violations, is free to transfer.
- The two DHIAs involved may, by mutual consent, shorten or eliminate the transition period.
- National DHIA would not receive a notice of intent. However, if either DHIA does not honor this procedure or a mutually accepted alternative, the DHIAs involved should forward a complaint to the National DHIA.
- The initial filing of the intent-to-transfer date will be May 1, 1993, allowing a maximum transition period ending July 1, 1993, or by mutual consent.

The ability to transfer records more openly places more responsibility on the individual dairy farmer to be sure the affiliate of choice has the capability to transfer records so that records are not lost. Not all computers can talk to each other in the system, and valuable information could be lost in the shuffle.

In the Lancaster/Pennsylvania situation, a special six-month agreement for certification with Pennsylvania concludes at the end of March. Lancaster's 1100-herd unit has already had its records transferred to Raleigh and is receiving lab services from Maryland. Officials on both sides have said they expect little to no problem to meet the new transfer rules by May 1.

National Awards

At the awards banquet Tuesday night, David Sukup, manager of Kansas DHIA, received the Martin A. Wilson Memorial Award; Dr. Frank Dickinson, executive director for development, National DHIA, received the Outstanding Service Award; and Fred Polinder, Jr., Lynden, Washington, received the H. Victor Joachim Distinguished Leadership Award.

Sukup began his career in DHIA as the supervisor for Washington-Marshall DHIA in Kansas in March 1973, where he more than doubled his herds on test in a ten year period. His concern over raising the production level of his members led him to implement programs which resulted in his association increasing productivity 70% faster than the state average.

Due to his support for the National DHIA Verified Identification Program (VIP), every member of the association enrolled their grade heifers in the program, resulting in Kansas' record as the number one state in VIP participation virtually every year.

In 1983 Mr. Sukup became the general manager of Kansas DHIA. He heavily promoted protein testing, and his enthusiasm for the SCC program increased participation from 39% of the herds in 1983 to 92% in 1992.

Other programs David has been instrumental in developing include an electronic bulletin board allowing supervisors to mitment to the 81st District by entering his name into Congressional Record.

Representative Larry O. Sather of the 81st District presented a citation from the House of Representatives commending Hayes "for civic pride, duty, sacrifice, unwavering commitment, and dedicated service." Hayes' exceptional record of leadership included Republican Caucus Chairman from 1977-1978, Majority Whip from 1979-1980, Majority Leader from 1981-1982, and Republican Whip from 1983-1992.

When Sam Hayes stepped to the podium, he thanked everyone for their heartwarming thoughts and spent some time thanking his wife for her integral part in what he has been able to do. He expressed pride in his three sons, two who are serving as lieutenants, and son Eric who is a senior at the Tyrone Area School District.

In response to his accomplishments, Hayes said, "If I did anything right in the last quarter century, we can offer it as blueprint to future lawmakers, senators, etc. We tried to have a people-oriented style, loyal to democracy."

Hayes said great civilizations grew into great promise because of human resources and that the next frontier is in the minds of the men, women and young people that follow us. Hayes said we must unlock that human resource and better use it politically, socially, and economically.

Hayes thanked the committee for the evening and said Pennsylvania is blessed with great colleges such as Juniata and Penn State.

The two $25,000 scholarships came as a surprise to Sam Hayes. Bob Pleva announced a pledge by Bill and Nancy Campbell of Hoss's Steak and Seafood Restaurants for $10,000 as seed money for the endowed Samuel E. Hayes, Jr. Scholarships.

Joey DelGrosso of DelGrosso Foods, Tipton, pledged another $10,000, and in both cases, $5,000 was designated for Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences' Scholarship, and $5,000 for the Juniata College Scholarship.

Forty-six percent of the scholarship money, which will be kept in perpetuity, has already been raised, with 90 days left to complete the scholarships.

NDB Sets Budget, Priorities For Year

FRESNO, Calif. — "Maximizing return on dairy farmers' checkoff dollars continues to be our overriding goal," said Jim Loper, New Mexico dairy farmer and chair of the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, at the Board's budget and planning meeting held Feb. 9-10.

To improve opportunities for planning and coordination with other dairy promotion groups, the National Dairy Board is changing its fiscal year to a calendar year.

The 36 dairy farmers serving on the National Dairy Board reviewed current business priorities and approved revised priorities for the period May 1-Dec. 31. These priorities help focus program plans and allocation of the $53.75 million program budget during the eight-month period.

Fluid Milk Priority

To help stop further declines in per capita consumption of fluid milk, members of the National Dairy Board will work closely with UDIA who leads the charge for promoting fluid milk. The National Dairy Board plans to continue programs targeting children and teenagers through advertising, the school breakfast program with the National Dairy Council (NDC) and a follow-up to last year's chocolate milk promotion.

The board will continue a joint media buy with UDIA and state and regional promotion groups for advertising targeting adults. Developing improved fluid packaging, products and positionings will be another focus.

In market research, the board will look at different segments of the population and their fluid consumption patterns, for example, why people in one region of the country consume more milk than those in another.

The Board approved spending $21.632 million to cover costs of all programs supporting the fluid milk priority.

Cheese Priority

Cheese sales have the most impact on the M-W price. Therefore, cheese takes highest priority of the manufactured products.

Use of milk on a milkfat equivalent basis for cheese is 31.5 percent, not far behind fluid. Unlike fluid milk, per capita consumption of cheese has been on the rise.

However, as new labeling regulations are implemented, consumers could become less convinced that cheese, with its fat content, still fits in their diets.

To protect and expand cheese's position in the marketplace, the National Dairy Board will work with UDIA and other state and regional groups to develop an integrated cheese marketing plan.

Publicity around the nutritional value of cheese will be emphasized as part of the National Dairy Board's program as will research to develop better tasting and functioning low-fat cheese products and promotions of U.S. cheese in Japan and Mexico.

The board will also work to develop an industry Cheese Task Force similar to the Butter Task Force so that farmer checkoff dollars can be leveraged with efforts from the rest of the industry. For the short year, $14.706 million was approved for cheese activities including advertising, research, public relations and export.

Milkfat Priority

The gap between the amount of milkfat produced and commercial use of milkfat continues to widen.

Surveys of consumers' perceptions consistently reveal the attitude that fat should be avoided, and saturated fats, calories and cholesterol are major concerns.

Dairy foods have been cited as foods to avoid by some media and health professionals. As consumers continue shifting to lower fat foods, the industry needs to develop new uses for milkfat.

Finding new uses for milkfat will take work in product research. The National Dairy Board will continue current projects including those looking at the use of milkfat in confections, skin/tissue repair and cosmetics.

Once a product or process is developed the Board will work to get it into the marketplace, selling more product. The Board approved $1.179 million for funding of milkfat activities which is to be spent mostly in the area of product and process research.

"The milkfat surplus is an industry problem," said Al Sherman, Washington state dairyman and member of the National Dairy Board. "The National Dairy Board is only a piece of the solution, not the entire solution."

Image Of Products

With consumers' concerns about nutrition and quality, and given recent negative press that isn't expected to vanish soon, the dairy industry needs to increase efforts to help maintain and build the image of dairy products, according to NDB officials.

The National Dairy Board plans to expand its Resetting the American Table program which joins health and food professionals to tout the benefits of balance and moderation rather than the notion of 'good' versus 'bad' foods.

The Board is also to continue a health professionals program with NDC so that physicians give balanced dietary recommendations rather than broad generalizations like "cut out dairy."

Researchers are to continue to look for more data to add to the list of reasons why consumers should eat dairy foods.

The Board also set a goal to work with the dairy industry to track and monitor issues so that they can be deflated or at least responses prepared before a crisis arises that could affect dairy sales.

Advertising, research and public relations as part of image building activities were allocated $2.155 million of the budget.

Industry Communications

Since dairy farmers fund all National Dairy Board programs, they need to understand those programs and how those programs work with and complement the work of other producer-funded organizations, according to NDB spokespeople. It is also important for the National Dairy Board to know what dairy farmers want from the programs and then develop them accordingly.

The National Dairy Board is to continue its mass communications program which includes an annual report, press releases, radio interviews, and a new quarterly newsletter for anyone interested in receiving it.

The National Dairy Board will work to develop regional forums so that dairy farmers serving on the Board have a direct, formal way to get dairy farmer input and answer questions. The Board approved $722,000 for these activities.

Other Business

The National Dairy Board plans to continue many activities including butter advertising and market research, foreign and domestic promotions of U.S. ice cream, promotions of U.S. yogurt in other countries and various research projects to develop and improve dairy product quality and safety. These activities have been allocated $13.356 million of the shortened year budget.

When divided by committee, the eight-month program budget totaling $53.75 million was approved as follows: advertising and sales promotion, $41.875 million; dairy foods and nutrition research, $3.344 million; public relations and consumer information, $2.89 million; market and economic research, $2.588 million; export, $888,000; and program development fund, $2.165 million.

Although these budget figures show a smaller percent of funds committed to dairy foods and nutrition research, funds approved in previous years result in the same level of research activity in the shortened year relative to previous years.

The National Dairy Board is to begin approving the details of specific program at the next board meeting, March 23-25 in El Paso, Texas.

The National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, comprised of 36 dairy farmers from across the U.S., develops and implements a coordinated effort of promotion, research and consumer communications to strengthen the dairy industry's image in the marketplace. These efforts are paid by America's dairy farmers.

Colostrum News From Abroad

GEORGE F.W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Colostrum, the milk secreted for a few days following birth, is important to calves, lambs, goat kids and other ruminant newborns, since it contains antibodies against all kinds of deadly diseases.

Ruminants do not transmit antibodies during pregnancy because of the distinctive thick structure of the placenta.

The usual practice is to let the newborn nurse colostrum during the first few hours following birth, after which it is moved to its own quarters.

This not only ensures the safety of the newborn, it allows the mother to enter the milking string, with all its adjustments, as soon as possible.

In addition, some newborns nurse more than is good for them. Overeating scours is often the result, a not uncommon cause of death.

Lambs normally continue nursing, and kids may, depending on the owner's management system. However, a disease known as Caprine Arthritis Encephalitis (CAE) is transmitted primarily in goats' milk to their kids, unless the milk or colostrum is pasteurized.

Many dairy goat owners pasteurize the milk before nursing their kids, but colostrum curdles during the heating process. The successful practice is to heat it only to a low temperature of 130 degree F, and hold it at that temperature for 1 hour.

If colostrum is heated above 140 degree F, it will not only begin to curdle, it will lose its important antibodies. The problems are obvious.

Now, a newly developed product may help. In the very interesting magazine, "The Sheep Farmer," a publication of the British National Sheep Association, I found an announcement for SPRAY-DRIED WHOLE NATURAL COLOSTRUM FOR LAMBS. It's called "Start 'em Right" and is sold by Sorex Limited, Widnes-Cheshire WA8 8TJ, England; phone 44-51-420-7151; FAX 44-51-495-1163.

The announcement states that "Start 'em Right" is high in immunoglobulins for protection against diseases and contains added lactose for extra energy to combat hypothermia, a frequent cause of death in newborns.

The product comes packaged in sealed single-dose sachets or foil bags for easy storage and convenient mixing.

For one lamb, the directions call for the sachet contents to be added to 3 ounces of water at body temperature (25 g/100 ml water). After thorough mixing, the reconstituted colostrum can be fed by bottle or stomach tube. It can be stored in the refrigerator but must be warmed again to body temperature before next feeding.

A meal should not exceed 1 ounce per pound lamb body weight. Per 24 hours the recommended total colostrum feeding is supposed to be 1 pint per small lamb (6.5 pound), 1.5 pints for medium size lambs (8.5 pound) and 1.8 pints for large lambs (11 pounds).

Prices were not listed for this ovine spray-dried colostrum, but the product seems to be widely available in feed and animal supply stores throughout Great Britain.

Use of cow colostrum for lamb raising is discouraged because of alleged risk of anemia.

The article also mentioned that up to 20 percent of newborn lambs do not survive the third day of life in Great Britain. Six lambs per 100 born are lost as a result of hypothermia and starvation, at a cost of $3.40 per head on the surviving lambs.

I have not used or examined this dry colostrum product, nor have I read reports about it; possibly because it applies more to lambs and kids than to calves.

Cow farmers could easily have some colostrum stored frozen from a previous calving, and there is no reason they should have to pasteurize their colostrum.

This column is neither an endorsement nor an advertisement. I am simply providing interesting news about something that sheep and goat farmers have needed for a long time.

'Distinction' Program Seeks Beautiful Dairy Farms

Beautiful dairy farms are being sought for recognition as part of the Dairy of Distinction Program in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Started in 1983, the Northeast Farm Beautification Program recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy owner/operators who maintain attractive farms. The purpose of the program is to 1) promote a positive dairy image; and 2) instill in consumers a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products.

Farms that apply for recognition are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. Animal cleanliness, the barnyard, feed areas and manure management are other aspects of the farm operation taken into consideration.

To qualify, applicants must be actively dairy farming. Applications, which are available from the program secretary in each of the three participating states, are due by April 15.

For more information, contact the following: New York — Carol Weddle, NY Holstein Association, (607) 273-7591; Pennsylvania — Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, (717) 283-2204; and New Jersey — August Knispel, (201) 735-4989.

Hershey Bros. Expand Partnership, Operation

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

PENRYN (Lancaster Co.) — Two years ago, Dale and Steve Hershey, partners on a small family dairy farm near Penryn, were using a computer to help increase their bottom line by keeping better track of farm records.

The brothers milked about 50 cows, three times-per-day, in an old stanchion bank barn. They also did other jobs off the farm.

Now, using technologies that dairy academians are currently presenting at dairy seminars as the latest improvements to a modern family dairy farm, the Hershey brothers have given a face-lift and expansion to their family farm.

Nestled in the south foothills of the red sandstone South Mountains, the 135-acre Hershey dairy farm is one of the most recent local dairy operations to expand.

However, this expansion is different.

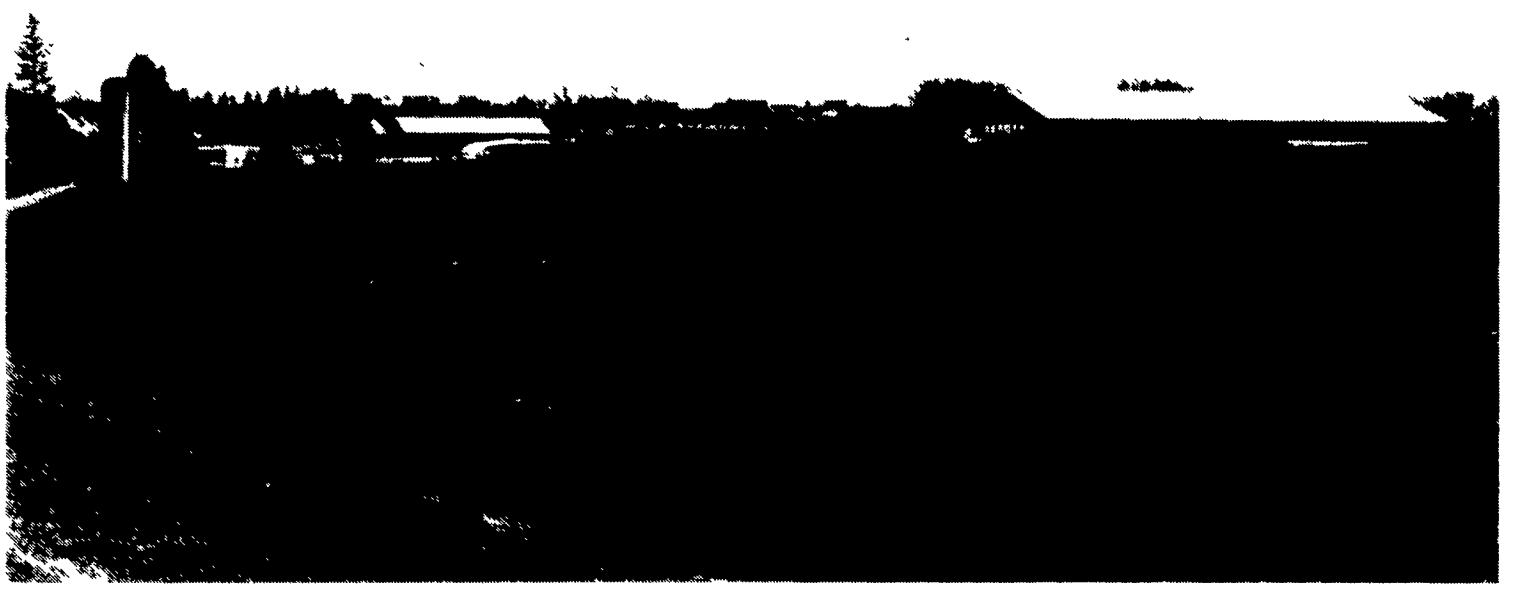
It may look like the typical, newly built, 88-foot by 100-foot, 150-capacity freestall barn with an alley scaper, manure pit, two precast double-wide bunker silos outside, and a double-eight milking parlor, but it isn't.

It's been fine-tuned in a way that maximizes cow comfort and human efficiency in the same design.

In finalizing the plans, the brothers incorporated a number of university dairy science recommendations for creating a successful modern dairy operation.

The Hershey brothers are Steve, Dale and, within the past year, Clair. Clair came back to the farm after it was decided that an expansion fit into the plans of all the brothers.

The brothers' facility and operation was opened to the public on Tuesday and about 600 people attended the midday event. While most people were from the area, some traveled from New Jersey, Maryland and from Pennsylvania's northern tier counties to visit and examine the new facility.



From the left, the Hershey brothers' farm layout is expanded from the old barn and silos, to the new horizontal bunker silos, 150 freestall building and the manure storage tank in front of the building.

One of the five maternity pens within the Hershey brothers' 150 freestall building shows the sawdust bedded back stall area. Not seen in the foreground is an aisle with gutter scaper.

According to Steve Hershey, the public got to see the result of some difficult decisions made by the brothers.

The Hersheys' decisions, they said, were based on years of personal research, attending university extension-sponsored and agribusiness-sponsored seminars, and reading.

Other factors also played a role in the decision to expand: the price of milk, the condition of the family barn, the poor potential for its expansion; the need to add more cows per man to stay competitive; the current economic condition; the three families to support; and the farm having enough acres, with rented cropland, to take on a 150-cow milking string.

"It was a combination of things . . . a whole bunch of stuff at the same time," Steve said, about the timing with the project. "It was also a good time to put things out for bids."

The plastic curtains on the open walls of the 150 freestall building roll to the middle from the top half and from the bottom up. This allows better control of ventilation to the cow while she is lying on her bed, since the cow's head is closer to the bottom of the wall.

Some of the decisions the Hersheys made about how the operation would function were continuations of past practices. Other functional decisions were based on recommendations and going on tours and seeing specific technologies work in practice.

The most major decision they made, of course, was to stay in the milk-making business.

From there, the decision to expand was almost a given.

With the old 50-tie stall barn, Dale and Steve had just gotten the size of the all-registered Holstein milking string up to almost a 70-cow average.

Common wisdom holds that it takes about 50 milking cows to support one immediate family. The herd needed to expand to a level large enough to support all three families.

The location of the expansion, across the road from the farm house and barn, fit perfectly for the freestall operation, because of access to roadways, the contour of the land to provide a ridge for using natural thermal air flow for barn ventilation, the room to build and to locate structures according to total operational design rather than siting because of limitations, etc.

The new facility is also close enough to utilities and the family houses to make working the farm not a major chore.

(Turn to Page A31)

Looking up from the floor of the new Hershey brothers' freestall building, the unique roof structure is apparent. Sunlight comes through the open roof peak, casting light on rafter beams. Interior, suspended rainspoutng is the flat, four-tracked sheet going from the top right of the picture to the bottom middle.

A number of other consideration were made to create positive changes for increased cow comfort and management.

For example, the Hersheys not only use a computer, they have it located in a roomy barn office, just off of the parlor area, so it can be accessed by the brothers all day without having to go back into the house, etc.

The computer is used for almost all record keeping — from complete pedigree, veterinarian care, date-of-birth, production records, and breeding records to all the accounting bookwork — and for resource and reference work, such as using the artificial insemination bull search program put out by the Holstein Association.

According to Steve, the computer is an "IBM clone" (an Intel 486 DX microprocesser) with a 120-megabyte hardrive, an 8-megabyte internal memory, a 120-megabyte tape backup, and a telephone modem which is planned for use in the near future as a direct link to Dairy Herd Improvement Association records.

On the computer, in addition to the Holstein Association bull search, the brothers use a dairy management software program and a variety of other programs to help them manage and keep track of the farm operation.

(Turn to Page A35)

This freestall is apparently being used the way it was intended: cows are either eating, or lying down to chew cud; not standing in the aisles. The Hersheys used 300 pounds of shredded rubber bedding for each stall, covered by a heavy tarp, to provide cow comfort.

This new addition to the Hershey brothers' farm appears to enjoy the fresh, clean water in the freestall. The trough can be tipped over to clean out any residue.

Sitting at a desk in the new barn office, Steve Hershey enters data on the brothers' computer. They use the system integrally with management of their farm.

Reorganization Meeting Held

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Richard Stoner, Greencastle, was re-elected chairman of the Franklin County Conservation District board of directors at their recent reorganization meeting.

Also re-elected were Vice Chairman Wilbur Kline, Mont Alto, and Secretary-Treasurer Donna Hay, Spring Run.

Director Andrew Fitz, Waynesboro, was appointed to serve as Executive Council meeting representative to Executive Council meetings sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Distrists (PADC).

Committee appointments were also made.

Directors Wilbur Kline, Clifford Hawbaker, and Richard Stoner will serve on the Personnel Committee. Director Kline was appointed chairman of the Personel Committee.

Extension Offers Beef Management Short Course

WESTMINSTER, Md. — The Cooperative Extension Service offices in Carroll and Howard counties are inviting beef cattle producers to participate in the Central Maryland Beef Management Short Course, scheduled for consecutive Tuesday nights, March 16, 23, and 30.

The three-session program will be held at the Eldersburg Public Library, off Route 26 just east of Route 32 in southern Carroll County, and will run from 7:30 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. each night.

Topics on the program include feeding and finishing cattle, a computer rations worksession comparing forages of different qualities and where they fit into a cow herd feeding program, nutritional management of the cow herd, measuring costs and profitability in your cow herd, alternative feedstuffs for beef cattle, update on growth promotants, and developing a sound herd health management program.

Speakers involved in the program are extension beef and livestock marketing specialists, an extension livestock veterinarian, and county extension agents from Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Because of space limitations at the library, participation is limited to the first 60 people who register. Cost of the short course is $15 per person or family and includes handout materials and refreshments.

Call the Carroll County extension office at (410) 848-4611 or the Howard County extension office at (410) 313-2707 for more information and a registration form.

Purina Dairy Meeting Held

BIRD—IN—HAND (Lancaster Co.)—"First calf heifers are becoming the problem breeders," said Dr. Harley Kooker, DVM. Kooker was speaking on reproductive challenges at the Hess Mill Purina farmers meeting Wednesday.

"The genetics in these young animals are such that they come in with the potential to milk 90 lbs. to 100 lbs., and they are basically still a juvenile. I don't think they are at the point where they can handle that kind of milk production at that age. The result is they are hard to get bred back."

Dr. Randy Lyle compared dietary fats and their benefits and said you use fats in the diet to increase milk production and improve body condition. Economic gains can be made because the return on investment is good. Twenty cents in cost of the added fat can make you 50 cents of additional milk income.

Dr. Don Deitz said dairymen should pay special attention to the protein needs and the amount of protein that is available in the feed for high producing cows. He showed how to maximize profit by determining the level of intake needed for the high producing cow.

Larry Wile told the group of farmers in the Plain and Fancy Restaurant that you need to choose the best topdress to fit your herd's needs. Rick Kolb reported on the latest health products available to farmers.

Milk, coffee and donuts were available at the start of the meeting and lunch was served at noon.

Holstein Foundation Announces Leadership Program

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Dairy persons between 22 and 35 years may now apply to participate in a two-year Young Dairy Leaders Institute scheduled to begin February 1994.

The national program opens with a three-day leadership conference Feb. 10-12 in Tampa, Florida.

Development of the art of persuasion, public speaking, goal-setting and other interpersonal skills will be part of institute training.

External and internal factors influencing the dairy industry — government regulation, marketing mechanisms, regional differences, economics and advocacy groups — will be highlighted at the seminars.

Building on what they learn at the Institute, participants will expand their leadership opportunities in 1994.

Institute members will return the following year for a second conference in February 1995 to talk about their new "life leadership experiences."

The Foundation is currently waging a fund-raising campaign to support the Institute.

Candidates should file applications by June 1, 1993. One hundred members will be selected with expenses paid for lodgings, meals and materials, plus travel stipend.

Young dairy persons, regardless of breed affiliation, may apply for Institute membership. Call the Foundation toll-free: 1-800-952-5200 or write Jason Devino, Holstein Foundation, 1 Holstein Place, Brattleboro, VT 05302-0816.

Changes Discussed At Holstein Winter Forum

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — A number of issues concerning the running of the national and local Holstein Associations were discussed here Thursday at the Holiday Inn, as part of a series of nation-wide meetings called Winter Forums.

The meeting was led by John Selz, of Humbird, Wis., Holstein Association vice president, and national directors Thomas Kelly, of Tyrone, and John Howard, of Willow Street.

While a number of issues were addressed during the day-long meeting, a consensus was drawn on only a few items. Any consensus built during the meeting does not mean that the local positions are shared by other members in the state.

Including the directors, 53 people attended the forum which is held annually so directors can better understand, from delegates, how members feel about issues, before the board gathers to take action.

Of the issues discussed Thursday were the national board strategic plan, treatment of convention delegates, association finances, customer service, genetic issues, herd classification, shows, Holstein values, a program getting started by the Holstein Foundation, etc.

Of special interest and stronger consensus were two proposed changes to the association bylaws — one which would make is mandatory for every laboratory testing for undesirable genetics to report the results directly to the association and which would provide the executive secretary with powers to publish that and related information; and a proposal to expand the association's ability to investigate any animal or herd — not only the purebred herds, but also those registered on the association's Identified Female Holstein or Qualified Holstein herdbooks.

Those attending the Grantville meeting were almost unanimous in their support of granting the additional powers to the association's executive secretary. They were

PREVENT PIGLET CRUSHING

MODEL 90 FARROWING CRATE

Constructed from heavy gauge materials this crate is designed to reduce crushing, with sow comfort in mind. The bowed bottom bars makes for a comfortable 33" crate width when the sow lays down, yet the adjustable anti-crush bars eliminates the sow from carelessly dropping on the piglets. This movement restriction does not hamper the sow as she lays down, or wants to stand up, as the bars slide up and out of her way.

As herdsman, Steve said he uses the computer to keep records of heats, when a cow is expected to freshen, when she is scheduled to be dried off, etc.

And, he said he constantly updates the computer.

"I carry in my pocket a list of printouts" and update them throughout the day," Steve said. "I don't sit down (at the computer) for a long period of time."

Each brother is reponsible for entering his own information into the computer system, but they share data, Steve said.

For example, Dale uses production records and other data entered by Steve to help formulate rations.

Eventually, with Clair taking over the cropping duties, pesticide-applicator records could be eventually entered and kept on computer and backed up.

Other information may also eventually make its way onto the computer, if it isn't already there.

The new double-eight parlor has computerized production meters and automatic take-offs. While not as computerized as some systems, it currently provides the data the brothers need, and it takes one person about 1½ hours to do a milking, at 75 percent capacity.

Three milkings per day are still used.

Steve said that, for the parlor, a rapid release system may be a future modification, because the occassional slow cow or spooky heifer can and has caused delays in the single line cattle movement out of the parlor and through the return aisles.

The parlor is designed so that on each side of the parlor are narrower return aisles for cows whose milk is being held or needs special treatment. It also serves as a catch-aisle for those needing breeding.

The barn is a perfect example of modern designs.

The long rectangular freestall barn has a drive-through feeding aisle and a row of beds lining the two long walls.

Hersheys incorporated shredded rubber bedding in the stalls. The rubber is then covered by a tarp-like covering. It is used readily by the cows.

Steve said they used 300 pounds of shredded rubber per stall, though recommendations ranged from 100 pounds to 200 pounds.

"Within 24 hours, only three cows were not laying in freestalls and those were trained with a week," Steve said.

Ventilation control is strong in the building. The long walls look unfinished — The spaced frame boarding of the walls is covered with a mesh for bird control.

On the outside of the barn walls, a long plastic curtain can be adjusted up or down via a cable system, and handcranks located inside the building.

The roof has an open peak to allow cow body heat and moisture to vent freely.

Suspended about two feet beneath the open space is a wide multi-track gutter which slopes from one end to the other. The typically straight-falling precipitation falls onto the gutter and is carried away.

Steve said driving rain and blowing snow can work around the gutter, but for the ventilation advantages, he said they could live with the occassional small amount of rain or snow coming in on the wide center feeding aisle.

The manure handling system is based on an off-center collecting area and gravity drain to a 12-foot by 87-foot round, poured-in-place concrete storage tank.

Alley scrapers are unique too.

Running lengthwise in the barn in the center of the cow aisles, an inches-wide narrow slit has been cut into the grooved concrete to house a chain linkage belt, to which the scrapers are attatched.

The belt alternately changes directions, and, because the scrapers are directionally collapsible, manure in the aisles is always moved toward the center collection pit.

From there the manure gravity feeds to the storage tank, located about 75 yards north of the freestall building.

The location of the manure storage takes into account not only relative height to the barn, but also prevailing winds, which carry any odors away from the building and the residence.

Back inside the freestall, there are also five 12-foot by 30-foot box stalls to use for maternity stalls and to isolate and care for sick cows.

The box stall design is such that three quarters of the area is bedded with sawdust, while the remainder is in reality an extension of the freestall alley, complete with alley scraper.

Other decisions by the Hersheys include buying a mixer and changing to feeding a totally mixed ration; using an independent nutritional consultant whose job it is to test forages and give advice; and using a prostaglandin heat-synchronization program modeled after a program developed and tested by James Ferguson, a researcher at New Bolton Center of University of Pennsylvania.

While the changes may seem drastic — going from stanchion milking in a facility that was last improved 30 years ago to operating a modern freestall — Steve said that one of their main goals was to make the transition as smooth as possible for the cows.

"You keep hearing horror stories about when you make drastic changes," he said. "Basically our goal was to minimize the trauma of the change (for the cows and heifers)."

Other goals in the design was to build it so it leaves logical room for growth. Because of the offset alley scaper and manure collection design, and with purposefully siting the way they did, a second 150-freestall barn could easily be built.

A second building would also fit in well with the feeding and most likely with the parlor design.

The financing for the project was through Keystone Farm Credit ACA, which Steve said is a strict business.

"Part of the reason we went with them, was because they are so careful. We didn't want somebody just throwing money at us," he said, adding that it helped the brothers' confidence knowing that the agricultural lender was careful in assessing the risk.

The financing is where a lot of the environmental concerns came to a front. Steven said the lender "checked for inground fuel tanks and any other considerations

County Dairy Promoters Invited To Spring Meetings

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services Inc. has announced the dates for the annual spring district meetings for all local dairy promoters.

The featured speaker will be Jane Mecum, family living extension agent for Perry, Mifflin, and Juniata counties. Her topic, "Communicating — Are you Hearing Me?", is vital to the success of county promoters when working with consumers, committees, candidates and dairy princesses.

The meetings will also include updates on activities by representatives of the various dairy promotion agencies and dairy councils in Pennsylvania and information needed for upcoming dairy princess contests and dairy promotion activities.

Anyone interested in working with dairy promotion at the county level is urged to attend the most convenient meeting. Reservations may be made by calling the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess office at (814) 226-7470.

All meetings begin at 9:30 a.m., conclude at 3:30 p.m., and include lunch. Meetings will be held as follows:

- Northwest district - Wednesday, March 24 - Clarion Clipper, Clarion.
- Southwest district - Thursday, March 25 - Days Inn, New Stanton.
- South central district - Friday, March 26 - Best Western Inn, Carlisle.
- Northeast district - Monday, March 29 - Williamston Inn, Towanda.
- Central district - Tuesday, March 30 - Zimm's Family Restaurant, State College.
- Southeast district - Tuesday, April 4 - Holiday Inn, Denver.

Keystone Sets Meeting Dates

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — For the convenience of its stockholders, Keystone Farm Credit, ACA will be holding three sectional meetings in its 15-county territory. Meeting schedule is: Tuesday, April 6 - Days Inn & Conference Center, Allentown; Wednesday, April 7 - Willow Valley Resort & Conference Center, Lancaster; and Thursday, April 8 - The Inn at Reading.

Stockholders are encouraged to attend the sectional meeting most convenient for them.

They will be voting for six director positions and 15 nominating committee members. Results of the elections will be available after noon on Monday, April 12, by calling a branch office. A press release will also be issued.

All meetings will begin with registration at 6 p.m. and dinner will start promptly at 7 p.m. In addition to the business session, entertainment is planned for each of the sectional meetings.

Beaver/Lawrence Holstein Qualified Herdbook Workshops Set

BEAVER/LAWRENCE COUNTIES—The Beaver/Lawrence Holstein Clubs will sponsor two work shops dealing with the qualified herdbook animals. The qualified herdbook program is new from the National Holstein Association and features the opportunity to have grade cattle registered under the QE prefix as long as four generations can be verified.

A representative from the National Holstein Association will be on hand to answer questions regarding paper work and eligibility. All dairy farmers are invited to attend. Lunch will be on your own.

Both these meetings are scheduled for Wednesday, March 24. The first will start at 10 a.m. at the Grand Arbor Room, located on Route 18, two miles south of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Exit 2.

The second meeting will start at 8 p.m. at Eppinger's Restaurant, one mile north of Portersville on Route 19.

For more information, you may call Ron Caldwell. Phone: (412) 843-6449.

which could cause trouble." Nutrient management was also part of that.

The herd is also changed.

Up until moving into the freestall, the Hersheys had maintained a 100 percent registered Holstein herd with about 75 percent of the cows tracing back to the original herd their late grandfather started on the farm.

Now the herd has gone to a majority of first calf heifers, and while production has dropped, it hasn't dropped as much as could be expected.

National Holstein Has Scholarship

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Applications are now being taken for the annual Robert H. Rumler Scholarship, an award of $3,000 to be given to a deserving college dairy graduate pursuing business administration studies for a master's degree.

The scholarship was begun in 1984 in the name of the former executive secretary of the Holstein Association.

Those who wish to contribute to the scholarship fund, can send checks directly to Steve Kerr, current executive secretary of the association.

Eligibility

Eligibility requirements include being under 30 years old, having an academic ranking in the upper third of graduates granted bachelor degrees, and have letters of recommendation from the dean of agricultural studies at the university being attended.

Along with the application form, those wishing to be considered must send a copy of their grade transcripts, a photo of themself, the letter(s) of recommendation, and mail the application package to Steve Kerr, Holstein Association, Brattleboro, Vt., 05302-0808, by May 15.

The scholarship recipient is to be announced in June.

unanimous in giving consent to go ahead with the latter proposal.

One dissenting opinion on the genetics reporting was centered on the process of notification of the owner if his animal is found to be a carrier of undesirable genes.

According to Chuck Allen, operations director for Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, the privilege of information desired by the association should not supercede the normal business relationship between the laboratory and client.

For example, ABC had purchased a bull which on initial pedigree screening, did not appear to have a potential for carrying BLAD. Later, while in isolation and going through the normal, intensive A.I. screening process, a blood sample was sent off to one of two laboratories already under a cooperative agreement with Holstein.

However, according to Allen, Holstein Association received the results before he did, and, before Allen could, the association notified the former owner of the bull that it was a BLAD carrier.

Allen contended that it should have been he, not the association, to receive first notification of the test results; and it is his obligation to inform his client of test results, not the duty of the association.

The directors said they took note of the notification and timing problem.

Another bylaw proposal which received a good deal of conversation was a series of proposed changes to control prefixes and registration.

The proposal approved by most concerned jointly owned female cattle.

The proposal is that "A member of a jointly owned or syndicate owned 'designated' female that becomes sole owner of resulting offspring can be identified as the breeder and owner at time of registration, and thus use their own prefix.

Also, "A form will be provided which all owners of the 'designated' cow must sign. The signed form must be submitted to the Holstein-Freisan Association with a $50 fee."

The proposal is also that the $50 covers one 'designated' cow. And there is to be a waiver of the prefix-breeder status by the joint ownership or the syndicate.

A transfer of embryos or natural births from that cow to a member of a jointly-owned cow, continues to be a requirement.

What those attending turned their thumbs down on was a bylaws proposal which would change the prefix-breeder waiver manipulations so that an owner of a cow must pay a $50 waiver fee to the association if he sells embryos, or $25 for natural calves, to someone else who wishes to use their own prefix and/or be listed as the breeder.

Further, a transfer of the embryos or natural calves continues to be a requirement.

It would also make it so that two or more buyers of embryos from one dam can register the resulting calves with their own prefix. The owner of the cow would then have to pay the association $50 for each prefix transfer.

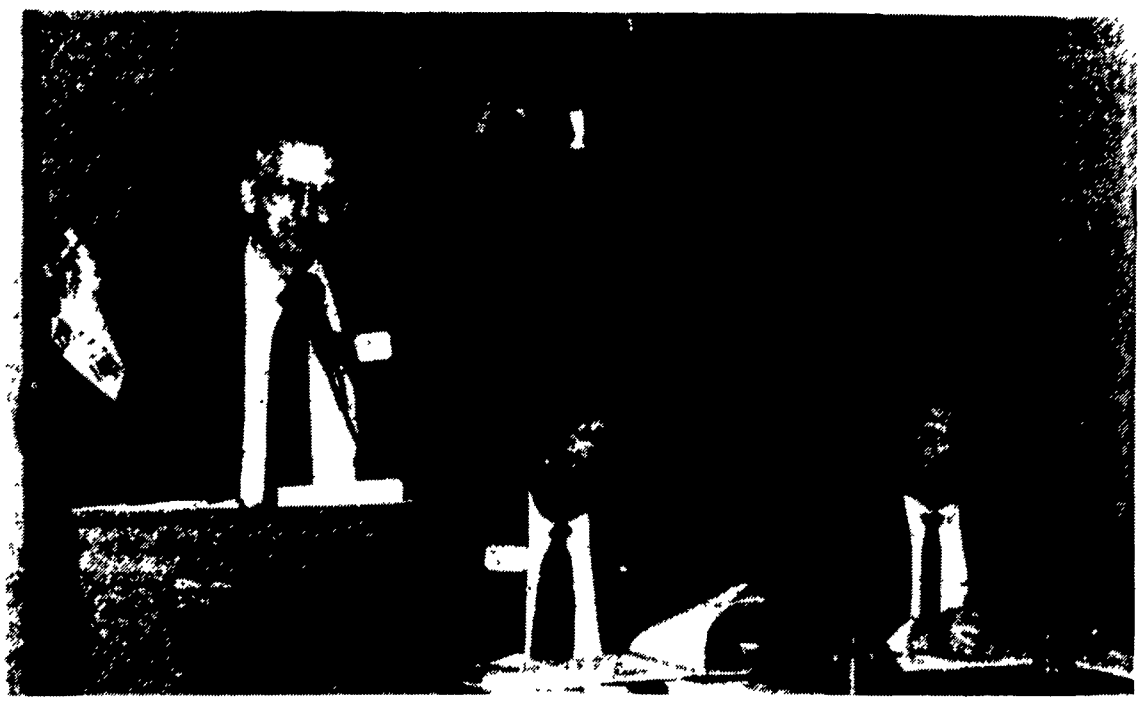
Also drawing some discussion was a series of questions posed to delegates.

Since there has been a perceived problem with some apparently artificially inflated selling prices for Holsteins at sales, some are questioning whether the association should change its positions on allowing minimum bids.

Also posed to the delegates was, if a minimum bid is allow at a sale, at what time should it be announced.

There was no clear consensus on this.

Other items discussed included changes or elimination of the TPI index, since it seems to be rewarding conflicting attributes in bulls and seems to be digressing from the model animal.



Standing at a podium, John Selz, Holstein Association vice president, talks about an experimental cattle identification program which is being researched as a possible alternative to sketching cattle for registration identification. To the right are Pennsylvania's representatives on the Holstein Association's board of directors, Thomas Kelly and John Howard.

• A proposal to drop the bottom 10 percent of cows during classification. Reportedly, this proposal was made because of an estimate 3,700 cows whose registration is cancelled annually on classification day because their scores would drag down the herd BAA.

• Sketchless registration is being worked on and a permanent tagging system is being evaluated.

• Increase efforts to cooperate with other national Holstein associations for the transfer of pedigree and production records.

• Provide a free pedigree with registration, or offer a pedigree at a cost less than $2.50.

Adams Farmers To Tour Maryland Dairy Farms

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Adams County dairy farmers can go on a tour of five Maryland dairy farms through a Thursday, April 8 program offered by the county extension service.

Those interested in going on the farm tour should be prepared to board a Wolf's 47-passenger bus at 8 a.m. The bus is to be parked at the North Gettysburg Shopping Center. Participants should park their vehicles in the lot west of Weis Market.

After boarding, the bus is to travel to pick up David Greene, extension agent, in Taneytown, or his alternate.

From there, the first farm stop is be at approximately 9:05 a.m., at Unicorn Associates, owned by Cam Davis and Tom Powel, of Union Bridge.

Unicorn Associates currently has a milking herd of 153 cows of which 143 are registered Holstein cows and the rest grades. They are kept in free stall housing and milking in a herringbone parlor.

Another highlight is that Unicorn currently has the highest producing 3-year-old in the state with 36,380 pounds of milk and 1,272 pounds of fat. The associates have also sold a number of bulls to artificial insemination groups this year.

The next stop, at approximately 10 a.m., is also in the Union Bridge vicinity at the Peace and Plenty Farm, owned by Joe and Nona Schwartzbeck.

Peace and Plenty Farm has 150 registered milking Holsteins with a herd average production of 19,280 pounds of milk, and 747 pounds of fat.

The tour schedule is to arrive at the third farm, Coldsprings Farm, at about 11 a.m.

Owned by Marlin and Kathy Hoff, the 330-registered Holstein herd operation is located in the New Windsor vicinity. The Hoff's have recently upgraded the facility with a double-20, parallel milking parlor.

A $5.50 cafeteria lunch is scheduled for 12:15 p.m. at a Brethren Service Center. A tour of the service center is to follow lunch.

The next farm to be visited is Big Spring Farm in the Union Bridge vicinity. Time of arrival is estimated at 1:45 p.m.

Owned by Dennis and Steve Bowman, Big Spring Farm was recently outfitted with a one-of-a-kind, double-12, rapid reel exit herringbone parlor. Their total herd is 370 cows, though they currently milk 290.

The herd is mostly grade, with some registered cattle, and they use their own computer production records, instead of using the services of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

The cattle are housed is a new six-row freestall barn that features a drive-through feeding alley, automatic alley scrapers with gravity flow to manure storage, and automatic sort gates and a hospital area.

From 2:45 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., the tour is to visit Windsor Manor farm, in New Windsor.

Owned by Jason and Donna Myers, they milk 60 registered Holsteins in a flat barn with a pipeline and have received the Holstein PBR award the past six years.

download test results by modern the same day lab results are available. He also assisted Mid-States DRPC, Ames, Iowa, in creating an Electronic Barn Sheet program, which simplified the collection and compilation of data on the farm. Sukup helped Kansas DHIA adopt a voluntary central management program where supervisors, while under the direction of the state manager, are evaluated jointly by the local association.

Dickinson served as National DHIA's Chief Executive Officer from October 1987 to June of 1992. During Dr. Dickinson's term as CEO, and in his current position, his work with National DHIA has involved: the Standards Task Force; innovative testing plans; new official testing plans; Research, Development and Education Fund; state line policy; and the transfer of authority from Policy Board to National DHIA.

Prior to his position at National DHIA, Dickinson was Research Leader of the Animal Improvement Programs Laboratory, Animal Science Institute, Agricultural Research Service (ARS), USDA in Beltsville, Maryland.

Dr. Dickinson first joined ARS in 1957 in a cooperative effort with University of Illinois, in September 1967, he took a position as Senior Research Scientist with the Dairy Herd Improvement Investigations Group at ARS. In 1969, Dr. Dickinson was appointed leader of the group.

Dr. Dickinson has authored and co-authored over 200 papers, articles and abstracts which deal primarily with dairy cattle genetics and the National Cooperative Dairy Herd Improvement Program. He has accepted over 100 speaking assignments on these same topics in the United States and other countries. In 1983, Dr. Dickinson was the first recipient of the National DHIA Award presented by the American Dairy Science Association.

Polinder's DHIA service includes 9 years as a national director (2 years as President), 10 years on the Washington State DHIA Board (6 years as President), and 12 years on the Whatcom County DHIA Board.

Polinder was responsible for building support for the central lab and central accounting programs in Washington. He led Washington through reorganization and redistricting, followed by a completely new drafting of by-laws, which later became a model for National DHIA.

During his term as National DHIA president, Fred provided leadership when the original by-laws were presented, discussed and passed by the delegates. He also served National DHIA as convention chair and organizer of the 1977 meeting in Seattle.

Polinder has also been on the executive board and served as chairman of All West/Select Sires, and president of the Washington State Holsteins.

Hoffmans Retire To Cultivate Artistic Abilities

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

DOVER (York County) — Stepping through the front door of Mary and Wayne Hoffman's home is a lot like walking into a folk art gallery.

Set in a giant loop formed by the Conewago Creek in northwestern York County, the Hoffman farm is a small private world untouched by urban sprawl. At the end of a long, scenic lane, the couple's spacious farm home serves as a perfect setting for artistic talents both have cultivated in their retirement.

Mary's oil paintings and decorative artwork mix and mingle through the cozy rooms with the handcrafted furniture and natural-life carvings created by Wayne. Both have a flair for turning the old and unwanted into items of useful and artistic beauty.

Mary Hoffman retired several years ago from a career in the real estate business. Following knee surgery in 1980, she signed up for a fall semester evening class in beginner tole painting at the Dover High School.

"I wasn't sure how good my knee would get and I wanted to try something different," she says of her reasons for joining the art class. "And, I had an old tin pan here I wanted painted. After six weeks, I was addicted."

That Christmas, one of their daughters gave Mary a beginner's set of oil paints and two books on painting. Though she had started with acrylics, Mary soon preferred the flexibility of the oils.

"I like to be able to walk past a painting and fix my goofs; with slow-drying oils, you can do that. Everything is an experiment for me. I get a lot of books, and read a lot about how to do different things, but I've taken some classes and attend seminars," Mary adds.

Many of Mary's oils feature flowers and birds; some are of landscapes and picturesque old country buildings. A painting of the Hoffman's barn, a building dating to 1743, hangs near a window with a view of the classic, red structure. There's even a portrait of Wayne, done by Mary in a class for which Wayne agreeably consented to pose for the students.

Some of Mary's painting is of the decorative type, ornamenting picnic baskets, milk boxes, trays, cheese boxes — even garbage cans.

"I like to paint big things," she explains, with a grin. "My daughter saw a painted garbage can and told me about it; it was the first big object I ever tried."

It turned out so well that each of the Hoffman's nine children eventually got their own decorated garbage can. Mary frequently paints them for wedding gifts. She prepares the new, galvanized, 20-gallon size cans with a base coat of metal primer before adding trailing vines and flowers or perhaps a whimsical rabbit or raccoon.

In 1982, Mary joined the Keystone Painters, a regional artists group which she now heads as president. The more than 100 members travel from as far away as State College and Lebanon as well as the states of Maryland and Delaware to the bi-monthly meetings, usually held at the Hoffman's own Salem Union Church near Dover. One meeting is held each year in Maryland.

"We often have a seminar or paint-in between the six regular meetings. Keystone Painters has members at all levels of ability; ability doesn't have to stop someone from joining." Mary says. "At every meeting, someone teaches some technique or idea, and we usually have 'show and tell' of things we're working on."

One thing Mary does not paint are the beautiful carvingts crafted by her husband.

"She's not allowed to do those," teases Wayne. "Carvers do their own painting."

"I wouldn't have time anyway," counters Mary, adding that she already has more painting projects than she can complete.

Wayne took his first carving class in 1984, after retiring from his carpentry trade of more than 30 years.

"I thought he should try it; I sent a check in for the class so he'd be obligated," chuckles Mary, explaining her persuasive tactics.

The graceful shorebird he shaped led to another, and another; the "flock" now numbers 35, each different. Wayne has also added ducks, swans, loons and songbirds to the array of delicately carved birdlife. In many, each feather is etched in such detail and the acrylic colors so lifelike you expect them to chirp or quack.

Favorite carving of the couple's grandchildren is a rattlesnake, the curves of its body fashioned from separate blocks. Jointures in the three-foot wooden reptile are so carefully fit they can hardly be seen.

A wooden chain carved by Wayne is another attention-getter. The chain of about a dozen connecting links is crafted from a single block of wood. And a sleek wooden replica of a Corvette sports car is carved from several layers of walnut, glued together to give a striped effect to the finished, highly-polished auto model.

Carving the sports car brought Wayne somewhat full-circle in a lifelong love affair with woodworking.

"When I was a kid, I would run to my grandfather's shop. Probably one of the first things I ever made was a bird house," he reminisces of his early efforts with a drawing knife. "In 1934, Chrysler came out with an air-flow car. I built a model of one out of two curved pieces of wood, cut windows out and put a couple of wheels on it to play with."

Native Pennsylvania pine boards salvaged from the barn granary have proven a treasure trove of material for Wayne's woodworking skills.

A keyholder inside the front door is fashioned from a section of one of the 18-inch wide granary boards, and is a tribute to the Hoffmans combined sense of humor. Rats chewed holes through the section, leaving behind telltale teethmarks. On a piece of plywood for a backing, Mary painted a family of raccons peeking out through the ratholes.

"I wanted to paint a rat," Mary explains, "But I couldn't find a good picture of one."

Like Mary, Wayne always has a couple of ideas waiting in the wings. A green-winged teal duck is the project under way in his current carving class with Manchester teacher Joe Kline.

Since Christmas, he has worked several dozen hours on the white pine carving of an eagle with outstretched wings, which will be perched on a piece of log or limb. To add the fine detail of texturing each feather, Wayne peers through a free-standing magnifying glass while using an etching tool that burns tiny lines in the wood.

Claws are fashioned of copper wire, then coated with a putty-like material that can be shaped, textured and colored to create a lifelike bird's leg.

Numerous pieces of furniture in the Hoffman home are testimony to Wayne's woodworking talents. Tables, shelves, storage and toy chests and stools made from an oak tree that had fallen along the Conewago Creek are scattered throughout their cozy home and Outstretched wings, carved separately, will be fitted to the body of the eagle. When completed, Wayne will mount the finished carving on a log or piece of tree limb.

(Turn to Page B3)

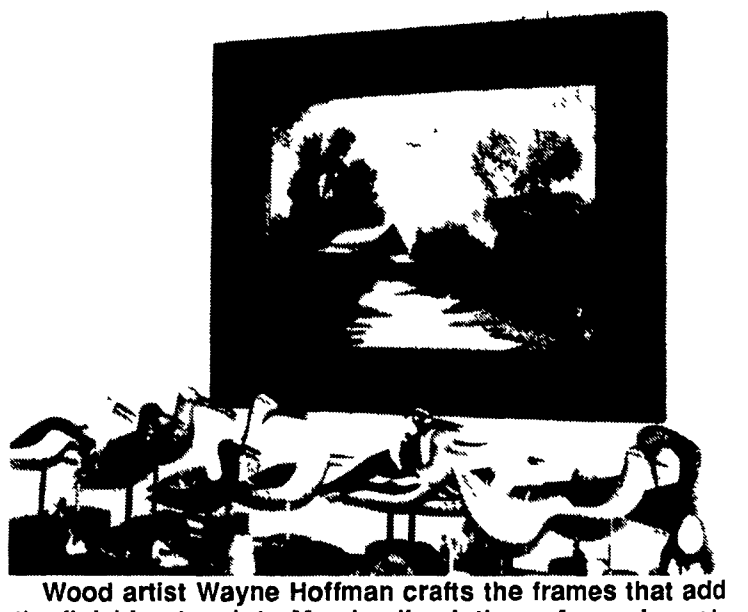
Calling herself a "dab" painter, Mary touches up the swan she painted on an old wooden box.



Wood artist Wayne Hoffman crafts the frames that add the finishing touch to Mary's oil paintings. A wooden rattlesnake he fashioned in sections winds through part of his "flock" of 35 different shorebird carvings.

A reverse-glass painting of geese decorates the Hoffman's transom. For this unique type of art, Mary uses waterproof ink to outline the design, then fills in the color, adding finished details first and background colors last.

the homes of their 9 children. And Wayne makes frames for nearly all Mary's oil paintings.

Much of Mary and Wayne's time at home is spent in what they refer to as the "playroom," a sunporch they added 12 years ago to their stone farm home. Wayne built the addition, partly of field stone which the Hoffmans gathered from the fields and cut themselves.

A focal point of the stone wall which backs the woodstove is an arrowhead-shaped stone long ago found by Wayne as he worked the fields and saved for just such a project.

In addition to the painting and woodworking projects under way in the "playroom," the bright, sunny area will soon be filled with a quilt frame. The quilt is the annual fund-raising project of the York county Society of Farm Women, an organization Mary first attended as a child.

Her mother became a charter member of York Society Group 1 in 1930, with Mary often accompanying her to meetings. After marrying Wayne, she joined Group 4, in which his mother had been a charter member, and to which Mary has now belonged for 50 years. In 1975-76, she was the York County Society president, and she is currently a state Farm Women director.

Though they both enjoy visiting area craft shows for ideas, the Hoffmans have no plans to take their artwork on the show circuit.

"We sell enough things to support our 'habit'," figures Mary. "If we had to keep producing enough to take to shows, it would take the fun out of it."

"And when you have 15 grandchildren, it takes a lot of 'giveaways'," Wayne says with a grin. He and Mary take obvious great pleasure in sharing their skills with the family.

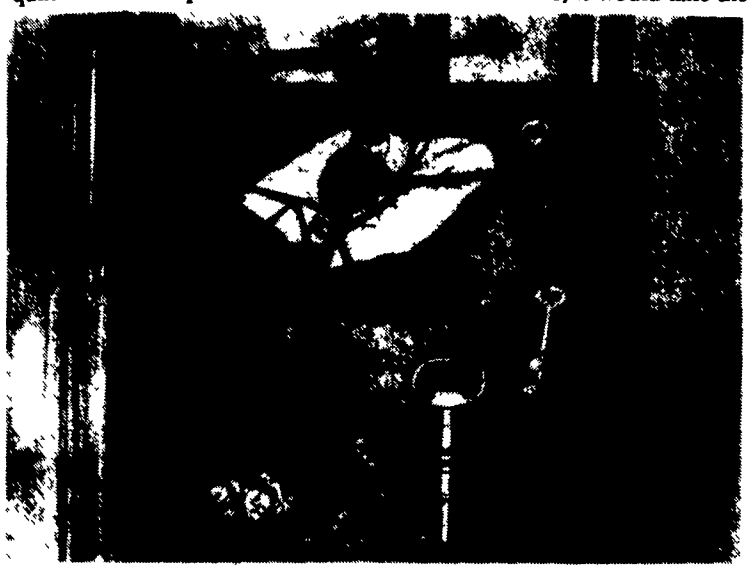
Seven of the nine children live nearby, while one son is in Illinois and a daughter lives in North Carolina. Children and grandchildren, ages 3 to 24, come home frequently, and especially enjoy warm weather family campouts at the Hoffman's camping and picnic spot along the Conewago. Their son, Mike, farms the land and runs beef cattle in the pasture where the family's Hereford cow-calf herd once grazed.

A love of the land and closeness to their family is reflected in the optimistic outlook shared by the Hoffmans.

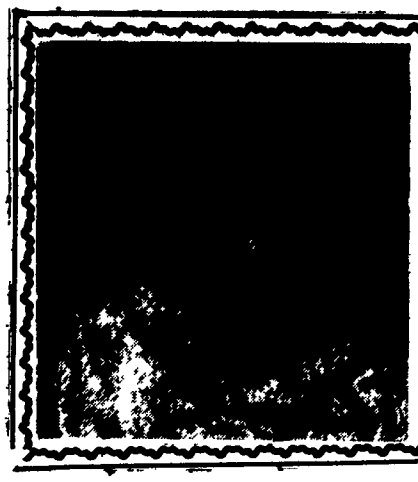
"There are always two sides to every story — you could say we went to housekeeping with old homemade things or that we had handcrafted antiques," she observes.

Such appreciation for handcrafting is apparent thoughout the Hoffman home, from the handcarved loon on the porch to the delicately-stitched quilts in the bedrooms, where more of Mary's paintings brighten the walls.

Especially interested in sharing her love for painting, Mary invites other artists to become members of the Keystone Painters. For information, she may be contacted at 6331 Salem Run Road, Dover, PA, 17315, or phone (717) 292-3724.



The rathole key holder is a whimsical marriage of Mary's painting with Wayne's woodworking. Teethmarks remain on this piece of old granary board riddled by rats; Mary painted a family of raccoons peeking through the holes.



Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Health is such an important thing. When I talk to my children I hear about all the ear infections and colds that the grandchildren have. And, when we talk to our brothers and sisters, we hear about their ailments as they grow older.

Yet despite these things, most people keep on with their usual schedules. The children go to school and the adults go to work. Going for a physical is not one of my favorite things. But, we are told that we should take precautions. Sometimes it seems that older people have no social life except their many visits to the office of their doctor. I definitely shy away from this activity.

Despite complaints our family keeps traveling. One child goes to Texas and another goes to the West Coast in the same week. I never know where my children are on a given day.

My parents knew where their six children were as for many years they all lived in Lancaster County. And, we often visited our former home after we were married. Now our children will only be able to visit us over holidays as they live so far away.

At least we have the telephone to help us keep in touch. My parents had no phone for many years but when they finally got one, my mother found that she really liked it. She had a great fear of using one and she passed this fear on to me so that when I was a student at the Lancaster Business College, I found it difficult to understand a phone conversation — I was SO nervous. Now I too use the telephone every day to keep in touch with our family.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

The idea sounds too good to be true.

A machine you can program with your voice.

Machines ARE getting smarter all the time. Even my beloved computer - which is obsolete by today's supermegabyte measures - knows enough to tell me when I've done something wrong.

"Disc error," it politely corrects when the disc drive is not properly locked in place. Or, "Are you sure you want to erase?" asks the little gnome who puts the letters up on the screen, before obediently deleting data saved in the memory.

Fortunately, it refrains from added comments such as, "You empty-brained lunkhead, you oughta' know better!."

In the last year, I've been reading about technology that will allow the operations of computerized equipment by voice command. (Don't ask me, I don't understand at all how it works.)

Now, it's become reality. Last week I heard a radio commercial promoting a voice-programmable VCR.

"Just tell it to tape the movie on Channel 18 at 7 o'clock on Thursday evening," said the advertisement. And it will.

Like, awesome. Especially if you've ever faced a VCR blinking "12:00.....12:00.....12:00..." while you're trying to figure out how to set it. But just think of the handy possibilities for this technology.

"At 11:30 a.m., turn on to cook for five minutes, off for two, on for five more, off for two, and then finish with a three," you admonish the microwave concerning the meatloaf planned for lunch. No more programming a bunch of settings, anticipating a steaming entree awaiting your return - and finding only a lump of seasoned raw hamburger because a button was punched out of sequence.

How about being able to insert a pair of torn jeans and a patch under the needle of the sewing machine and instructing, "Mend." Think how many less fingers we would skewer on pins in the process. And maybe a floor scrubber that cleans, polishes and buffs, all from a few simple voice commands.

Looking more wishfully into the sci-fi future, just imagine voice-activated chips we could put on the cows.

You could program them something like this: "Go to the buck feeder for a half-hour, then walk to the pasture. Graze and drink unlimiteds amount of time. Rest only in grassy areas. Keep out of all muddy spots. At 3:30, return to the barn and your stall. Make manure only over gutter grates."

Dry cows, awaiting the birth of their calves, could have delay-activation chips which would kick in at the beginning of calving. At that point, the chip would direct the cow to proceed immediately to the calving pen (do not pass go, do ont collect any feed). Her entrance to that area would activate another chip that set off a siren alert at both barn and house.

"Stand still!" is the voice message I'd like to program for calves being sketched for registration. It would help alleviate getting a tail-end view when you intended to sketch the head, or a left side exposure when you were still only half-finished drawing the markings on the right side.

In fact, if a whole penful of playful baby heifers could be voice-activated to all stand still at once, it would end forever the chewed-on elbows, nibbled-at knees and clipboards nudged by ever-curious calves.

Taken to even farther extreme, imagine voice-activating kids to do their chores, finish homework, clean their rooms, enjoy broccoli and lima beans and only watch television on rare occasions. And never punch their siblings.

What about voice-activators for spouses?

C'mon, folks, even science-fiction has it limits.

Search For Granny To Represent Apples

WENATCHEE, Wash. — They're looking for a few good grannies.

To promote a bumper crop of Granny Smith apples, the Washington Apple Commission has started a nationwide search to find a grandmother whose lifestyle personifies the healthful attributes of the state's famous apples.

The first Search For Granny Smith will be coast-to-coast, said the commission's vice president Vicky Scharlau.

"We're looking for grandmothers who are outgoing women, live life to the fullest and are active in their community," Scharlau explained. "We're looking for movers and shakers, as well as cookie bakers."

Scharlau said the success of the search depends totally on the children, grandchildren, spouse or friends of a noteworthy grandma. Those wishing to nominate someone for the Granny Smith search should write, in 100 words or less, why the nominee should be considered and enclose their photo. Nominations should be sent to Granny Smith, P.O. Box 18, Wenatchee, WA 98807, and received by April 16, 1993.

"We set the guidelines of our search to mirror the key attributes of our apples, and allow any grandmother the opportunity to participate," Scharlau said. "Thankfully, the name 'Smith' is widely used. So we could have a Granny Smith from any part of the country or any ethnic group."

Seven grandmothers, and the person who nominated them, will be chosen to participate in the "Granny Finale," to be held May 1 in Washington at the annual Apple Blossom Festival in Wenatchee. Finalists will be interviewed by a board of apple growers and celebrities to pick the national Granny Smith winner, who will be featured on grocery store posters and for the upcoming year. Airfare and trip expenses will be picked up by the Washington Apple Commission.

The guidelines include:

* Nominee must be a grandmother who''s sweet to the core and the apple of someone's eye. They must be hand-picked by their children, grandchildren, spouse or friends to be a Granny Smith nominee.

* Nominee should have "a-peel," exemplifying health and fitness by being able to carry large volumes of grandkid photos wherever she goes.

* Nominations can include a picture of the nominee, but the photo — like Washington Granny Smith apples — must be in good taste.

"Finding a real Granny Smith is something we've wanted to do for some time," Scharlau said. "Youth and beauty are always being celebrated, so it will be nice to recognize the beauty of seniors for a change. It's also a way of honoring our best customers — the 35-and-over crowd buys the most Granny Smith apples."

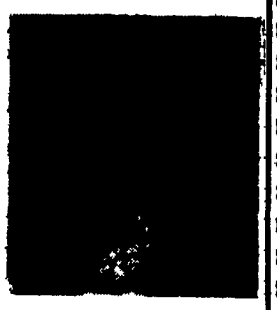
TAKING TIME

by Rebecca Escott

Extension Home Economist



In 1991, more than one million children under the age of five were exposed to potentially poisonous substances according to the American Association of Poison Control Centers (AAPCC). Thirty-one children died. The week of March 21-27 has been designated "National Poison Prevention Week." This year's theme is "Children Act Fast . . . So Do Poisons!"

As I read over the materials for this year's educational efforts, I learned some new information. Did you know that "button" batteries that are often used in watches, calculators and hearing aids can cause poisoning if swallowed? They can cause severe internal burns if they become lodged in someone's intestine or esophagus. Each person who uses these batteries should store the new batteries in a safe place. Wrap the old batteries securely and throw them away.

I think most of us believe that as long as parents take precautions to make their own home poison-proof, that young children are protected. The AAPCC's research breaks that myth. Twenty-three percent of the oral prescription drugs that were ingested accidentally by children under the age of five actually belonged to other people. This happens because youngsters visit homes where no children live — aunts, grandparents, neighbors. The other risky situation is when older persons carry medicines into homes where young children live and play. Have you ever left your purse unattended at a friend's home, when you volunteered at a church nursery or child care program?

Poisonings also happen with household cleaning products. Children can easily tip over a bottle of cleaning liquid or taste some great lemon-smelling product in the time it takes an adult to answer the doorbell or telephone.

Another misconception is that poisonings happen only with young children. While children under the age of five are probably at the most risk because they are investigating and exploring their world by touching and tasting, older adults are potential victims, too. Adults should remember to:

✔Turn on the light at night and put on glasses before taking any medicines. This prevents someone from opening the wrong container.

✔never mix medicines and alcohol. Some cold and cough medicines have alcohol in them. Check with your doctor before combining over-the-counter products with prescriptions.

✔never "borrow" a friend's medicine or take old medication.

All of us should follow some basic precautions. First, store medicines away from other household products like spices or desk supplies. And don't store household chemicals near food products. Keep items in their original containers. For example, don't save lighter fluid in a soft-drink bottle for later use. We should call medicine "medicine" and not "candy." Drug companies have greatly improved the taste of many products. We don't want to confuse the issue for children by presenting the medicine as a treat or something fun.

Finally, post the number of your local Poison Control Center by the phone. In an emergency, be ready to give the expert as much of the following information as possible.

- The victim's age, weight and any existing health conditions.
- The substance involved — was it swallowed, inhaled, splashed on the skin or eyes?
- Any first aid that has been given. (With medicines, call the Center or a physician immediately. For cleaners, follow first aid instructions on the label then make the phone call.)
- Your location and how long it will take you to get to the hospital.

Be part of the solution. Make this week and every week "Poison Prevention Week" in your home.

Couple's Roundtable To Strengthen Relationships

Are you engaged? Dating? Celebrating your 25th wedding anniversary? Remarried? or in a long-term relationship? Are you interested in strengthening that relationship? Then the "Couples' Roundtable" is for you.

Penn State Cooperative Extension and Bethany Counseling Ministry are sponsoring a series of workshops for couples who are interested in enhancing their relationship. The program runs for six weeks, on Mondays, starting April 5 through May 10, from 7 to 9:30 p.m., at Penn State Eastgate Center, 7th and Herr Streets, Harrisburg.

Topics to be covered include: 'Life Goes On" which deals with physical and emotional changes throughout the life cycle; "Effective Communication," and "Here's Hoping You're Coping" — a stress management workshop; Fiancial Management; Myer's Briggs Personality Type Indicator; and sexuality. The final session, "Smiling Through The Years," is an experiential session giving couples techniques and resources to strengthen their relationship throughout a lifetime. The cost of the six-week session is $30 per couple. For more information and to register call the Penn State Cooperative Extension - Dauphin County Office at (717) 921-8803. The registration deadline is Monday, March 29.

Spinach Appeal

Spinach is wonderful used raw in salads and adaptable to many cooked recipes. When choosing fresh spinach, select greens with tender, fresh-looking leaves. The leaves should have a good green color and be free of blemishes. Avoid any that are wilted, crushed, or decayed, or that show signs of insect damage. Stems should be dry or limp.

Store greens refrigerated in a plastic bag or vegetable drawer for three to seven days. Prepare them from storage by first removing any blemished leaves. Separate the leaves and soak them in salty water fro 10 minutes to destory bugs and bacteria. Rinse the leaves in cold running water, rubbing them gently to remove dirt, chemicals, and insecticides.

If you are in a hurry, frozen spinach can be used in cooked recipes. Also, many grocery stores carry fresh spinach that is washed and ready to use.

These recipes are guaranteed to bring raves even if your family ordinarily frowns at spinach.

SPINACH LASAGNA

8 ounces lasagna noodles, cooked and drained
20 ounces frozen chopped spinach, cooked and drained
2 pounds cottage cheese
2 eggs
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley OR 1 teaspoon dried
½ cup butter, softened
Salt, pepper, garlic powder, to taste
1 pound Monterey Jack cheese
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cook noodles according to package directions; drain. Cook spinach according to package directions, drain. Mix cottage cheese, eggs, parsley, butter, salt, pepper, and garlic powder in bowl. Grease lasagna pan or 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Place layer of noodles in pan, followed by layers of cottage cheese mixture, Monterey Jack cheese, spinach, and parmesan cheese. Repeat layers. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Variation: For a less buttery version, omit butter from cottage cheese mixture. After arranging layers, drizzle with about 2 tablespoons melted butter then bake as directed.

SPANAKOPITA
Spinach Pie

2 pounds spinach
1 large onion, finely chopped
¼ cup virgin olive oil
1 cup chopped scallions
½ cup minced fresh parsley
1 tablespoon minced fresh dill
¼ teaspoon freshly ground nutmeg
¾ cup crumbled feta cheese
¾ cup creamed cottage cheese
¼ cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
4 eggs, beaten
12 sheets phyllo pastry
½ cup butter, melted
½ cup vegetable or olive oil

Mix together melted butter and ½ cup vegetable or olive oil.

Remove large stems from spinach leaves and rinse the leaves well.

Chop coarsely, steam above boiling water just until wilted. Drain in a colander, pressing out any liquid with the back of a spoon.

Place the onions and olive oil in a large skillet. Cook over medium heat until the onions are slightly tender. Add the scallions and cook until limp. Remove from heat and stir in parsley, dill, and nutmeg.

To the skillet, add spinach, cheeses, and eggs, stirring gently.

To assemble spanakopita begin by brushing a shallow 9x12-inch baking dish with some of the butter mixture. Fit one sheet of phyllo in the bottom of the dish, letting the edges drape over the rim. Brush with a little of the butter mixture. Repeat with four more sheets.

Spread the spinach filling in the phyllo-lined dish. Top with remaining sheets of pastry, each brushed with butter mixture.

Trim the excess phyllo leaving about an inch around the edge of the baking dish. Roll the edge, making a lip around the top of pie. Chop the phyllo trimmings into flakes and coat with any remaining butter mixture. Sprinkle the flakes over top of the pie.

Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 45 minutes, until puffed and golden. Allow to cool 10 minutes at room temperature before cutting. 8 servings.

Contributor writes, "This is a pie like no other pie. It is high in calcium and fiber, but low fat and no cholesterol, it is not."

Chicken and Spinach Medley is a tasty, low-calorie one-dish meal.

SPINACH PIE

10 bacon slices
¼ cup chopped onion
10-ounces frozen chopped spinach
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon seasoned salt

Cut 6 slices of bacon into small pieces and fry until crisp. Remove and drain. Cook onion in bacon fat until golden brown. Cook spinach as directed on package; drain.

Blend eggs, milk, and salt; add spinach, onion, and bacon. Pour into unbaked 9-inch pie shell. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Cut up remaining 2 slices of bacon into small pieces and fry until crisp. Sprinkle into pie just before serving.

Featured Recipe

Think chicken. Think spinach. Think great taste. The combination is healthy eating at its best.

Chicken provides the complete protein required daily to nourish every cell in the body. Spinach adds a healthy portion of beta carotene as well as vitamins and minerals.

It takes less than 30 minutes to prepare this one-dish meal, which has 267 calories per serving while providing 33.3 grams of protein.

CHICKEN AND SPINACH MEDLEY

4 boneless, skinless broiler-fryer chicken breast halves
1 tablespoon canola oil
1 clove garlic, minced
½ cup low sodium chicken broth
½ cup green pepper, slivers
1 medium onion, cut into thin rings
4-ounces mushroom slices
2 bunches fresh spinach (1½ pounds)
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons grated romano cheese
1 cup fresh bread croutons

In nonstick frypan, place oil and heat to medium temperature. Add minced garlic, stirring to spread evenly in frypan. Arrange chicken in single layer over garlic and cook about 5 minutes; turn and cook 5 minutes more. In large frypan, pour chicken broth and heat on high temperature. Add green pepper, onion, and mushrooms; cook 3 minutes. Add spinach and cook, stirring with other vegetables, about 2 minutes more. Turn off heat under vegetables. Remove chicken from small frypan and cut into strips. Add chicken strips to vegetables in large frypan; stir to mix well. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Remove to serving dish and top with romano cheese and croutons. Makes 4 servings.

Before Buying Consider The Cost To Environment

Color, size, and price are not the only considerations facing consumers in the 1990s. Now, in addition to asking, "Can I afford this?" we also need to ask, "Can the environment afford this?"

From selecting energy-efficient appliances to avoiding phosphate detergents, the choices we make about what to buy impact our environment. Environmental shopping means thinking about the environment when making shopping decisions.

One goal for any shopping expedition is to consider ways of reducing solid waste while meeting our needs. Consider the following:

Packaging — the stuff we open and throw away — accounts for one third of our trash. It is estimated that we generate about one ton of trash per person per year.

While recycling can partially ease the trash problem, it is not a cure-all. We also need to practice source reduction techniques; reducing the amount of garbage we produce in the first place.

Don't just consider if the product container is recyclable or if you can get a similar product with less packaging. Ask yourself if you need the product at all.

Much of what we purchase ends up at the curb waiting to be collected: appliances that break and are not designed to be repaired, purchases we are not satisfied with and so replace, things we do not need and do not want to store, and so on.

Buy what is necessary and what is durable. In the case of appliances, it is often worthwhile to pay a little more to get better quality, instead of buying cheap throw-aways. Remember to keep your receipts and warranties. Return unsatisfactory items and repair broken items.

Here are some other tips for environmentally aware shopping:

- Carry a fold-up shopping bag so you can turn down the paper and plastic bags offered at the store.
- Use sponges and rags instead of paper towels.
- Buy concentrates and dilute them at home.
- Buy in bulk and avoid any unnecessary packaging.
- Select products that minimize toxins and read labels carefully.
- Avoid disposable products and reuse or recycle as much as possible.
- Buy products from or packaged in recycled materials.
- Talk to the store managers where you shop and let them know you want environmentally sound products and recycled products. Remember, they are trying to attract your consumer dollars. They are listening.
- Use 800 numbers to get product information from the manufacturers and to voice your concerns.

Do Kids Know What To Eat?

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) —If you think the average school-age child considers french fries and a soda a balanced meal, you're wrong! American kids have a better idea of what nutrition means than most adults. A recent survey of 400 youngsters aged 5 to 9 years, commissioned by the International Food Information Council, found that 73% of children relate nutrition to foods that are good for you. And 2 of 3 kids agree that eating habits can affect future health. A majority (64%) realize it's "okay to eat foods like ice cream, cookies and chips, but not all the time." Only 10% believe they should be able to eat anything they want. The survey also indicates that young children are able to evaluate the foods they see advertised on television, with 77% understanding that just because a product is advertised on television "doesn't mean they can eat unlimited quantities of it."

It was also found that 65% of kids are tired of hearing about what foods are good or bad for them. "We have to be careful about not teaching the concept of good or bad foods" advises Dairy Council's registered dietitian Althea Zanecosky. This study found that school (81%) and family (70%) are the major sources of nutrition information for this age group. "Parents and teachers need to teach our children how to enjoy food and healthy eating."

To test her theory, Zanecosky, armed with a tape recorder and lots of questions, visited the Whitemarsh Kindergarten class in Montgomery County. Welcomed by the children's teacher, Susan Hope, Althea got some concrete answers from some very willing five year olds.

What do they like to eat?

At the top of their list was pizza, chocolate milk, eggs, macaroni & cheese. And even more basic, do you like to eat. Yes!

"It keeps us strong; we like the way the food tastes." At the bottom of their list can be found the foods they don't like to eat: vinegar, garlic, string beans, mashed potatoes and spinach. The class was divided in half—by those who like to try new foods and those who hate to try new foods.

When asked what mom and/or dad says about the food which is put on their dinner tables—the most common answer was "eat the food, kid!" And most of the children knew that they need lots of food to be healthy—and one child added that food will give them energy for gym.

But are America's health-conscious kids making the grade when their diets are "tested" for nutrient content? The December Journal of the American Dietetic Association reports that children's diets could be better. A recent study of over 4,000 two to 10 year old children found that fat intake has remained the same over a ten-year period. But there's been a decrease in consumption of many essential nutrients, including vitamins A and B12, riboflavin, phosphorus, magnesium, zinc and copper. Over half the children consumed less than their recommended dietary allowance (RDA) for calcium.

Althea Zanecosky explains the gap between knowing and doing. "It's the food parents put on the table that makes or breaks a good diet." According to a similar Gallup survey for adults, parents seem to know less than their kids do about what constitutes healthy eating.

Zanecosky explains that while kids receive information about healthy eating in the classroom, parents have forgotten most of the nutrition basics then learned in school. Perhaps it's time for a refresher course. When moms and dads can't remember how many servings of vegetables they need daily, they should ask their kids to set them straight. Together, parents and children can begin to bridge this gap between knowing what foods are good for you and actually eating them.

QUESTION — A Bedford County reader would like a recipe for Danish (cheese and fruit filled) similar to those made by Sara Lee and one that can be frozen.

QUESTION — S. Jones of Limerick would like a recipe for chocolate chip cookies that are made with shortening instead of butter or margarine. The cookies are very chewy.

QUESTION — Mary Moyer, Leesport, would like recipes for salt raised bread.

QUESTION — Patricia Berry, Newburg, would like an no-cook Easter egg recipe that contains rice crispy cereal and extra crunchy peanut butter.

QUESTION — R. Kenneth Hood, Mount Airy, would like a recipe for fried ice cream.

QUESTION — May Ozinek, Flemington, N.J., wrote that on a recent trip to Florida, she and her husband ate at Shoney's the whole way down and back. At the breakfast buffet, Shoney's serves a delicious sheet cake that is spicy and filled with raisins and chunks of apples. The cake has a crumb topping and is very moist. Does anyone have a recipe?

QUESTION — Gloria Fready, Mount Joy, would like to know how to make French fried sweet potatoes. She tried making them, but they tasted soggy.

QUESTION — Joanne Martin, Stevens, would like a recipe for patty shells that are served with creamed chicken over the shells.

ANSWER — Shirley Martin, Orbisonia, wanted a recipe for cup cheese and other good cheese recipes. Thanks to A. Sauder, Denver, for sending a recipe for cup cheese. Readers, please send recipes for other types of cheese.

Cup Cheese

Pour 3 gallons skimmed milk into a large kettle. Let set in a warm place until thick and pleasantly sour. When thick, stir to break up the curd. Heat to 120 degrees, stirring occasionally. Dump the contents into a cheesecloth bag. Let drain. Squeeze out as much whey as possible then dry the curds by wrapping cheese bag in a towel or tablecloth, squeezing again to get out as much moisture as possible. Curds must be dry and in fine crumbs.

Add:

2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons baking soda

Work salt and baking soda really well into the curds. Let set several hours or overnight. The curds must be packed together before trying to melt them. Melt in top of double boiler, add 5½ cups milk. Stir with a whisk until curds are melted.

Yields approximately 4 pounds or 8 cups cheese.

ANSWER — Thanks to Jennie Coaveach, New Jersey, for sending a recipe for canned pumpkin bread.

Canned Pumpkin Bread

⅔ cup vegetable shortening
2⅔ cups granulated sugar
4 eggs
2 cups canned pumpkin
⅔ cup water
3⅓ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons baking soda
1½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
⅔ cups chopped nuts

In a mixing bowl, combine shortening and sugar. Beat until light and fluffy, about 5 minutes. Add eggs, pumpkin, and water; beat until blended. In a separate bowl, combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, and spices; stir to blend. Stir into pumpkin mixture. Add nuts and blend well. Pour into greased widemouth 1-pint canning jars, filling them less than half full of batter. Place a cookie sheet on oven shelf and set jars on a sheet to bake. Bake at 325 degrees about 45 minutes or until skewer inserted in center comes out clean. Remove jars one at a time from oven. While still hot, clean sealing edge; cover with lid and secure band firmly. Lids should first be scalded in boiling water. The bands can be removed in 24 hours. Makes 8 pints.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know how to make frosted shredded wheat with plain shredded wheat, Sara Piho, East Berlin sent a recipe.

Frosted Shredded Wheat

1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar and vanilla and add enough water or milk until it reaches drizzling consistency. Start with 1 tablespoon liquid. A whole box of plain shredded wheat can be done and stored until ready to eat.

ANSWER — Mrs. Glenn Roller, Spring Grove, wanted a recipe for pumpkin egg custard. Thanks to Lloyd Licktenet, Center Valley, for sending a recipe.

Pumpkin Custard

2 quarts mashed pumpkin
1½ cups sugar
½ cup flour
6 eggs
1 quart milk
Salt and pepper
Cinnamon

Mix ingredients with electric mixer. Pour into pie plate and bake at 375 degrees until firm.

ANSWER — Regarding the recipe for Dancing Snowballs, which appeared in this column, several readers wrote that they did not have very good results with it. The reader, who had submitted it, said that it was an old recipe. According to my understanding, the ingredients in mothballs have changed in recent years and for this reason the recipe no longer works. Sorry for this inconvenience.

ANSWER — B.D. Hutschenreuter, Airville, would like a recipe to make a spice similar to Spatina. Thanks to Rhoda Sauder, York, for sending a recipe that she uses.

Spatina Substitute

1 tablespoon oregano
1 teaspoon parsley
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

SAVORY SAUSAGE AND SPINACH PIE

1 pound sweet Italian-sausage links
6 large eggs
20 ounces frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained
4 cups mozzarella cheese, shredded
⅔ cup ricotta cheese
10- to 11-ounce package pie crust mix

About 2 hours before serving or day ahead:

Remove sausage meat from casings. In 10-inch skillet, cook sausage until well browned, stirring frequently to break up sausage, about 10 minutes. Spoon off fat.

Reserve 1 egg yolk. In large bowl, combine remaining eggs and egg white with sausage, spinach, mozzarella, and ricotta.

Prepare pie crust mix as label directs for 2-crust pie. Divide pastry into 2 pieces, 1 slightly larger; shape each piece into a ball. On lightly floured surface, with floured rolling pin, roll larger ball into 2-inches larger all around than 9-inch pie plate; use to line pie plate. Spoon sausage mixture into pie crust.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Roll remaining pastry ball into 10-inch round. Place pastry over filling. Trim pastry edge, leaving ½ -inch overhang; fold overhang under and press gently all around rim to make stand-up edge. Cut slits in pastry top.

In cup, mix reserved egg yolk with 2 teaspoons water. Brush top of pie with egg-yolk mixture. Reroll scraps; cut to make decorative leaves with egg-yolk mixture. Bake 1¼ hours or until crust is golden.

To serve hot, let pie stand 10 mintues; then cut into wedges. To serve cold, refrigerate pie, uncovered, until well chilled; then cover with foil or plastic wrap and refrigerate again until serving time. Makes 10 main-dish servings. About 470 calories per serving.

S. Stoltzfus

BACON SPINACH PIE

1 unbaked pie shell
3 cups drained spinach, chopped
8 to 10 strips bacon, fried crisp

3 eggs, slightly beaten
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon onion salt

Stir in 2 cups hot milk; pour over spinach, top with 1 cup shredded cheese. Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes or until golden brown.

SPINACH BALLS

10-ounces chopped spinach, thawed and drained
1½ cups herb stuffing mix*
½ onion, chopped
3 eggs, beaten
¼ cup melted butter
¼ cup parmesan cheese
½ tablespoon pepper
¾ teaspoon garlic salt, optional
¼ teaspoon thyme

Makes 24 to 26 balls.

Bake 325 degrees for 20 minutes. These can be made ahead and frozen unbaked.

For Safety's Sake Clean Up The Farm

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Having a clean farm can be a source of satisfaction and pride. More importantly, cleaning up reduces health, fire and injury hazards and makes it easier to do your work.

Where to start? Here are some suggestions from safety specialists and the National Safety Council:

— Check all farm buildings for tripping and fire hazards. Get rid of unnecessary clutter, such as unused tools, obsolete parts and old cans and bottles.

— Repair steps and stairs. Fix or install handrails if wobbly or missing. Provide ample lighting, and keep stairs free of clutter. Tack down loose tread covering or carpeting.

— Clear away dry weeds, brush and trash around buildings to reduce fire hazards.

— Repair fences and gates, livestock pens, ladders—anything that needs fixing that could enhance your safety and efficiency.

— Check all machinery. Replace damaged or missing shielding, faded safety decals and slow-moving-vehicle emblems, and burned-out bulbs.

Repair safety-related components, such as brakes, tires, wipers, exhaust systems and controls, when necessary.

— When repairing machinery, put safety first. Have the proper tools, use quality parts and do it "by the book." If you don't have the know-how, let a professional do the job or show you how to do it.

— When working on buildings or roofs, wear slip-resistant shoes and have a lifeline. Make sure your ladder is securely placed. Watch for overhead power lines.

— Have a place for everything and keep everything in its place when not in use. Make the best use of available storage space; add more if necessary. Often, you can do this with just a little money if you have do-it-yourself skills.

Teach Farm Kids About the Dangers Around Them

Children growing up on a farm may look at the barnyard and outbuildings as one big playground. Unfortunately, that outlook leads to more than 300 deaths and 5,000 serious injuries a year.

Farms are the scene of many potentially dangerous situations that could injure or kill a child. Most accidents involve tractors and other power-driven machinery. Livestock, farm chemicals, manure pits and grain bins are also sources of danger.

Young children do not understand the potential dangers they face on the farm. It's up to their parents to educate and protect them. For example, parents need to teach children not to play in grain bins or around manure storage areas and ponds. If possible these areas should be secured or fenced to make them off-limits to kids. Pastures are not play areas Electric fences can cause shock and injury. Bulls and other grazing animals may attack and harm small children when disturbed. Unsupervised children could dash behind a tractor that's backing up or climb into a truck that's being unloaded. They might sip pipeline cleaner or other chemicals, especially those stored improperly.

All farm chemicals should be stored in their original containers in a locked cabinet or shed. When a container is empty, rinse it thoroughly and dispose of it as soon as possible.

Older children also are at risk if they are allowed to do a job before they are physically and emotionally able to handle it. Farmers have been known to add wooden blocks to the tractor's pedals so their 9- or 10-year-old child can drive the equipment. That's just asking for trouble.

Older children who will be operating tractors should wear proper protective gear and attend tractor safety classes. Parents also must enforce the no-riders rule, not allowing anyone—adult or child—who drives a tractor to carry passengers.

Remember, children learn by example. If you take safety shortcuts, that's how they'll think the job should be done. If you play it safe, your children will, too.

Free Admission To Landis Valley Museum

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — State-owned museums throughout Pennsylvania are opening their doors free of charge to all visitors on Sunday, March 14, from noon to 5 p.m.. Landis Valley, the largest Pennsylvania German museum of rural life, is one of the participants. This special day is in honor of William Penn receiving the charter for Pennsylvania from King Charles II in 1681.

Rated "exceptional" by AAA, Landis Valley will offer a variety of demonstrations—from leather working and gunsmithing to spinning, printing, tinsmithing, punched paper embroidery and more. Tasty food will be for sale at the 1850s Landis Valley Hotel, located in the heart of the museum. The outstanding museum store, the Weathervane, with its excellent selection of books, hand-crafted wares and selections for gifts, will also be open. Visitors will be able to tour over 15 buildings, including farmsteads with animals, a tavern and several craft shops.

Landis Valley is located 2.5 miles NE of Lancaster on Rt. 272/Oregon Pike, a marked exit off both Rt. 30 and Rt. 222. Individuals with disabilities who need special assistance or accommodation should call in advance to discuss their needs. Landis Valley is operated by the Pa Historical & Museum Commission with assistance from the Landis Valley Associates. For information, call (717) 569-0402.

AGCO ALLIS
8600 SERIES TRACTORS

36 SPEED CHOICES

AGCO Allis 8600 Series tractors give you 36 speed choices, an electronic engine speed governor and many other quality performance features, as well as a comprehensive 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Speed choices for all conditions. The standard synchropower transmission offers 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds. An optional power Hi-Lo transmission boosts that to 36 speeds both forward and reverse. Both 8600 Series models are AWD with planetary final drive, and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch.
- The air- and oil-cooled engine advantage. The 8600 Series tractors feature the high-output, 6-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engine that eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. The 8610 model has a 103 PTO hp engine with a 22% torque rise and the 8630 model has a 120 PTO hp turbocharged engine with a 30% torque rise.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and an electrohydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch The 3-point hitch comes standard with telescopic stabilizers: Category II/I on the 8610; Category III/II on the 8630. Optional telescopic lower links are available.
- Quality performance features. The 8600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic steering, a tilt-telescope steering wheel and hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes on all four wheels for 40% better braking. These models also have electrohydraulically-actuated rear and front differential locks that an operator can manually disengage for tighter turns.

To learn about all the quality features of the 8600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

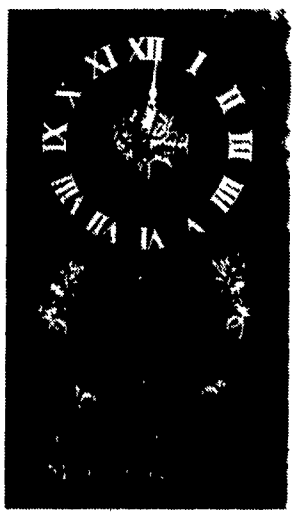
A Gift of Genuine Slate



Are you in the need of a new and truly memorable wedding gift idea this year? Consider a clock made of genuine Pennsylvania slate handcrafted at the Capozzolo Brothers Slate Company. The Capozzolo Brothers are among the few who actually practice the time honored tradition of slate mining and they take great pride in creating their many gifts of slate. The stone used to create these slate gifts is mined at their quarry site nearby the famous old slate mining village of Bangor, Pa.

The wedding clock pictured in this add measures 10" x 18". It features a clock dial and poetic wedding verse imprinted in bright gold. Its most distinctive characteristic, however, is that the names and wedding date of the couple to be married is carved directly into the stone. This handsome clock is sure to become a most favored and cherished gift for it will be used many times each day. The foreverness of a slate carving will also symbolize the permanence of the marriage itself.

A simple double AA battery keeps this U.S. made, battery operated clock movement running smoothly for well over a year. Since no outlet is needed it can be hung anywhere within the home. This clock will also make a lovely anniversary gift

Lititz Fourth Graders Watch Growing Chicks Rock 'N Roll

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — Did you know that a growing chick can "rock 'n roll" inside an egg?

Just ask Katelyn Williams, 10, in the fourth grade at Lititz Elementary. She'll tell you. If you hold an incubated egg to a real strong source of light, you can see it move. Often you can see its heart beating. You can see veins.

You can even see it move around so fast that it looks like it's rock 'n rolling, said Katelyn.

For the past several weeks, Mr. Jerry McKonly's fourth grade class at Lititz Elementary School has been learning the science called "embryology." Embryology is a branch of biology that looks into what makes an embryo, or egg, start, develop, grow, and finally hatch. It's one of the projects supported by the Lancaster 4-H program, which celebrates Pennsylvania 4-H Week next week.

Part of learning embryology involves taking 20-day eggs, incubating them (keeping them warm in a special growing box), turning them at the right times, and preparing for the day when the little chicks break through the eggshell and start their life as baby chicks.

"Embryology teaches the kids just how fragile life is," said McKonly. The fourth grade teacher said that, recently, because of an error in keeping the temperature monitored, the class lost a "hatch."

"The kids were just devastated," said McKonly. But new eggs were brought in early this week and put in the incubator.

In the project, coordinated through the county 4-H program, 100 students in four classes are involved. The students have to keep records of the eggs, when they were brought in, the temperatures in the incubator, when they were moved, and other items. Two students are assigned to one egg — and they mark the egg on one side with a name. The other side is marked with a few dots. McKonly said this method helps in keeping track of how the egg is turned.

A first batch of eggs hatched recently. The chicks were put on a special feed supplied by the county 4-H program.

The county 4-H also supplies a video which talks about the 4-H program and how kids can get involved.

The students also study posters and other learning materials that explain the components of an egg, how the egg develops, and all the biological processes involved until the egg is hatched. Also, the fourth graders are quizzed on what they learn. They often go on field trips — last year they toured Sauder's Egg Plant and visited a nearby layer farm.

McKonly said many of the things he learned also for the first time, when the project began, about exactly what makes up the egg.

One of the "tests" the class conducted on the eggs was the candling process. A light is beamed through the egg and the students look inside to see the chick growing.

Keeping track of which bird is which is easy, with the names on the sides of the eggs. But once the chicks hatch, the students devised a way to keep track of the chicks, which are special to them.

For instance, Emmitt Smith, you know, named after the Cowboy, has a red mark on its leg. Valentine has a black mark. And Fuzz Ball has a blue mark.

"There's a special way to hold them, though," said Monica Kline, who delicately held up Fuzz Ball for all to see.

Lititz fourth graders Andrew Hess, 9; Katelyn Williams, 10; and Nolan Wealand, 9 "candle" the egg with the help of teacher Mr. Jerry McKonly.

'Entertaining Is Something I Can Do'

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

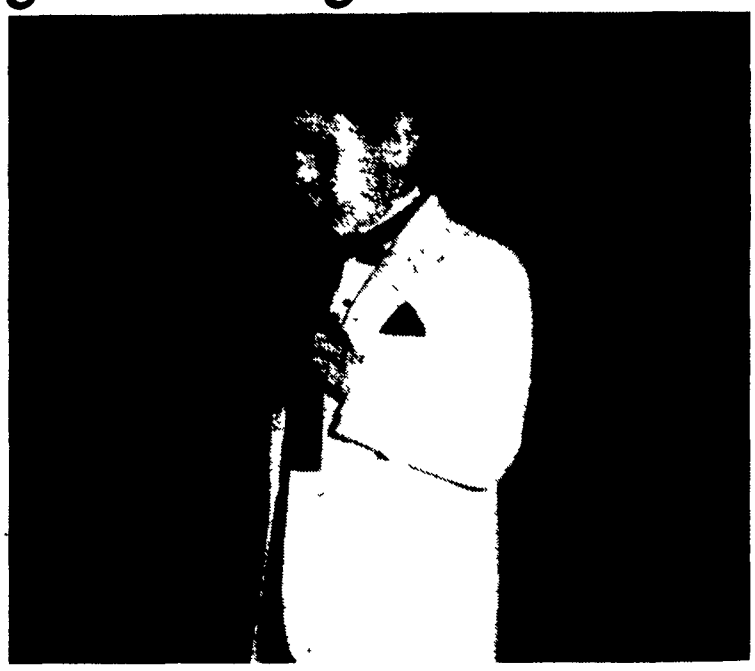
EVERETT (Bedford Co.) — Nine-year-old Matthew Volbrecht has been wowing audiences all over Bedford County with his outstanding singing voice.

As most children have learned, learning the words to a song is not always easy. It usually requires a great deal of concentration, reading, rereading, singing, and resinging until the entire song is memorized.

But the task is even more difficult for Matthew. He cannot pick up a paper and learn the words because he is blind.

Matthew likes to copy such stars as Barbara Streisand, because, he said, "As young as I am, her voice range is about the same as mine."

Several times, Matthew has appeared on the Al Albert Show, a local television show produced in Philadelphia. "They always tell me I am the best singer they have," he said, smiling.



Matthew Volbrecht performs at the Bedford Co. extension banquet.

At home in Bedford County, Matthew has appeared at social functions all over the county. He sings for fund-raising events and was the special guest at the Bedford County extension banquet held recently at the Bedford Church of the Brethren.

This young man also plays the piano and organ, but says he doesn't do it as a part of his entertaining act as yet, because, "I still can't reach the pedals," he said.

A third grade student at Everett Elementary, Matthew is an honor student and enjoys playing with other children when possible. "Being blind leaves out a lot of games children normally play," says his mother.

A lot of his schoolwork is done on the computer using a special program designed for those who do not have sight.

This past summer, Matthew cut his own singing tape which he sells at the functions where he entertains.

"All of the money is put into a trust fund for me and I will eventually use it to study music in college," Matthew said.

He does not have a fee for his entertaining, but said, "Many of the people choose to give me something and I am always quite grateful."

Matthew was not always blind. At the age of three, he developed a rare condition which caused the retina (the back of the eye) to crumble and fall apart. "It fell apart just like a piece of paper," his mother said.

The retina would act much like a movie screen. What we see is projected there and is transposed to our brains, causing us to see. There are no operations in 1993 that would help Matthew.

Matthew thinks he might like to continue being a musical entertainer when he grows up. "There aren't a lot of things a blind person can do," he said. "Entertaining is something I can do."

Lake Farmpark To Hold Food, Fitness Fest

KIRTLAND, Ohio — Sample honey, string cheese, yogurt, bean soup, peanut butter, vegetables, tangelos, apples, grapes, eight-grain bread, sprouted wheat bagels, pancakes, biscuits, corn bread and rye bread at Farmpark's second annual Food and Fitness Fest, March 20 and 21, from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. With the price of Farmpark admission, visitors to the Food and Fitness Fest can sample delicious foods that contribute to a healthy diet and can participate in a variety of fitness activities.

"In 1992, the United States Department of Agriculture approved the use of the food guide pyramid as a healthy, life-long guide to good eating," said Laura Tradowsky, registered dietitian and food education specialist for Lake Farmpark. "Food-tasting offered at the Food and Fitness Fest follows the pattern of the food guide pyramid. Registered dietitians will be on hand to explain how any food you like can be part of a healthy diet, based on the pyramid."

Activities at the Food and Fitness Fest include fitness testing by the Lake County YMCA, a ropes course display by Red Oak Camp and Fuel for Fitness: an introduction to Lake Metroparks' new nutrition and fitness program, sponsored by The National Recreation and Park Association and The Sugar Association.

All regular Farmpark offerings are available with the price of admission to the Food and Fitness Fest. Take a horse-drawn wagon ride, milk a cow, see more than 60 breeds of livestock, ramble in the children's maze, eat at the Farmpark Calf-A and shop in the Horse of a Different Color Gift Shop.

General Farmpark admission applies: seniors — $4, adults — $5, youth ages 2-11 — $3.50, children 0-1 — free. Pre-scheduled group rates are available.

Lake Farmpark is open 9 a.m.-5 p.m. daily except Mondays in March. Farmpark is located at 8800 Chardon Road in Kirtland — just 10 minutes from I-90. Take Rt. 306 south to Rt. 6 (Chardon Road), turn left (east) and drive one mile to Lake Farmpark.

Food For Profit

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — "Food for Profit," a two-evening workshop series, offered by Penn State Cooperative Extension from 7 to 10 p.m. on March 16 and 23 at the Lancaster Farm & Home Center. This workshop provides basic information for starting a small bakery, herb or food product business. Cost for both sessions is $20 per person. For details or to make reservations, call (717) 394-6851.

Put Baking Skills To Test

KIRTLAND, Ohio — Put your baking skills to the test at Farmpark's Food and Fitness Fest on Saturday, March 20. Enter these Muffin Mania categories:

- best muffin Baked by a woman,
- best muffin baked by a child 12 years and younger,
- best muffin baked by a man,
- best colossal muffin,
- best muffin with a recipe within the U.S. Dietary Guidelines (1990),
- best muffin baked by a school group (limit four students per group), and
- most marvelous muffin (this category judged from winners of all other categories).

"This is the second year for the Muffin Mania contest. We plan to have as much fun as we did last year when 35 entries competed for ribbons and Farmpark passes," said Laura Tradowsky, registered dietitian and Farmpark food education specialist.

All entrants to the Muffin Mania contest are really winners, because each baker is admitted to the Food and Fitness Fest free on Saturday. Besides the passes and ribbons, this year's winner of the Most Marvelous Muffin category will also win four tickets to a Cleveland Indians game.

4-H Builds Leadership

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — What do popcorn magnate Orville Redenbacher, singer Reba McEntire, baseball star Johnny Bench, Ford Motor Company chairman Harold Poling, and Vice President Albert Gore, Jr., have in common?

All of these leaders were 4-H members.

During Pennsylvania 4-H Week, March 15-21, kids and parents can learn more about the range of opportunities available through 4-H programs.

Youth in 4-H learn and grow by completing projects in activities they're interested in, ranging from archery to woodworking. "Along with practical skills, 4-H'ers acquire good work habits, responsibility, business skills, cooperation and sportsmanship," says Dr. Robert Lewis, professor of 4-H and youth development in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"By setting goals and making plans to reach them, 4-H'ers learn to make decisions and use time efficiently. In the course of each activity, they gain experience in public speaking by demonstrating their new skills and giving oral reports to their clubs.

"4-H not only helps youth grow personally, but also prepares them to help lead their communities," Lewis says, "It's hard for young people to develop leadership skills if they never get to lead. 4-H provides opportunities for them to practice being leaders in a variety of situations."

Each 4-H club elects officers who run meetings. These officers gain experience in public speaking, planning, conducting parliamentary procedures and other aspects of leadership. Seeing older youth taking the lead inspires younger 4-H members to become officers themselves. As activities and events are planned, younger members can practice leading by serving on committees.

As they master new skills, club members between the ages of 13 and 19 can become teen leaders, helping younger 4-H'ers with projects and activities, giving demonstrations and one-on-one assistance where necessary.

"4-H also prepares youth for leadership by helping them understand how government works," says Lewis. "Members can take projects that explore government and politics at the local, regional, state and national levels. Many counties also have 4-H councils, made up of youth representatives that offer advice and guidance to adult 4-H leaders."

Since the late 1970s, Pennsylvania 4-H Week has marked the start of the new 4-H program year. In early March, local 4-H clubs enroll new members and prepare for the rest of the year. 4-H Week gives members a chance to celebrate and let others know what 4-H has to offer.

Volunteers Build 4-H Organization

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Millie Love of Blair County has made working with youngsters a way of life. She has been a 4-H volunteer for more than 39 years.

"I enjoy working with people, especially young ones," says Love. "They're eager to learn, and they're always entertaining to be around. To be at it as long as I have, you have to like it!"

Love is one of more than half a million adult volunteer leaders who work with 4-H youth nationally. These volunteers take youngsters on hikes, shuttle them to events, and share their interests. They teach kids how to run small businesses, raise animals and organize neighborhood cleanup projects.

"4-H clubs rely on adult volunteers for expertise, supervision and guidance," says Dr. Robert Lewis, professor of 4-H and youth development and state volunteer leadership coordinator in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Without them, 4-H wouldn't be able to offer such a wide range of youth programs.

"The estimated value of volunteer time and out-of-pocket expenses is about $1.1 billion. Volunteers donate many hours each year to teach and prepare for club meetings. They drive an average of 300 to 400 miles for 4-H in their own cars and spend $40 to $60 annually on teaching materials."

Most volunteers are either parents of 4-H'ers or former 4-H members. Others just enjoy working with kids. "These volunteers are essential, not only because they help us make the most of scarce resources, but also because they are great role models for 4-H'ers," says Lewis. "They teach youth to get involved by being involved themselves."

People with limited time don't have to lead a club themselves to support 4-H. Some adult leaders have meetings in their homes or provide transportation to meetings and events. Others help select and carry out activities and talk to people in the community about 4-H.

"The primary qualification is that they enjoy working with young people," says Lewis. "The relationship the kids develop with their adult leader is more important than the expertise they gain."

Pennsylvania 4-H week takes place March 15-21 this year. 4-H in Pennsylvania is coordinated by Penn State Cooperative Extension through the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is open to all youths between the ages of 8 and 19, regardless of race, color, religion, sex, national origin or disability. If you are interested in enrolling your child in 4-H or becoming and adult 4-H volunteer, contact your county cooperative extension office.

4-H Shooting Sports Teach Safety, Sportsmanship

UNIVERSITY PARK (Center Co.) — With an estimated 200 million firearms in homes in the United States, it's more important than ever to teach youth about gun safety, says Earle Robbins, Tioga County extension agent and state shooting sports coordinator for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

"many shooting deaths are accidental," says Robbins. "Teaching youth about gun and archery safety can save lives. This is the primary emphasis in all 4-H shooting sports programs."

About 100,000 youth in 33 states are enrolled in 4-H archery, air pistol, air rifle, .22 rifle, black powder rifle and shotgun sports. In Pennsylvania, about 1,715 boys and 496 girls participate in 4-H shooting activities.

Robbins works with 4-H'ers ages 8 through 19 in the shooting sports program. He also is a Pennsylvania Game Commission hunter-trapper education instructor and a National Rifle Association training counselor, certif/ing instructors in shooting spor s.

"Youngsters in the p'ogram learn to always be aware c. people around them when they're shooting and to treat every gun as though it is loaded," says Robbins. "They learn to always point guns and archery equipment in a safe direction and to be sure of their targets and backstops before releasing the arrow or pulling the trigger."

In addition, participants learn about wildlife habitats and natural resource conservation. "Some of our 4-H'ers get involved in hunting, so we emphasize ethical hunting practices and respect for nature," says Robbins.

4-H'ers in the shooting sports program also can participate in county, regional and state competitions. After graduating from the program, they can become one of the nation's 10,000 adult volunteer instructors.

Turf Scientist Offers Advice On Lawn Care

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you want an attractive lawn, spring is the time to work on it. But make sure you're carrying out the appropriate lawn care practices for the season, says a Penn State turfgrass scientist.

"Spring is a good time to fertilize and control certain weeds," says Dr. Peter Landschoot, assistant professor of turfgrass science in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "Other lawn care practices, such as dethatching, are best delayed until late summer or early fall."

Weed Control

"The first step in weed control is to develop a dense turf," says Landschoot. "If this fails to prevent weed infestation, herbicides can help."

Annual grass weeds such as crabgrass can be controlled by applying preemergence herbicides before weeds germinate in early to mid-spring. Some preemergence herbicides are coated on fertilizers so you can fertilize and control weeds in one operation. Suggested dates for applications in Pennsylvania are: Southeastern counties - March 15 to April 15; Northern tier and high altitude counties - April 20 to May 20; Other counties - April 1 to May 1.

"If you have too many weeds to remove by hand, you can control certain broadleaf weeds such as dandelions and ground ivy with broadleaf herbicides," says Landschoot. "It's important to correctly identify the weeds, select the herbicide that provides the best control and apply it only when weeds are visible and actively growing."

Fertilization

"Fertilization does more to improve and maintain turf quality than any other lawn care practice," he says. "Grass normally needs more nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium than the soil can supply."

In most cases, grass needs two parts nitrogen to one part phosphorus and one part potassium. You can meet these requirements by applying a 10-6-4 fertilizer having 35 percent or more of the total nitrogen as water insoluble nitrogen (WIN) or controlled release nitrogen (CRN).

"Make the first application at the rate of 15 pounds of 10-6-4 fertilizer per 1,000 square feet in mid- to late spring," says Landschoot. "Apply the second at 15 to 20 pounds in late summer or early fall."

The only way to determine exactly how much phosphate and potassium turf requires is from a soil test. Mailing kits for a Penn State soil test may be obtained for a nominal fee from the cooperative extension office in your county.

Liming

Most turfgrasses prefer a soil pH ranging from 6.2 to 7.0. If your soil is too acid (below 6.0) for proper turfgrass growth, apply lime in early spring, fall or late winter. "Rain and snow, combined with freezing and thawing of the ground, help to work the limestone into the soil," says Landschoot. " A soil test will tell you how much lime to apply."

Seeding

Soils may be too wet in spring to establish a new lawn from seed. Late summer to early fall usually is the best time to establish a new lawn because of drier soil and reduced weed competition. New grass also will have two cool growing seasons — fall and spring — before encountering its first period of heat stress.

Overseeding

To repair thin turf or to fill in small patches of bare soil, overseed following aeration (six to eight passes over the lawn), dethatching or by using a disk-type seeder that drops seed into slits in the soil. "Make sure the seed comes into contact with the soil and has space to germinate and develop," he says.

Aeration

Aeration is the process of removing plugs of soil from the turf, creating an artificial system of large pores which carry moisture and nutrients into the soil. Aeration alleviates soil compaction and reduces thatch. It does not have to be performed every year.

Aerate your lawn when the soil is compacted and the thatch layer is thick. Aerate during cool weather (early to mid-spring or late summer to early fall) so that the grass recovers quickly. Adequate moisture is necessary for the aerator tines to penetrate the turf and remove the plugs. The plugs can be broken apart once they have dried.

"If you already have applied a preemergence herbicide, wait until early fall to aerate, as the practice can reduce the effectiveness of the herbicide," says Landschoot.

Longwood Gardens

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Longwood Gardens continues its program of free gardening demonstrations with a spring program of six presentations by Longwood experts on a variety of seasonal gardening techniques. The spring series includes "How to Prune Grapes" on March 10, "How to Prune Roses" on March 24, "How to Divide Perennials" on April 14, "How to Plant Early Vegetables" on April 28, "How to Plant a Container Garden" on May 12, and "How to Prune Azaleas" on May 19. The demonstrations coincide with home gardening schedules and are presented by Longwood's gardeners. Participants will observe the practical how-to's of gardening from the experts in time to apply the techniques at home. All sessions begin at 2:30 pm.

The series begins with a March 10 demonstration on pruning grapes to establish structure and increase yield. On March 24 rose growers will get an early look at pruning techniques for additional blooms and disease prevention. Techniques for dividing perennials to increase vigor as well as provide additional plants will be

Cook's Question

Basic Cookie Mix

9 cups all-purpose flour
½ cup double-acting baking powder
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
4½ cups sugar
2 cups shortening

Drop Cookies

4 cups mix
⅓ cup milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix until well blended. Drop by tablespoonful on greased cookie sheet. Flatten slightly. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 dozen.

Variations:

Add ½ cup chocolate chunks OR
½ cup chopped nuts, dates, or raisins OR
1 tablespoon grated orange rind and ½ cup chopped dates and raisins.

Oatmeal Cookies

4 cups mix
½ cup milk
1 egg
1 cup quick oats
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped nuts

Mix first 5 ingredients until well blended. Add raisins and nuts. Drop by tablespoonful on greased cookie sheet. Bake in 375 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 dozen.

Frosted Almond Cookies

Substitute almond extract for vanilla in drop cookies and bake as directed.

Frosting:

2 cups confectioner's sugar
4 tablespoons baking cocoa
4 tablespoons hot water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Almond halves, blanched

Combine sugar and baking cocoa. Add water and vanilla. Put about 1 teaspoonful on each cookie with an almond half in the center. Bake in 375 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 dozen.

4-H'ers Sharpen Speaking Skills Through Dale Carnegie Course

UNIVERSITY PARK (Center Co.) — 4-H members have many opportunities to acquire abilities they can use throughout their lives. Pennsylvania 4-H'ers can sharpen their public speaking skills by participating in one of the nation's leading communication workshops at a reduced cost.

"Through a cooperative arrangement with the Dale Carnegie Program, Pennsylvania 4-H'ers have a unique chance to get experience and confidence in public speaking," says Dr. Robert Lewis, professor of 4-H and youth development in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "The Dale Carnegie Course is offered through 4-H in different regions of Pennsylvania several times each year."

Building on techniques introduced in Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People," the 14-week course helps participants develop confidence, express themselves clearly, maintain poise under pressure and motivate themselves and others.

The class meets once each week. Participants learn communication skills during the session, then apply the new skills during the rest of the week for homework. Each participant addresses the class at least once each week, gaining practice in public speaking in a friendly, supportive atmosphere.

"I took the course myself, and it was one of the best classes I've ever attended," Lewis says. "It's an excellent way for young people to improve their communication skills. Through 4-H, teens have a chance to take the course at a reduced cost."

After a trial run in 1987, a sponsorship arrangement between Penn State and the Dale Carnegie program brought the price within reach of 4-H'ers. Over the past five years, more than 350 youth from across the state have completed the course.

For more information about the course's availability through 4-H, contact your county's Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

You can learn about other opportunities in 4-H during Pennsylvania 4-H Week, March 15-21. Since the late 1970s, the event has marked the start of the new 4-H program year.

"In early March, local 4-H clubs enroll new members and gear up for the rest of the year," says Dr. Anne Heinsohn, associate professor of extension education. "Pennsylvania 4-H Week gives members a chance to celebrate and let others know about what 4-H has to offer."

lans Gardening Demonstrations

the topic on April 14. Early spring vegetables such as cabbage, broccoli, and spinach will be discussed on April 28. Soil mixes, pots, and planting combinations to create beautiful gardens in containers will be explored on May 12. On May 19 techniques to properly prune and rejuvenate azaleas will be demonstrated.

The demonstrations are free with admission to the Gardens and reservations are not necessary.

Longwood Gardens is open daily from 9 am - 5 pm (6 pm April - October). Admission is $10 for adults, $2 for children ages 6-14, and free for children under age 6. The Gardens are located on US Route 1, three miles northeast of Kennett Square, PA. For more information, telephone (215) 388-6742.

Teens Wanted For Conservation School

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — If you are between the ages of 14 and 16 and are looking to further your understanding of conservation and environmental stewardship, then you should consider attending the 1993 Lancaster County Youth Conservation School. Now in its 15th year of operation, the school is a joint effort between the Lancaster County Conservation District, the Federated Sportsmen of Lancaster County, and local environmental organizations.

The resident school will be held July 25-31, at the Northern Lancaster Game and Fish Protection Association grounds. Sponsorships are available. For more information contact Nevin Greiner at the Lancaster Conservation District office (717) 299-5361.

ANSWER — Carol Grove, Sommerville, Va., wanted a cake recipe using applesauce in place of vegetable oil. Also, Carla Lea Histand, N. Newton, Kan., wanted recipes that use applesauce as a main ingredient or as the primary sweetener. Thanks to Florence Martin, Milton; Tina Forry, Quentin; and Peg Koser, Lancaster; Barbara Muir-Darby, and many others for sending recipes. Tina writes that she substitutes applesauce for every cake recipe that lists vegetable oil as an ingredient. She, Barbara, and Rose wrote that you can call 1-800-BAKE-LITE for recipes using Mott's applesauce, which is fat and cholesterol free with only 50 calories per 4 ounce serving. According to Mott's, you can substitute natural applesauce for an equal amount of oil in yellow or white packaged cake mixes and follow package directions. It's that easy to save 72 grams of fat and 607 calories per cake. Here are a few recipes.

Black Magic Cake

2 cups sugar
1¾ cup flour
¾ cup cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup strong black coffee or 2 teaspoons powdered instant coffee plus 1 cup boiling water
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk
½ cup applesauce
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour 13x9-inch baking pan or two 9-inch round. In large mixing bowl, blend sugar, flour, cocoa, baking soda, baking powder, and salt. Add eggs coffee, milk, applesauce, and vanilla; beat on medium speed for 2 minutes (batter will be thin). Pour into pans. Bake 30 to 35 minutes for round pans, 35 to 40 minutes for rectangular pans.

Chocolate Applesauce Cake

1½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup margarine
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups applesauce
2 cups flour
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda

Beat eggs, add sugar, margarine, and salt; beat well. Sift together dry ingredients; add to egg mixture. Add applesauce and beat well. Pour into cake pan.

Topping:
1 cup chocolate chips
3 tablespoons confectioner's sugar
½ cup chopped nuts

Sprinkle chocolate chips, confectioner's sugar, and walnuts on top of batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean.

Florence writes that she prefers to use cooked, mashed pumpkin in place of applesauce, which works just as well.

Pumpkin Cake

Beat:
4 eggs
1⅔ cups sugar
1 cup applesauce
2 cups pumpkin

Beat until light and fluffy. Add:
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda

Beat well. Bake in 13x9-inch ungreased pan for 25 to 30 minutes. It tastes great unfrosted, but you may frost with the following.

Icing:
3-ounces cream cheese, softened
½ cup butter, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups confectioner's sugar

Childhood, Farm, Church Impact Joan Hershey's Life

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Things are not always what they appear to be.

Look at Joan Hershey. Because she is an active farm wife on a 124-acre Elizabethtown farm and a board member of several agriculture organizations, many are surprised to learn that Joan grew up in the city. As a gracious hostess of the attractive farm house filled with family heirlooms, many refinished by Joan, she would appear to have little time for other duties. But, Joan maintains leadership in local, national, and international church affairs and is a renowned speaker for many agriculture and church events.

Even Joan's name is pronounced differently than it appears. Called "Joanne," she appears to be sunny, confident, and a take charge person who is not afraid of anything.

"But that wasn't always true," said Joan. "I always had an overactive fear."

That was until 1974, when just two days after Mother's Day, Joan said that every thing changed.

That was the day, she prayed that God would remove the constant fear of "what ifs" that often kept her from joyfully living each moment.

It was also the day that her 14-year-old son Steve was severely injured, hemorrhaging from a damaged kidney.

In the weeks ahead, the threat of death, of permanent injury, and of financial ruin hung over the family, for they had no health insurance.

But to Joan's amazement, she felt an undescribable peace even when her son's kidney needed to be removed two months later.

Joan is convinced that those weeks would have been filled with constant agony of fear if she had not prayed that little prayer of relinquishment.

Another surprise for her was to hear the doctors say that Steve had been born with a hydronephrotic kidney. If he had not been injured and the kidney removed, he might have died suddenly or the kidney deformity could have destroyed his other kidney.

"So the accident was really a blessing in disguise," Joan said.

The operation was successful, the hospital bills paid from community fundraisers, fear conquered, and Joan's faith secured.

Since that time, Joan said, "I have not been crippled by fear like I would have been before I prayed that prayer."

It is not that she has not had plenty of things to worry about.

In fact, within a year of her son's injury, Joan's husband suffered hemorrhaging behind his eye when a nail from an electric nailer ricocheted and hit his eye, and her daughter was beat up by school bullies and was terrified of going to school for a year.

"Cancer has not escaped our family; Harry's father was killed in a car accident; we lost our birds during the Avian Influenza, and our chicken house went down when we had 7½ -inches of rain within 1½ hours," Joan said.

But those experiences only made Joan stronger. She said, "I'm not afraid of tomorrow, I've seen yesterday, and I'm in love with today."

Because she is aware of how much fear can rob people from enjoying life, Joan wants to help others conquer fear. For that reason, she commits herself to inspirational and motivational speaking and involvement in many church offices at the local, national, and international levels. Her involvement has taken her across the U.S. and to Korea.

Joan and her husband serve as deacon and deaconess of the Florin Church of the Brethren. She teaches a married young adult Sunday School class, is on a local board ministry commission, a district board, church development, Korean advisory committee, gifts discernment and structure team, moderator of the chair steering committee, evangelism director, and numerous related committees.

Joan is a charter member of Farm Women Society 26. She joined about 25 years ago. In addition to leadership in Society 26, Joan also has been county secretary and president.

After completing a term as Lancaster County Farm Women president, Joan published a book, Happiness, Hollyhocks, and Heaven, in appreciation for the farm women members. The book, which is in its third printing, is based on the saying that happiness, hollyhocks, and a touch of heaven are three special gifts that Farm Women freely give. The book includes Joan's poems, wise sayings, and favorite recipes.

The Hersheys are uncertain when their farm house was built, but it was owned by Simeon Cameron, Sec. of War under President Abraham Lincoln. The house has had two additions and its spaciousness allows Joan to entertain large groups.

Joan said that her childhood had a large impact on her involvement in church and community.

"When I grew up, it wasn't a question on whether or not we go to church. We went. As a teen-ager, she spoke on Youth Sunday, participated in district youth cabinet, and in national youth conferences. She was active in plays, choir, and other activities.

During her childhood, Joan was encouraged to memorize poetry and expected to recite it at family reunions.

"I didn't exactly love that," said Joan. But she believes that reciting poetry developed her public speaking ability and influenced her love for poetry, which she began writing in later years.

A city girl, daughter of a chiropractor, Joan eased into farm life as a 19-year-old bride of Harry Hershey.

They settled on the farm where they still live. The farm is one of nine farms originally belonging to Simeon Cameron, who was the Secretary of War under President Abraham Lincoln. Maple trees line the road and the long lane leading into the Hersheys' 124-acre farm that borders Joan's husband's home farm.

The Hersheys have 172 head of steers and 110,000 layers in partnership with her husband's brother John.

When first married, Joan learned to bale, fill silo, and help with tobacco.

I had a wonderful mother-in-law who made my transition from city to farm easy," Joan said.

Joan no longer works daily on the farm, but she does keep the farm records on the computer and help with egg packing when needed.

She is a second term board member for the Farm and Home Foundation and a former director of the Lancaster County Extension board.

Although the Hersheys plan to move this spring from their farmhouse to a rancher built on their property, Joan stresses that they are not retiring. Her husband will continue to farm with son Steve, who also does custom silo filling. The Hersheys also have a daughter Sharon, married to Barry Kreider, Mount Joy.

For recreation, Joan is part of a women's bowling league and delights in entertaining her five grandchildren.

Joan's book, Happiness, Hollyhocks and Heaven is available for $5 plus postage, which varies according to where it is shipped. For a copy of the book, which is a collection of Joan's poetry, wise sayings, and recipes, call Joan at (717) 653-5808.

Joan is famous for her Cocoa Chiffon Cake. Here is the recipe, one of those which appear in her book.

COCOA CHIFFON CAKE

Stir together and cool:
¾ cup boiling water
½ cup baking cocoa

Mix together in bowl:
1¼ cup cake flour
1¼ cup granulated sugar
1½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt

Add:
½ cup vegetable oil
7 egg yolks, unbeaten
2 teaspoons vanilla

Add chocolate mixture. Beat.

In clean bowl, measure and beat until stiff:
1 cup egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

When egg whites are stiff, pour chocolate mixture over whites. Fold in carefully. Pour into ungreased tube pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 55 minutes then at 350 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes. Invert to cool.

Joan's book, Happiness, Hollyhocks, and Heaven, is a collection of Joan's poetry, recipes, and "heavenly thoughts."

Many of the antiques are family heirlooms, which Joan has refinished in between her speaking engagements and leadership duties.

Dairy Farmers Join Promise Campaign

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — As springtime begins, students, schools, and communities are beginning to make plans for prom celebrations. During this season, Nationwide Insurance Company is encouraging students to take the "Prom Promise Challenge," and avoid alcohol and drugs during the prom. Dairy farmers have joined this campaign by offering the "CHEERS," Non-Alcoholic Dairy Beverage Program.

"We originated the CHEERS program several years ago to stress everything that consumers stand to lose by drinking and driving," said Betsy Dupuis, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Communications Director. "By joining the Prom Promise Program, we are sending our message to even more students and families, and offering students alternative, healthy dairy beverages while taking the 'Challenge.'"

Schools across Pennsylvania are encouraged to join the Prom Promise Campaign and use CHEERS beverages to help them reach the goals of the "Challenge." The CHEERS program utilizes a series of kitchen-tested recipes that substitute milk and milk products for alcoholic beverages in popular mixed drinks, punches, and cocktails.

Pennsylvania Dairy is offering schools free CHEERS party packages. They can use these promotional materials for prom celebrations or other Prom Promise events. The packages include: cups, napkins, banners, table tents, stickers, and recipe brochures. Participating advisors will also receive a special collection of CHEERS promotion ideas and information.

In addition to the party materials, public service announcements for radio and television are being prepared. These announcements are designed to remind students, families, and school leaders about the hazards of drinking and driving, stressing CHEERS beverages as safe and nutritious alternatives. The announcements will be released in late March, to correspond with the beginning of the prom season.

CHEERS was created by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, a not-for-profit generic dairy product promotion program. Over 4,000 dairy farmers provide funding for Pennsylvania Dairy Programming, all designed to bring dairy product information to consumers.

The CHEERS program will run throughout the 1993 prom and graduation season. Further information about the campaign is available by calling (717) 787-6903. CHEERS party packs are available until April 1, 1993.

Washington Bullets Host Cow Milking Contest

BALTIMORE, MD — Television and radio celebrities from the Baltimore media will compete on the Baltimore Arena court for the championship cow milking title when the Bullets host the Cleveland Cavaliers on Saturday night, March 13.

The Bullets are hosting dairy night in cooperation with local dairy farmers to get the "Milk. It Does A Body Good." message to all their fans. In addition to the contest, the first 8,000 Bullet fans will receive a free hat compliments of the Bullets and area dairy farmers. Molly Moo, the dairy farmers,' mascot will be presenting prize packages to fans at random.

The game is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. The cow milking will be held during half-time. Presiding as official judges will Jesse Burrell, president of Dairyman's Inc, board of directors, Upper Chesapeake Bay Division; and Daivd Weitzer, chairman of the board of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association.

David Patrick and family of Woodbine, MD, will be providing the cows for the milking contest. Giving away hats to fans will be Maryland's dairy princesses: Laurie Zimmerman, State Dairy Princess and Amy Savage, Beverly Collier, Kristin Archer, and Jennifer Brennerman.

The event is being sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association and the Southeast United Dairy Industry Association.

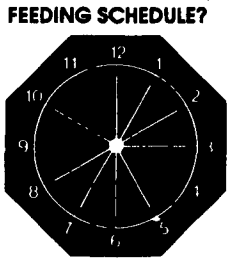
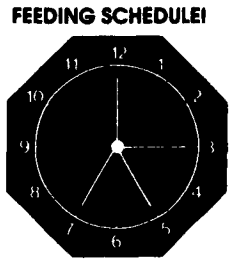
DRAG AUGER FEEDING SCHEDULE?



BIG DUTCHMAN CHAIN FEEDER FEEDING SCHEDULE!



How often do your feeders run in a day? It is generally necessary to operate drag auger feeders as many as eight or more times per day because of limited feeding space and the small quantity of feed presented at one time. That creates tremendous competition for the little feed available. The result of this competition is damaged eggs... from feet, toes and collisions. Big Dutchman chain feeders can feed your flock by running as few as three or four times a day, with little competition for feed, a calmer flock and fewer cracks and checks.

IF YOU ARE... FORCED TO FEED

more than four times a day or during peak laying periods, call 911 for your egg casualties or. . . call (717) 393-5807 for information on how our chain feeder pampers your product. . . from cage to carton.

AAW Warns Against Real Estate Tax Proposals

MT. VERNON, Ill. — American Agri-Women (AAW) is concerned that some estate tax proposals would result in the loss of family farms. These proposals would force farm families to sell their farms in order to pay estate taxes.

AAW President Trenna Grabowski recently said, "Farmers and ranchers fought long and hard to gain the current law, which allows up to $600,000 in assets to pass through an estate into the hands of their heir with no federal estate tax. Farm and ranch women carried petitions, wrote letters and testified at hearings. Stories of heirs having to sell the family farm to pay estate taxes were common — and quite true."

The AAW president stressed that while farmers and ranchers are willing to bear their fair share of the burden of reducing the federal deficit, having to sell their farms to pay exhorbitant taxes is not fair. "In addition," she stated, "agriculture is the segment of the federal budget which has most substantially contributed to deficit reduction in the past few years. We have done and will continue to do our share. But the loss of family farms due to estate taxes is not in the national interest."

"The current law is working to transfer family farming and ranching operations to the next generation, which is vital to the future of food and fiber production in our country. The current law is in danger."

Over the years, several pieces of legislation have been introduced that would reduce the exemption amount. Last year's Long Term Care bill, which was not reported out of committee, would have lowered the exemption from $600,000 to $200,000. "Such a proposal could be an attractive revenue-raiser to the 103rd Congress," Grabowski warned. "AAW's concern is that at a time when lawmakers are seeking revenue to fund various programs and when the deficit looms large before them, they may be eyeing these estate-related areas as sources of additional revenue."

Grabowski, a nationally-known agricultural accountant, cites specific examples of proposals which have been suggested. These include requiring heirs to pay income tax on the increase in the value of the land from the time it was purchased until today. Since much family farmland was purchased years ago for a very low price, this would result in the heir paying tax on almost all of today's value. Another proposal would tax capital gains at death, making the leap in logic that when the farmer passes away, he "realizes" a gain on his property for the difference between his farm's original cost and its current value.

AAW's President reaffirmed that American Agri-Women, the nation's largest coalition of farm, ranch and agribusiness women, stands ready to oppose any changes which would weaken the current law and result in the loss of family farms. For more information about American Agri-Women or the estate tax issue, contact Trenna Grabowski, 2006 Broadway, Mt. Vernon, IL 62864, 618-242-4311.

Apple Tree Grafting Class Scheduled

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — The Landis Valley Museum and the Backyard Fruit Growers will conduct the first-ever apple tree grafting school in the Museum's Visitor Center Auditorium on Saturday, March 20, from 1:30 until 4:00 p.m.

Any interested person is invited to attend the workshop. Skilled instructors will initially explain and then show attendees first hand how to connect root stock to the scion wood (the pencil-thick piece of apple branch which will form a whole new tree).

The Backyard Fruit Growers are interested in fostering healthy growing conditions in the backyard environment, especially with antique varieties of apples. Participants in this $12 workshop will go home with at least two apple trees which they can plant. A broad selection of both historic and modern scion wood will be made available. Attendees will choose from among several kinds of root stock; some which will produce large trees and other which are terrific for even a small backyard.

Registration will be by reservation only and will be handled by the first-come, first-served rule. Send the $12 by check payable to: The Landis Valley Associates and mail to LVA-BYFG, 2451 Kissel Hill Road, Lancaster, PA, 17601. For $12 you will go home with 2 ready-to-plant apple trees, with aluminum name tags and a solid working knowledge of the grafting technique. Participants are asked to bring with them a sharp pocket knife.

If anyone has an old apple tree that is dying, has fallen over, or is in danger of removal—they can bring some "wood" from that tree with them and graft it onto new root stock and go home and plant it. Save that old apple from extinction! For further information, call Steve Miller at Landis Valley Museum, Monday through Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

Limousin Beef Served At Events

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — For the second year in a row, attendees of two American Heart Association fundraising dinners in Texas found lean, healthy Limousin beef on their supper plates.

Both the Celebrity Celebration for Heart in Dallas, held February 11, and the For the Love of Life Heart Ball in Houston, held February 13, served Limqusin beef as the main entree for their events.

The North American Limousin Foundation with Lean Limousin Beef Company, Kearney, Neb., donated the meat as part of a campaign to educate the public about the benefits of lean Limousin beef in a balanced diet.

"Sponsoring beef at a heart association-sponsored event is one way the beef industry can prove it has a healthy product to offer consumers," said Dr. Kent Andersen, director of research and education for the North American Limousin Foundation. "We need to continue to tell that 94 percent of American consumers who are concerned with their diet that lean, red meat is a healthy choice."

The events raised in excess of $500,000 for the American Heart Association.

Gloucester County Sends 18 To 4-H Teen Conference

On March 12, 18 Gloucester County, N.J. 4-H teens got their Passport to Diversity as they began a three-day conference with that theme. They joined 150 4-H'ers from South Jersey at the Princeton Marriott Hotel to explore various cultures, customs, and world issues.

Keynote speaker Paul Goldberg from the State Attorney General's Office set the tone for the conference, which is to bring harmony to the multicultured world of the U.S.

The program helps 4-H'ers investigate several cultures through the following workshops: Northern Europe Culture, African Culture, Country "X," Latin American Culture, Japan, and American Indian Heritage. Even more important the groups will confront issues which are causing conflict in schools and society.

Even food at the International Food Court and entertainment such as a Hawaiian Luau reflect the conference theme.

4-H Expo Results

The following are the results of the 1993 Cloucester County, N.J. 4-H Expo held recently at the Deptford Mall.

Learn To Sew

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Boys and girls ages eight to 19 are invited to learn to sew by joining the Trappe Community 4-H Club which meets regularly at the Montgomery County 4-H Center. Youth may enroll in sewing (beginners to advanced), as well as foods and nutrition, woodworking, basketry, electronics, small engines, and gardening. Monthly meetings are held at the 4-H Center, bringing all project groups together for fun and learning. Individual project groups meet either in a volunteer leader's home or at the 4-H Center, depending on facilities needed. Adults and older teens who have a skill to share are also invited to become volunteer leaders.

Beginner sewers are especially encouraged to sign up. The beginning program will begin on April 8 and meet for six Thursdays, from 6:30-8 p.m. at the 4-H Center. There is a nominal fee ($5) to help maintain sewing machines. To register or for more information about sewing and other Trappe 4-H projects, call Helaine Brown, 4-H Agent at (215) 489-4315.

For Gramoxone Extra, consistent control is all in a day's work.

Count on economical and dependable GRAMOXONE® EXTRA herbicide in your no-till or crop residue management program. It not only eliminates the early weed flushes that compete with the growth and yield of your corn crop, it gives farmers these important benefits:

- Burns down weeds in 24 to 48 hours so you can plant sooner in the spring.
- Rainfast in 30 minutes.
- Effective in warm or cool weather
- Tankmix compatible with preferred residual herbicides, insecticides and fertilizers.
- Won't leach into groundwater or leave any harmful residues

Antique Plant Lecture

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Dr. Arthur Tucker will be at the Berks County Agricultural Center, Tuesday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m. The cost is $5/adults; $3/students. Dr. Tucker's topic will be: "Everything I Needed To Know My Grandmother Taught Us Kindern In Her Garden: In Search of Antique Plants." This lecture is sponsored by the Berks County Horticulture Club. Refreshments will be served.

Reservations may be made by sending your check (payable to: Berks Co. Hort Club) to Judith L. Schwank, Berks Co. Cooperative Extension, Berks Co. Agricultural Center, PO Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533-0520. Please include your name(s), address and daytime phone number. Further information may be obtained by calling the extension office at (215) 378-1327.

Dr. Arthur Tucker received his undergraduate degree in biology from Kutztown University, Kutztown, PA., and both his M.S. and his Doctorate from Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey. He has taught biology, botany, plant physiology, taxonomy and using historic plant materials, both on the undergraduate and graduate levels. He is an affiliate of many horticultural, botanic, and scientific societies.

Dr. Tucker has ongoing research grants from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture for evaluating selected culinary herbs and essential oil plants as high income per acre cash crops for limited resource farmers. Other grants have been given from the Fish and Wildlife Service, the U.S. Forest Service, the Dept. of Interior and private industries concerning ecology, floristic, assessing endangered species, and potential sites for preservation.

Dr. Tucker has received many awards, namely, "Faculty Excellence Award in Research," and "Landscape" award by the Delaware Association of Nurserymen.

He has been published in the academic American Encyclopedia and his plant photographs are in the New Encyclopedia Brittanica. His articles also appear in books and publications.

Coulter Applies Fertilizer In Variety Of Selections

ASSARIA, Kan. — Ausherman GP, a division of Great Plains Manufacturing, announces its new Vantage II coulter. The coulter is designed for the application of dry fertilizer in no-till, minimum-till, and conventional planting conditions.

The Vantage II coulter is a non-swiveling design that places the fertilizer down the side of an 18 inch smooth offset blade, thus eliminating trash plugging common to competitive models with a knife behind the coulter blade. A spring loaded wiper wheel eliminates mud buildup and minimizes dirt flow.

Other features include heavy duty greasable hub, tapered roller bearings, double-lip grease seal, and 430 pounds of preload down-pressure on the coulter blade for proper penetration in hard soil conditions. The Vantage II is adaptable to most planters and tool bars.

For more information, contact: John Martin, Ausherman GP, PO Box 218, Assaria, KS 67416, (913) 667-4755.

FFA'ers To Compete In Floral Design

TRENTON, N.J. — The New Jersey FFA Horticultural Exposition, scheduled at the Quaker Bridge Mall, Route 1, Lawrenceville, consists of two state FFA events. The State FFA Floral Design Contest, sponsored by the New Jersey Florists' Association, will be held Friday, March 19. The State FFA Flower Show, with over 600 plants and flower arrangements exhibited, will begin on Friday, March 19, and end on Sunday, March 21, at 6:00 p.m.

The floral design contest is open to all FFA members in New Jersey. Members will design two arrangements on location. One design will be assigned by the judges and the other will be the choice of the student. Arrangements will be scored and winners will be announced later that day. The students' designs will be available for sale after all scoring takes place. All proceeds will go towards awards for the Flower Show.

Students competing in the Flower Show will be entering arrangements and plant material that they have designed or grown in school. Over 50 different theme classes are available for students to enter. Preparing an arrangement for a "Formal Dinner Party" is one example of a theme class. Arrangements may be entered in the "fresh" or "silk and dried" categories.

Ribbons will be awarded to the top five entries in each class, and a rosette will be awarded to the "Best of Division" entry. Plaques will be presented to first place entries. In addition, a "Best of Show" award will be presented.

Floriculture has become an important part of the agriculture industry in New Jersey. FFA members are learning the skills to become more successful in the floriculture industry by enrolling in high school agriculture classes. The agricultural education classes help to prepare students for the world of work or for college. The FFA organization, which is part of instruction in over 36 New Jersey high schools and vocational schools, offers members opportunities to use classroom skills and to succeed in our nations workforce.

Better Kid Care

CLEARFIELD (Clearfield Co.) — If you're a babysitter, if you provide child care in your home, or if you work with young children, plan to attend the "Better Kid Care" series of educational workshops. This series is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension in Clearfield and Jefferson counties.

"Better Kid Care" will consist of six workshops to be held on Thursday, from 7:00 to 9:00 pm, at the United Methodist Church, 210 Woodland Avenue, Punxsutawney. The first workshop will be held March 18, and the series will conclude on May 27.

All workshops meet the new Department of Public Welfare's annual child care training requirements. Interested persons may register for the entire series, or only those workshops that interest them. The registration fee is $5 per workshop, or $25 for the entire series. Checks can be made payable to: Extension Special.

The March 18, 'Great Expectations: Mental and Physical Development,' workshop will present an overview of child development. April 1 will present 'Handle With Care: Preventing Food Borne Illness.' 'Imagination and Creativity' will be presented April 15.

On April 29 the 'Child Safety and Your Liability' workshop will be presented. 'Balancing Your Work and Your Family' will be the May 13 topic. And the series concludes with 'Discipline, Guidance, and Behavior Problems' on May 27.

All educational workshops of Penn State Cooperative Extension are open to all people without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, handicap or age. Training costs have been fully or partially underwritten by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare, KURC-HBC Directed Training Program.

Interested persons may preregister or obtain additional information, by calling Nancy Covert, extension agent, at (814) 849-7361; or Andrea Bressler, extension agent, at 765-7878. An informational flyer is available upon request.

Brothersvalley FFA Holds Banquet

GAY N. BROWNLEE

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — The 54th annual Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA Member-Parent Banquet hosted some 180 persons, despite competition from a rescheduled girls' championship basketball game that was underway nearby, and severe winter conditions that were canceling many meetings.

The FFA banquet is always held in conjunction with National FFA week, according to chapter adviser Doyle Paul.

Guest speaker was state Chaplain Steve Landis, member of the local FFA chapter whose address concerned achieving goals.

"No matter what your goal," said Landis, "work hard and never give up." Landis said, "If you don't care where you are going, any road will get you there."

Landis told his audience, "The true joy of life is the trip," and, "Regret and fear are thieves that rob us of today."

Keeping the spectators in rapt attention was the cider pressing demonstration, by the state demonstration team of Eric Landis, Bryan Sarver and Jonathan Smiley.

It was learned through the demonstration commentary that combining a variety of apples makes a better cider product. One should select apples that will give a good combination of "sweetness, tartness, and tanginess."

The fellows blended Cortland, Winesap and Red Delicious apples for the demonstration. They explained that proper preparation and cleanliness are necessary to making quality apple cider, as well as proper straining and storage in various types of containers. Clear glass is preferable, they said. The keeping quality of cider is related to how it is stored.

"Squeezing For Profit," was the demonstration title which earned state gold medals for the trio.

Winners of the state agricultural record book contest and recipients of gold medals were Eric Landis and Steve Landis. Winning categories for both young men were in on-farm work experience (400 hours and under), home-garden, and swine finishing.

Following with state silver medals were Bill Hersch for on-farm work experience, 1,201 hours and over; James Burkholder, on-farm work experience 401 hours to 800 hours.

State bronze medals went to Eric Landis for off-farm work experience 400 hours and under and to Jason Baughman for field corn.

For high achievements last summer at Penn State Activities Week gold medals went to Matt Welch, state FFA dairy cattle judging; Jason Baughman, state FFA extemporaneous public speaking; Allen Durst, state FFA chorus participant; and Jonathan Smiley, state FFA chapter delegate.

Eric Landis won a silver medal, taking eighth place in the state FFA interview contest. Michael Griffith won a bronze medal, taking 13th place in the state FFA agricultural salesmanship contest.

Keystone Farmer Degree recipients were Michael Cooney, Matthew Foor and Jeremy Hay.

It was noted by Adviser Paul that Cooney was the first Brothersvalley FFA member to have studied abroad, spending 10 months in Germany and, later, time in Japan.

Michael Cotter, Berlin, who achieved the highest honor of American Farmer, was unable to attend the ceremony because, it was announced, his wife was about to deliver their child at a nearby hospital.

Chapter Farmer Degree recipients were Matthew Coleman, Shawn Fochtman, Daryl Gindlesperger, Jason Ickes, Darren Little and Steven Platt.

Chapter scholarship pins and certificates went to W.J. Cober, Greg Cornell, Allen Durst, Brian Gary, Spencer Glessner, Eric Landis and Harry Ritchey.

County agricultural record book contest winners were: Jason Baughman, first place in dairy calf, dairy cow, dairy heifer and field corn; Eric Landis, first place in home-garden, swine finishing, both off-farm and on-farm work experience 400 hours and under; James Burkholder, first place in on-farm work experience 401 to 800 hours; Bill Hersch, first place in on-farm work experience 1,201 hours and over; Jonathan Smiley, second in field corn; Steve Landis, second place, home and garden and swine finishing, and on-farm work experience 400 hours and under; Allen Durst, second place, off-farm work experience 400 hours and under; Brian Sarver, second place, on-farm work experience 401 to 800 hours; Allen Durst, third place, on-farm work experience 400 hours and under; Kenneth Benning, sixth place in swine finishing.

The one-acre corn growing contest trophies were presented by W.J. (Dub) Brant from the Pioneer Seed Co. to Danny Delancy and Chad Webreck for above 146 bushels; and to Jason Baughman, Bill Hersch and Jonathan Smiley for 125-145 bushels.

Basketball pins were given to Jason Becker, Travis Booth, Matthew Coleman, Lonnie Coughenour, Allen Durst, Matt Foor, Mike Griffith, Jeremy Hay, Travis Ingrodi, Mike Platt, and Chad Webreck.

FFA sports coaches were Robert Czekaj and Mike Walker.

Eric Landis sold 200 boxes of citrus fruit for the local FFA chapter and received a gift from Diversified Marketing Association.

Leon Paul, of Garrett, was named the 38th Honorary Member of the Brothersvalley FFA chapter.

A past president of the local FFA chapter and state officer, Paul and his wife, Dorothy Jane, operate Clover Hill Farms near Berlin. He is a member of the Berlin-Brothersvalley Young Farmers, the Grange, Berlin-Brothersvalley Community Fair Association, and several agricultural boards. He has supported the local FFA chapter continuously.

Livestock Notes

James C. Cowden
Warren County Cooperative Extension

Now is the time that most sheep herders are actively involved in lambing. Today's article gives some tips for this critical flock management time.

Attending the flock at lambing time will result in good returns. What you have worked for all year long is on the line. About one week before the first lamb is expected, sort off all ewes that have considerable udder development, vulvas enlarged and slightly dilated, and ewes heavy through the middle. If you kept breeding records this is where they will be of great help. Ewes should be checked every two to three hours during lambing.

Give the ewes ample time to deliver the lambs on their own. Don't pen the ewe up until after she has lambed. If penned up before, she will become nervous and not lamb as quickly. Also the chance of the newly delivered lamb being pinned against the lambing pen exists.

We will not go into difficult lambing problems, however, this is a very important subject. Seek out as much information on this topic as you possibly can. Of course the greatest teacher in this matter is experience.

Once the ewe has lambed, check the udder for available colostrum milk and check the teats to be sure they are open. Place the ewe and her new lambs in a pen or "jug" to help prevent disowned lambs. Four to five foot square pens are recommended. Heat lamps may be used, but should be used safely and sparingly. To decrease the incidence of navel ill, apply a 7 percent tincture of iodine to the navel at birth. Give the lamb ½ cc of Bo-Se (Vit E) if in a deficient area.

Be sure the ewe claims her lambs and allows them to nurse before you leave. If lambs are weak, help them nurse or use a stomach tube to ensure adequate colostrum intake. The first milk is high in a number of essential ingredients, the most important being antibodies that help the lambs resist infection. You may want to freeze colostrum from ewes that deliver dead lambs or those that lose their lambs to have on hand for orphan lambs or for lambs from ewes that have a colostrum available soon after lambing.

Keep a close eye on the ewe's udder and be on the look out for problems such as mastitis.

One of the major causes of baby lamb deaths is starvation. Check lamb's eyes for inverted eyelids (entropion) or correct by stitching a fold of skin in the lower lid to keep the eyelid from rolling under. Check lambs for pinning (feces matting tail to body).

Some method of identification is necessary to easily identify ewes and their lambs. Ear tags or paint brand numbers work well. Any record keeping system starts with a good identification system.

Care should be used when docking and castrating, making sure both procedures are carried out before two weeks of age. The younger the lamb when these tasks are performed, the less traumatic it will be for the lambs. Many instruments are available for both procedures with personal preference being the deciding factor on which to use. Docking gives lambs a better appearance and decreases the chance of maggot infestation. Dock replacement ewe lambs so about 1 inch of the tail is left on the lamb. Only castrate male lambs that will not be marketed by 4½ months of age.

Lambs may begin to nibble creep rations when only several days old but will usually not consume significant amounts until they are a month of age. Creep feeding lambs is a means of providing supplemental feed to young lambs during the nursing period. The lamb's most limiting nutrition while on ewe's milk is energy.

Best results are reported when creep rations contain at least a 15 percent protein. Antibiotics (aureomycin or terramycin) at the rate of 30 grams per ton are recommended. Urea should not be used in rations for very young lambs since the rumen is not functioning completely until the lamb reaches six to seven weeks of age. Cracked corn, rolled oats, soybean oil meal and leafy alfalfa hay are all good ingredients to get lambs started eating from a creep. A complete mixed ration should be offered once lambs are consuming sufficient amounts.

For young lambs the ration should be ground or cracked unless pelleted. Once the lambs are six to eight weeks of age, lambs will do just as well on whole grains. This will cut down on waste as well as save processing costs.

How the creep is managed can be as important as the ration itself. Keep the area clean, draft free and wellbedded. Keeping a light in the creep to attract lambs will help. Do not use a heat lamp for this. Only put out what the lambs clean up daily, keeping it fresh. The best financial returns are obtained from creep feeding lambs born early and when the twining percentage is high and lambs have the genetic ability to gain rapidly.

STUFFED SPINACH PIZZA

Crust:
- 4½ teaspoons dry yeast
- 1½ cups warm water
- 1½ teaspoon sugar
- 1½ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 3¾ cups flour

Dissolve yeast in water. Stir in remaining ingredients until lightly blended. Let stand about 5 minutes.

Topping:
- 16 ounces whole tomatoes, drained
- ¼ cup onion, chopped
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 small green pepper, chopped
- 4-ounce can mushrooms, drained
- 1 pound fresh spinach or 10-ounces frozen
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella

Cover and cook spinach until just limp, about 3 minutes. Drain well and cool (squeezing water out by hand). Set aside.

Mix tomatoes, onions, spices, and green pepper, breaking up the tomatoes a bit. Set aside.

Press dough into bottom and up sides of 13x9x2-inch pan. Spread spinach on top. Spoon sauce on spinach. Sprinkle with mushrooms and cheese. Bake at 425 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes. Cheese will be slightly toasted.

SPINACH CRAB CAKES
- 1¼ cup fresh spinach
- ¼ cup butter
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 6 eggs, beaten
- ½ teaspoon thyme
- ½ cup Parmesan cheese
- 1 tablespoon garlic salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- 1 pound claw crabmeat
- 2 cups herb bread filling

Cook and drain spinach. Melt butter. Add all other ingredients except herb filling and mix well.

Add 1 cup herb filling, mix well.

Form mixture into small patties.

Grind 1 cup herb filling. Bread spinach patties with same.

Deep fry or freeze for future use.

SPINACH SALAD
- 1 pound spinach, washed, dried, chilled
- 6 slices bacon, fried
- 2 eggs, cooked and chopped
- 1 onion
- Fresh mushrooms
- Croutons

Dressing:
- ⅓ cup oil
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ tablespoons mustard
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- ½ teaspoon salt

Combine dressing in blender until thick and sugar dissolved. Dressing will separate. Pour over spinach before serving.

SPINACH PUFF
- 2 packages frozen chopped spinach
- 1½ cups wheat crackers, crushed
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 4 ounces cream cheese
- 4 tablespoons butter
- ¾ cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup shredded cheddar cheese

Cook spinach according to package directions. Drain thoroughly. While spinach is still hot, add cream cheese and stir over low heat until cheese is melted and looks like a cream sauce. Add butter, milk, paprika, and beaten eggs. Place half spinach mixture in a greased 8x8-inch square baking pan. To with half of crushed wheat crumbs. Place remaining spinach over crumb layers. Top with cheddar cheese and remaining crumbs.

Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until puffed and golden.

BIOTECHNOLOGY IN THE BARNYARD

Terry D. Etherton
Professor
Animal Nutrition

During the next 40 years, the amount of food needed for the growing world population will approximate that produced in all the years since the beginning of humankind.

To meet these needs, animal and plant scientists are developing new biotechnologies that promise to increase productivity, enhance productive efficiency (unit of food produced/unit of resource input), and alter food composition to produce more nutritious and higher-quality foods.

The issue of food composition is particularly important to the meat animal industry because of the need to reduce the fat content of both fresh and processed meat products by means that are more cost-effective and efficient than the current practice of simply trimming off the excess fat. Based on current expectations, many of these biotechnologies will be integrated into food production and food processing systems between now and the end of the century. As a result, it will be important that producers and consumers understand the benefits and safety of these approaches. In this article I will briefly discuss two biotechnologies that shortly will be used in animal agriculture.

First, What Is Biotechnology?

Although biotechnology has been touted as a recent development, it has been used for thousands of years to make bread and fermented foods and beverages.

Terry D. Etherton

Biotechnology is simply the use of biology to make a product or develop a process that is of value to society.

Today, biotechnology is not only being used in the food production and processing industries, but also to develop new and improved human and veterinary health care products, to increase mineral and oil recovery, to produce fuels that will be an alternative to petroleum-derived fuels, and for novel approaches to degrading toxic and solid waste materials.

Somatotropins

As for animal agriculture, two of the first biotechnologies that shortly will receive regulatory approval from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for use in dairy and pork production are bovine somatotropin (BST) and porcine somatotropin (PST).

Somatotropin or growth hormone is a naturally occurring protein hormone made in the pituitary gland of all mammals. It is the master hormone that regulates growth of humans and animals.

When administered to dairy cows, BST increases milk production 15 percent to 20 percent and enhances feed efficiency by about 10 percent.

Studies we have conducted in the Department of Dairy and Animal Science have shown that when PST is administered to growing pigs, growth rate increases by 10 percent to 20 percent, and carcass fat is reduced — sometimes by as much as 70 percent. This change in growth rate is accompanied by a marked increase in muscle growth (up to 50 percent) and feed efficiency (by 15 percent to 35 percent). These technologies may also help reduce environmental pollution, since using less feed means using less fertilizer and other inputs associated with growing, harvesting, processing, and storing animal feed.

Public Discussion Of Biotechnology

Although scientific advances made in the past 15 years have been enthusiastically received by agricultural scientists, there is widespread public misunderstanding concerning their benefits and safety.

It is difficult for many consumers to accurately evaluate the products of biotechnology because they may not have a scientific background. As a result, they are sometimes misled by campaigns conducted by opponents of biotechnology who often falsely condemn these technologies.

The fact that these technologies involve food plays into another issue of great importance to consumers — food safety.

Public discussion between proponents and opponents of biotechnology has been controversial and typically has involved scientists responding to misinformation disseminated by groups which, for various reasons, oppose the use of biotechnology. While the motivation of these groups for opposing biotechnology is not always apparent, it is clear that many of their claims are designed to frighten the consumer rather than address the scientific facts as we know them.

From a scientific viewpoint, the emerging agricultural biotechnologies are effective and safe. Nonetheless, it is the attitudes and beliefs of the consumer that will determine whether society will benefit from using them.

In this environment, it is important that institutions of agricultural science across the United States inform the public about the benefits of agricultural biotechnology. One challenge is to develop effective programs that educate the

MEETS THE CHALLENGE

When Looking For Quality BUY BRILLION

SSS, S810 & S812 SEEDERS

For years Brillion Grass Seeders have proven to be the best machine for planting grasses and legumes... and now they're even better! Larger, heavier boxes, high seeding rates, nylon lined seed meter, heavier frame, new drive system and more.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers... and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Now available with 20" Ductile Rollers.

SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS are a primary conservation tool that breaks up plow pan to absorb moisture and blends surface residue into the soil with enough residue left on top to control wind and water erosion. 5-13 shank.

SERIES 03 PULVI-MULCHERS ML & WL

PULVI-MULCHERS Build a firm, clod-free seedbed — one that lets all the seeds germinate at one time. 12'6", 13'10", 15'2" & 18'9" rigid; 21'8" 25' and 30' flat fold.

2 & 3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS

The Brillion 2 & 3-Bar Mounted Chisel Plow is available with 1"x2"x26" or 1¼"x2"x32" shanks. Available in sizes 7'-16'. Options include gauge wheel kits for both 26" & 32" shanks. Also available are 2', 4' and 6' extension kits.

FLAIL SHREDDERS

540 OR 1000 RPM
FLAIL SHREDDERS Heaviest gearbox on the market eliminates the number one cause of downtime. Available in 12' and 15'. Either cup or side slicer knives.

SINGLE GANG PULVERIZERS

Also Available As Pull Type
NEW P10 SERIES TRANSPORT CONCEPT Brillion's transport concept is new to the industry. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduced drawbar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transporting. 10' to 16'. Available with 20 ductile rolls.

3-PT. BASKET HARROW

Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-Tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12 diameter rolling basket, a 4 bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable leveler bar in 12', 15' and 18' sizes. Gauge wheels are optional

DEEP TILLS

The three shank model, shown above, has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brothers." 3 to 7 shank

Association To Sponsor Teacher

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Adams County Farmers' Association will sponsor a teacher for this summer's Ag In the Classroom workshops at Penn State.

Last year, 36 county farmers' associations helped send kindergarten through fifth grade teachers to four days of training on how to use agricultural concepts and examples in their classrooms.

The goal of the program, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living, is to increase youngsters' understanding and appreciation of agriculture. Fourth grade science teacher Don Summers of Bermudian Springs, who attended the 1992 workshop, said it was "Probably the best conference I have been to in my educational career...The presenters were excellent...They gave us information that can be taken home and used."

The workshop will be offered twice this year — July 11-15 and July 25-29 — Both times at the Penn State's University Park Campus. Enrollment will be limited to 50 teachers each session. Anyone who is interested or any PFA/ACFA member who knows of a teacher who may be interested should contact president Ed Wilkinson, (717) 677-4477. Applications are being accepted now for registration beginning in March.

According to Beth Herald Moore, executive director of the foundation, teachers with little or no ag background are preferred. The association will be searching for any teacher who is committed to increasing the understanding and awareness of the interdependence of people, food, fiber, and the environment among Pennsylvania's elementary and secondary school students, educators, farmers, and the public.

For more information, contact President Ed Wilkinson.

Program Helps Companies Turn Trash Into Treasure

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Maryland companies are turning waste materials into innovative products with the help of the Maryland Industrial Partnerships (MIPS) program at the University of Maryland.

Used tires, crab waste from seafood processing, and waste heat from generators may be environmental problems, but to a few innovative entrepreneurs they are opportunities for new business ventures.

MIPS provides matching funds to support research conducted by University of Maryland faculty to help these companies turn their ideas into marketable products.

One such effort involves taking rubber from used tires and using it as a major component in making sound barriers along highways and airports.

Kanan Associates, Inc., with the help of Dr. Pedro Albrect, professor of civil engineering at the College Park campus, researched properties of rubber that make it a superior sound barrier. The Columbia, Md. company developed a sound wall and will test it at a site near Baltimore-Washington International Airport in March.

Another MIPS-supported company is turning Chesapeake Blue Crab waste into a natural, organic fertilizer. New Earth Services, Inc.'s process eliminates the major problem with fish-based fertilizers: the odor. The Cambridge, Md. company will begin to market their organic fertilizer this spring.

While researching methods of recycling waste energy, Energy Concepts Co. of Annapolis, Md. took advantage of a MIPS grant and created a method for making ice using waste heat from diesel generators. Now, they have expanded on this technology to design a series of heat pumps and refrigerators that run on either solar or gas waste heat. These heat pumps do not use chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs), which makes them better for the environment.

MIPS is a program of the Engineering Research Center, University of Maryland at College Park, which promotes interaction in engineering and science between all of the University of Maryland campuses and industry. For more information about the MIPS program or any of its projects, call the MIPS office at (301) 405-3891.

public about complex scientific matters that underlie an emerging agricultural biotechnology.

The cost of developing and implementing educational programs is a major obstacle because they have to be developed for groups with various literacy skills and learning styles, and they have to be targeted for specific groups.

Summary

As the world population continues to expand, advances in technology that increase the productivity and the efficiency of food production will be imperative to keep pace with our increasing population.

The promise that biotechnology holds for agriculture and society will be decided this decade. If the development and commercialization of new, useful agricultural biotechnologies are hindered, the capacity for food production to keep pace with the growing world population will be reduced. How this would affect the world's food supply as we enter the next century is a question we cannot answer now.

THE ECONOMIC IMPACT OF PENNSYLVANIA POULTRY PRODUCTION

Milton E. Madison
Agricultural Economist

The Pennsylvania poultry industry is one of the leading agricultural enterprises in the state. It is often cited as generating the second most sales at the farm level, following dairy.

In 1991, Pennsylvania farmers produced 5 billion eggs, 116 million broilers, and 8.4 million turkeys. Even though the final numbers have not been made available yet, it is estimated that production during 1992 was slightly higher in all three categories.

The following table presents the number of birds being raised and the annual sales figures for the various types of poultry raised in Pennsylvania during 1991.

	Number of birds on feed each week	Annual sales value
Broilers	15,000,000	$174,013,000
Layers	20,000,000	225,300,000
Pullets	4,600,000	25,000,000
Turkeys	1,800,000	68,880,000
Breeder Flocks	1,000,000	18,218,000
	42,400,000	$511,411,000

The impact of farmers raising this many birds effects many parts of the Pennsylvania economy. The impact of the processing industry that takes the birds from the farm to the retail level is presented in the next table.

When direct employment figures are expanded to take into account the business activity generated by allied industries and by employees spending paychecks in the community, we get a better picture of the true impact of the poultry industry on the Pennsylvania economy.

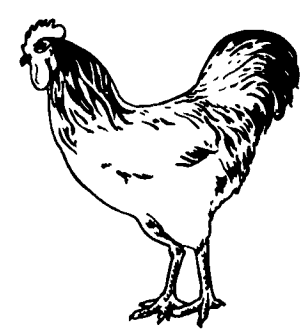
When poultry production expands, 3.5 total new jobs are realized for each new poultry production job created. The increase in wages paid to all workers translates to $6.81 of statewide income created by every $1 increase in poultry wages paid.

When the effects of poultry production filter through the economy the final results are impressive. The following table presents the overall impact of poultry production on the economy of Pennsylvania.

Industry payroll	$80,000,000
Pieces of rolling stock (trucks, cars) on road each day	800
Electrical usage	$3,200,000
Gallons of diesel fuel used	4,000,000
Expenditure for new equipment and parts	$2,000,000 to 12,000,000
Cost of operational supplies	$30,000,000
Directly employ more than	4,000
Employment	30,000
Impact of raw poultry production and wages paid	$1.65 Billion
Impact of raw poultry production and purchased ($511,411,000 x 2.13) input supplies	$1.09 Billion

Pennsylvania's poultry production is substantial and growing. Efforts must continue to keep poultry production strong in Pennsylvania so the state can reap the benefits of increased business activity throughout the economy.

Note: We thank Dr. Madison for his contributions to the Pennsylvania poultry industry. Milt has made a career change and is now with USDA/ERS in Washington, D.C. We wish the best to him and his family. — Members, Dept. of Poultry Science, Penn State.



Farmers Union Praises Economic Plan

DENVER (Colo.) — President Clinton's plan for reducing the federal deficit, stimulating the sluggish economy, containing health costs, and providing basic coverage to all Americans is getting generally favorable reviews from the 250,000-member National Farmers Union (NFU).

While Farmers Union leaders admit they have concerns and unanswered questions about how some components of the package will effect family farmers, farmer cooperatives and rural people, they say the program outlined in Clinton's first address to Congress seemed to cut across the board.

"We commend the president on the progressive proposal on income tax brackets for high income individuals and corporations," said NFU President Leland Swenson.

The more progressive income tax structure, combined with closing loopholes for foreign corporations and eliminating incentives for corporations to relocate in foreign countries, "will call on those who benefited most from the tax breaks of the 1980s—which resulted in our deficit increasing four-fold in 12 years—to contribute the most now," said Swenson.

While it appears farmers and ranchers will face reductions in farm support programs, NFU leaders say they will work with the administration and Congress to design policies which reduce outlays but stimulate market prices to offset reductions.

"Increased commodity prices could be the greatest single factor to stimulate investment, create jobs in rural communities, reduce costs of farm programs, and increase government tax revenues," Swenson said. The Farmers Union has proposed that farm program supports be targeted to family farm operators through a system based on actual commodity production which can be capped.

The farm leader said a major concern members of his organization have is the proposed energy tax. Farmers are large users of energy products through input products, production operations, and marketing.

"Farmers at the same time desire a decrease in dependence on foreign oil and support expanded development of renewable energy resources including farm products," Swenson said.

NFU labeled Clinton's proposals for health care reform, job creation and training, youth vaccination, and welfare reform "bold and necessary."

"We recognize the need for shared contribution. But, we must remember the sacrifice agriculture has already contributed, through the Budget Summit Agreement.

PFA Calls For Responsible Funding

CENTRE HALL (Centre Co.) — A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) called for increased state funding for agriculture during a field hearing of the State House Appropriations Committee, March 2 in Centre Hall.

Dairy farmer Donn Fetterolf of Aaronsburg, Centre County, a member of the PFA State Board of Directors, said agriculture will be "unreasonably compromised" if Gov. Casey's budget proposal for the 1993 - 94 fiscal year is adopted without substantial changes.

PFA is a voluntary, statewide farm organization which represents 23,189 families in 54 local associations. During testimony, PFA spokesman Fetterolf urged the State General Assembly to increase appropriations in several areas.

Prior to the current fiscal year, state appropriations accounted for 40 percent of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine's operational budget. Now state funding has been totally eliminated.

"We are skeptical that the private sector can adequately replace the financial void which has been created by the elimination of state funding," Fetterolf said. "Without this funding, chances are likely that the veterinary school will be closed or severely curtailed. Such an event would be harmful to the agricultural industry."

Gov. Casey's budget proposal would cut appropriations for agricultural research at the Pennsylvania State University by nearly $1 million and would provide no increase for agricultural extension services.

"The future success of Pennsylvania agriculture depends in large part upon the ability of Pennsylvania farmers to become more efficient managers," Fetterolf testified. "Because of agricultural research projects, effective production and management techniques have been developed which have made farmers more economically and environmentally efficient. And farmers have been able to find out and incorporate these techniques through Penn State Extension Service."

PFA recommended that funding for both ag research and extension services be increased to reasonable levels over present appropriations.

"In recent years, the public needs for erosion control and water management have caused many conservation districts to increase their work loads," Fetterolf told the committee, "resulting in additional drains upon staff time and resources."

State appropriations have not kept pace with demands, Fetterolf said, "and the sequestering of $300,000 of the $1.8 million appropriation committed for the current fiscal year has placed further fiscal burdens upon the ability of conservation districts to effectively carry out their responsibilities."

PFA is recommending that conservation district appropriations for fiscal 1993-94 be increased to $1.8 million from the proposed $1.5 million level and that every effort be made to ensure that the entire appropriation is received.

Fetterolf also expressed concern that funding proposed for the state Animal Health Commission will stay the same as this year at $2.94 million. More funding is needed so agriculture can effectively respond and protect itself from animal disease outbreaks, Fetterolf testified. He cited recent outbreaks of avian influenza and livestock tuberculosis as evidence of the need for increased funding.

"We are hopeful that nutrient management legislation similar to the legislation contained in House Bill 100 will be enacted into law in the near future," Fetterolf said.

If it does become law, he said, "Farmers will need to be educated in detail on nutrient management practices, and they will need to receive advice and assistance from persons trained in nutrient management techniques. Farmers will also need to have the economic ability to construct facilities and to purchase equipment which will ensure proper storage and application of nutrients on farms."

For this reason, PFA is recommending an appropriation of at least $2 million to meet the needs of the program.

Fetterolf also urged the continuation of the current commitment of 2 cents per pack of state cigarette tax revenues for the state farmland preservation program.

"The farmland preservation program has made an important contribution to the future of agriculture," he said, "Over 25,000 acres have been preserved for future agricultural use, and interest continues to grow in rural areas of the commonwealth to designate farm areas as agricultural security areas and to preserve prime farmland within these areas through conservation easement purchases."

Fetterolf recommended that the General Assembly consider expanding the concept of providing a permanent and reliable source of farmland preservation funding.

1992 Crop Loans Announced

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Jenifer K. Minnich, county executive director of the Lebanon County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said price support loans on 1992 wheat, oats, rye and barley will be available through March 31.

Loans on corn, sorghum and soybeans are available through May 31.

County loan rates per bushel are: wheat, $2.53; corn, $1.95; barley, $1.29; oats, $1.05; rye, $1.63; grain sorghum, $2.87; and soybeans $5.07.

"Many farmers use our price support loan program to obtain interim operating capital or hold their grain for future delivery," Minnich said. The loans have a nine-month maturity date with variable monthly interest rates.

"Maturing 1992-crop wheat is not eligible for the farmer-owned reserve," she said.

In 1992, ASCS authorized producers whose 1992-crop grain did not meet the minimum quality requirements to pledge that grain as collateral for a recourse loan.

"Loan rates were determined on the grade of the crop, based on the test weight," said Minnich, "and reflected the applicable loan discounts." The grain is not eligible for entry into the Farmer-Owned reserve.

"Traditionally, recourse loans have been available on high moisture feed grains as part of our price support program and for commodities stored on the ground or in unapproved structures," Minnich said.

The ASCS official said distress loans are loans made on grain stored on the ground or in unapproved structures. Other recourse loans are mainly grains with low test weight.

To be eligible for price support loans and other farm program benefits, producers must participate in acreage reduction programs. The 1993 program opens March 1.

Eligibility for participation in all programs administered by ASCS is on a nondiscriminatory basis as established under law without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex, marital status or disability.

Monitor Stored Grain As Air Temps Rise

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — As spring approaches and air temperatures begin to rise, corn growers with on-farm grain storage should inspect their crop at least once each week.

Northrup King senior agronomist John Harker said the variability in crop condition and moisture levels during last fall's harvest could become evident with warmer temperatures. Hot spots and molds may develop in the bin and, if left unchecked, could reduce the commercial value and feed value of the grain.

Harker says growers should begin an inspection by examining the surface of the grain for changes and indications of potential problems. Crusting and wet, frozen grain indicate a problem. Growers should also check the roof of the bin for condensation and should smell the grain for musty, moldy odors. It's also good to run the fan to check exhaust for odors.

If aeration is needed, growers should run the fans as long as the outdoor air is not more than 10 degrees warmer than the grain. Growers should also aerate on dry days to avoid pushing moisture into the grain. However, if heating is occurring, the Northrup King agronomist says growers should run fans, regardless of weather, until heating stops.

If heating continues, options include drying the grain down further and cleaning out fines, molds, and broken kernels.

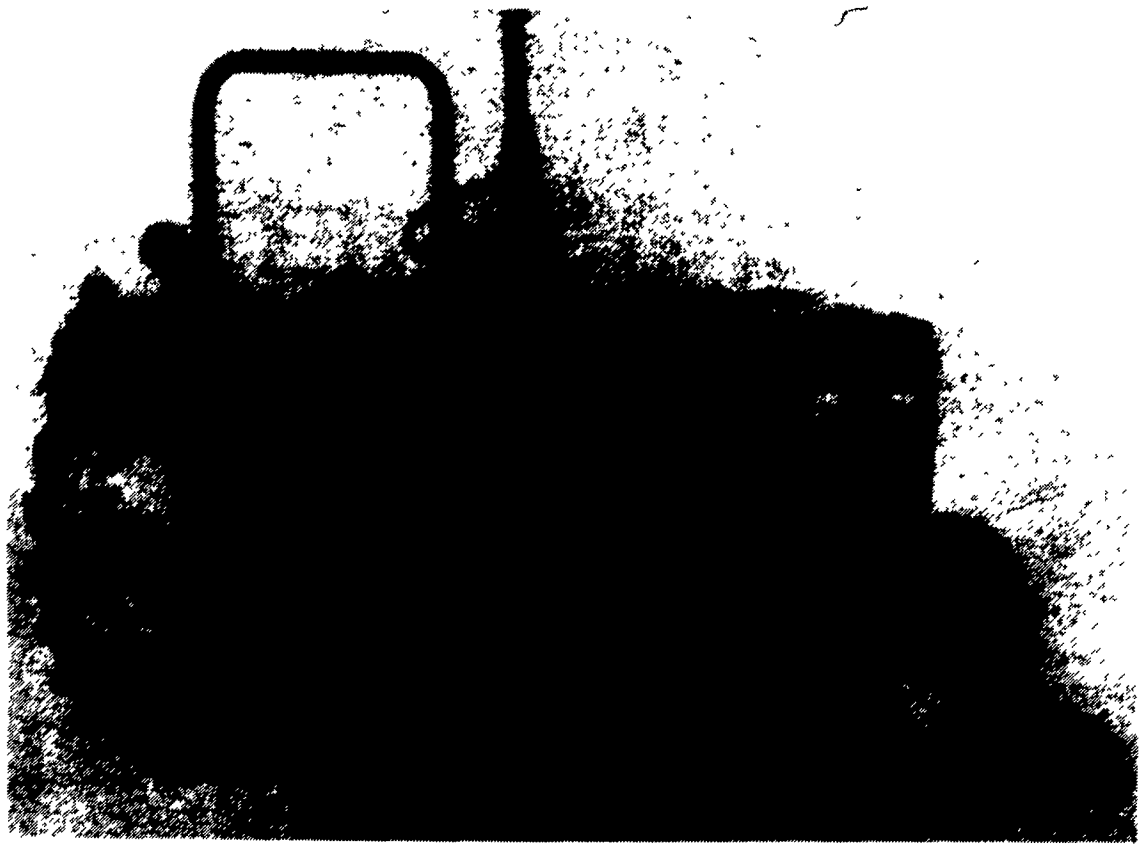
Deere Tractors In 'Best Of '92' Feature

MOLINE, Ill. — In its annual survey, Business Week Magazine (Jan. 11, 1993 issue) asked its editors around the world to nominate the best new products of 1992. John Deere's new 6000 and 7000-series tractors were selected by the magazine for inclusion in their roster of "the year's most remarkable performers."

Business Week noted that after Deere asked farmers what features they wanted in new tractors, what Deere provided were "sleek tractors built safe and tough, with sound-proof cabins, posture-perfect seats, and 29 percent more glass for visibility." The article also included a large photograph of one of the new 7000-series tractors, which was introduced to the marketplace in the fall of 1992.

Deere's 6000 and 7000-series tractor line is a completely new family of tractors designed to meet the needs of farmers worldwide.

Zebra Condenses Full-Size Power Into Compacts



HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The new Zebra compact tractor models 2520 and 3520 are economically-priced, fuel-efficient, no-frills tractors scaled down in size but not in power. They can be equipped to handle the same chores a full-size tractor handles — and some it can't — from cleaning out chicken houses to digging irrigation ditches.

These versatile, compact tractors can be equipped with a front end loader, including material bucket, manure fork and dirt plate, pallet fork and dozer blade. Both models have 540 PTO and Cat. 1 three-point hitches for using back hoes, mowers, brush hogs, blades, scrapers, plows and sprayers.

The 25 or 35 HP water-cooled wet sleeve diesel engines are fuel efficient and have 10 forward and two reverse speeds. Zebra's heavyweight chassis provides added stability and traction at a price that's compact: $8,800 for the Zebra Model 2520 and $9,500 for the Zebra Model 3250.

The new Zebra line of compact tractors is available now at Zetor dealers across America. For more information, contact Marvin Brown, general manager, Zetor Division, American Jawa, Ltd., 7301 Allentown Blvd., Harrisburg, (717) 540-5618.

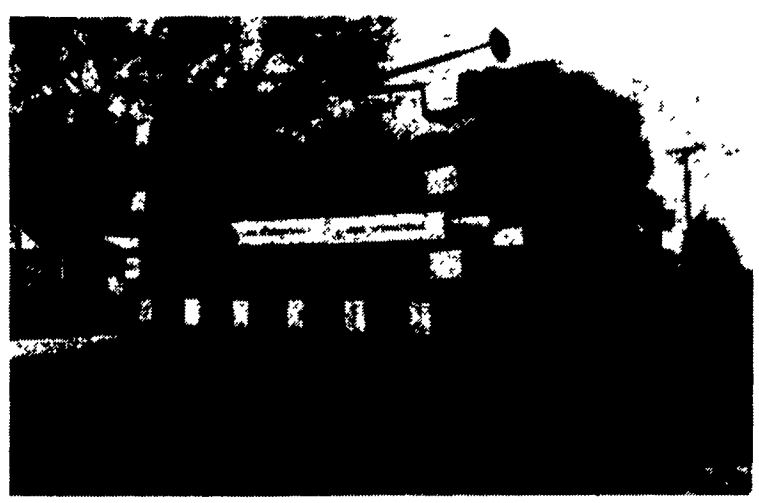
Case Introduces 950 Series Folding Planters

RACINE, Wis. — JI Case has just introduced the 950 Series trailing Cyclo Air® Early Riser® front- and vertical-fold planters.

According to Kurt Schenck, Case product manager-implements, these new planters provide all the superior technology built into previous Case International planters with the important advantages of easy transportability and fertilizer capability.

Case will begin limited production and distribution of 950 Series 16-row front- and 12-row vertical-fold planters next month and will start full production by late 1993 for the 1994 planting season. Case plans to introduce additional row configurations in accordance with customer demands.

Both new models can be folded and unfolded quickly and easily from the tractor seat. On the 16-row front-fold planter, folding is completed by raising the toolbar to transport height and folding the wings simultaneously until they are parallel with the telescoping tongue. Transport width is 15 feet 8 inches. On the 12-row vertical-fold planter, folding is accomplished by raising the wings one at a time. Transport width is 20 feet 6 inches.



This 12-row vertical-fold Case International 950 Series planter folds to a transport width of 20 feet 6 inches. Like the new front-fold planter, it is fertilizer compatible and features field-proven Case IH Cyclo Air seed system, convenient central hopper, and Early Riser row-unit technology.

On both new planters, the seed modules are free-standing units rather than part of the tool bar. This increases durability by minimizing stress factors that can affect the rotation of the seed drum. According to Schenck, the increased structural strength adds to the reliability of the unit and provides more uniform in-row spacing.

Both planters are also available with a new, heavy-duty, single-disk, parallel-linkage fertilizer opener, capable of operating in no-till conditions, This can be used for liquid or dry fertilizer applications.

"More and more of our customers are looking for equipment that helps them comply with conservation tillage mandates," said Schenck. "By applying fertilizer during planting, they eliminate a trip across their fields and reduce input costs.

"This is in addition to the advantages they already get simply by virtue of using a Case International planter," he said. "Just last year, Case International planters were cited in Wisconsin's State Resource Conservationist as 'an exception' to the usual need for coulters ahead of the disk openers to cut residue. Our unique Early Riser row units have staggered double-disk openers that cut through the residue common in reduced- and no-till conditions and even sod."

Other exclusive features of the Case International Early Riser row units include front pull equalizing depth gauge wheels and a special furrow firming point that provides a well-defined V furrow bottom. This combination provides more uniform depth control and better seed placement, especially in rough ground. "The end result with the Early Riser system is that you get excellent seed-to-soil contact for optimum germination," said Schenck.

Drill Ideal For Double Crop Soybeans

JAMESTOWN, N.D. — New from Haybuster Manufacturing, Inc., is a folding no-till drill. Ideal for double crop soybeans and all field conditions from conventional till to no-till, the Haybuster Folding Drill is 25 foot with 7½-inch row spacings and 75 bushel seed capacity. The weight is 16,000 pounds empty. There is a choice of five press wheel designs. It quickly converts from field to transport position and offers depth and down pressure adjustments.

For more information, contact Haybuster Manufacturing Inc., P.O. Box 1940, Jamestown, ND 58402-1940, (701) 252-4601.

THE 5240 MAXXUM®: PROOF THAT LEADERSHIP NEVER STANDS STILL.

5240 MAXXUM: 100 PTO hp

Three years ago, the original line of Case International MAXXUM tractors set a standard for the mid-size class that is yet to be matched. And now that standard is about to be raised. ■ Introducing the new 5240 MAXXUM—A mid-size tractor that refuses to act that way. With the kind of deep, reassuring power reserves that fieldwork demands. A standard 16F/12R transmission that ensures total versatility. And a list of features so complete that no job will seem out of reach. ■ For three years, we've compiled your suggestions regarding the original MAXXUM line. And now those suggestions are part of every new 5240. ■ You wanted more visiblity; we added exclusive all-glass doors. You asked for easier implement attachment; we added ground-level hitch control. You wanted more muscle; we added horsepower, durability and efficiency. All in all, more than 50 changes have been made. ■ Stop by and see the new 5240 MAXXUM today. And bring along some high expectations.

Homeowners Overuse Pesticides In Gardens

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Nearly nine out of 10 Maryland homeowners (88 percent) use pesticides to get rid of pests in their gardens.

Studies indicate that up to 95 percent of this use is unnecessary.

Biological control may be more effective than pesticides, is not harmful to the environment, and is often much cheaper.

Using natural enemies, such as predators or parasites, is one aspect of biological control and is at the heart of Dr. Michael Raupp's current research.

"I believe that biological control will be a big part of the future," he said.

Most of the biological control research being done concerns food crops. And yet, according to Raupp, a professor of entomology at the University of Maryland College Park, the production of ornamental plants in greenhouses and nurseries is Maryland's largest agricultural crop industry.

The interactions between predatory insects and their prey is virtually unknown for systems involving ornamental plants, he said.

"A greater understanding of the potential and limitations of biological control will benefit virtually all of Maryland's citizens directly by reduced losses to pests," said Raupp, "and indirectly through reduced environmental contamination caused by unnecessary pesticide use when alternative controls, such as natural enemies, are available."

Raupp's study is a part of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station's Integrated Pest Management (IPM) program—a program that uses multiple techniques to combat pests in the most efficient manner.

"A vital component absent from current landscape and nursery IPM programs is classical biological control," Raupp said. "My research provides a foundation for incorporating classical biological control into IPM programs for landscape plants and nurseries in Maryland."

Of several biological control agents, Raupp and his two graduate students are studying the Korean ladybug, Chilocorus kuwanae. They hope to find out which pests it can be used most effectively against and how quickly it can establish control over these pests in natural settings.

This ladybug is a natural enemy of the Euonymus scale, an insect pest that attacks Euonymus plants, which are small trees and shrubs commonly found in the landscape.

Beyond its ability to thrive on the Euonymus scale, Raupp found that, in the laboratory, the Korean ladybug can survive on the San Jose scale as well.

"In terms of performance," he said, "it does just as well on the San Jose scale as it does on the Euonymus scale." The San Jose scale attacks both fruit trees and many types of commonly used landscape plants.

Most Korean ladybugs, when given a choice between the two, prefer the Euonymus scale. However, Raupp found that a small percentage—about 10 percent—of the Korean ladybug population preferred the San Jose scale. This might be an interesting subpopulation to study, he said.

"For the classical biological approach to be accepted as a viable management option, its merit must be evaluated in 'real world' settings," Raupp said.

To this end, he and his graduate students have released the Korean ladybug at a housing project in Baltimore and several government facilities in Washington, D.C.

Raupp released his first 50 ladybugs in 1990. After tracking them for three years, there are now several thousand at the site. Many have migrated to plants on which they hadn't been released.

"That's the upside," Raupp said. "The downside is that when the pest population is high, the ladybug is not able to achieve successful biological control." However, when the pest population is moderate to low, and the environmental conditions are favorable, it appears to maintain scale populations below damaging levels.

After the study's first year, "we did observe a dramatic decline in pest populations at several locations where beetles were released," Raupp said. "However, at several sites nearby, where no ladybugs were present, scale populations also declined." He concluded that factors other than the ladybugs—such as unfavorable weather—were responsible for the pest reductions.

Raupp's research has raised many more questions about biological control: What are the environmental factors that favor pests, weaken plants and put predators at a disadvantage?

"The bottom line here is that we have to be careful," he said. "Careful experimentation will help us avoid making premature recommendations concerning the use and efficacy of biological control agents such as ladybugs."

Some researchers believe that parasites, like wasps which lay their eggs inside the pests, may be better at controlling pest populations than predators.

"Maybe a combination of the two will be the best solution," Raupp said. He hopes to include parasites in his future research.

PennAg Speakers Named

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Penn Ag Industries Association has scheduled four key speakers for its September convention in Ocean City, Md., including the president and chief executive of Purina Mills Inc.

Seminar speakers will be:

• Jack Jackson, a former instructor for the U.S. Air Force Training Command, and later a consultant to Boeing Co. and American Airlines.

Jackson helped initiate the use of jet aircraft technology in commercial aircraft and received several service awards from American Airlines. He will discuss business competition in a "deregulated, rapidly changing corporate world."

• Edward McMillan, who joined Purina Mills almost 25 years ago as a salesman and today is the company's president and chief executive.

McMillan graduated from the University of Illinois and Dartmouth University's Graduate School of Credit and Financial Management. He is involved in numerous agricultural trade and business organizations.

• Dr. Alan L. Keyes, who received his doctorate from Harvard University, joined the Foreign Service in 1978 and served as vice counsel in India, Desk Officer in the Office of Southern African Affairs, and was a top planner for the U.S. State Department.

An architect of the Reagan Administration's United Nations policies, Keyes will speak about American politics and foreign policy.

• Dr. Nancy W. Bauer, president of Bauer Associates Inc., who founded the University of Pennsylvania's Dynamics of Organization program, in which business managers work with school faculty.

Bauer's presentation will deal with competitive strategy and the relationship of technology to organization.

The organization's 115th convention will run from Sept. 12 to 15. For more information, contact Penn Ag at (717) 733-2238.

Marketing Conference Set

AURORA, Ore. — The 1994 annual National Farm Direct Marketing Conference will be held at Pheasant Run Resort & Convention Center, St. Charles, Ill., January 9-11. The preconference tour is planned for January 6-8.

The program is already taking shape. Farm direct marketing has proven to be a positive method of marketing farm crops. Whether you farm a city lot or 1,000 acres, you will gain by the association of these progressive farmers.

Beginning this year, a membership to the National Farm Direct Marketing Conference will cost $25 per operation. A newsletter will be sent to members to keep them informed.

Send your checks to Jim Bell, Tres. Dept. of Ag., Virginia Tech., Blacksburg, VA 24060.

Newly elected President Ed Stritzke of Aurora, Ore. reports that the 1993 conference held in January at Portland, Ore. was rated the best ever. More than 850 attended from 38 states, six provinces of Canada, and England.

Keynote speaker Paul Hawkins and Dr. Timothy Ball presented speeches on the effects humans and weather have on our environment. More than 100 speakers spoke about farm direct marketing, farmers markets, business management, employee training, and much more.

The pre- and post-conference tours included 28 different farms and markets in the Northwest.

STRESS-FREE ROW CROP GUIDANCE

- Unique design keeps the implement parallel with the rows even when the tractor moves laterally as it drifts off course Most other systems oversteer the toolbar which adds damaging side pressure to the stabilizing coulters
- Automatically compensates for sidehill drift
- Eliminates excessive pull and stress on hydraulic components associated with other guidance systems
- Very few moving parts provide smooth, friction-free lateral movement.
- Works effectively on all conventional and ridge-till cultivators, planters and 4-wheel drive articulated tractors.

Biodegradables Hold Export Potential

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "Biodegradable materials based on agricultural products as opposed to those manufactured from petroleum represent a potential large-volume market," said Dr. Ramani Narayan, in his address to the U.S. Feed Grains Council's 33rd membership meeting.

Through work at the Michigan Biotechnology Institute, Dr. Narayan and his colleagues are proposing that the new corn-based biodegradables they develop could represent significant contributions in both the domestic and international marketplaces.

"We must remember that we depend heavily on foreign oil imports, which cost us greatly, while our own agricultural products contribute approximately 20 percent of the gross national product," said Narayan.

Although some groups decry the use of such biodegradables as being expensive, Narayan explained why they are gaining in popularity. "We see a real shift in what consumers are demanding. They want to conserve long-term renewables such as oil and decrease the amount of waste we create. Unfortunately, many packaging materials are designed with little consideration for their ultimate recyclability or disposability."

Because of consumer demand, natural polymers based on agricultural feedstuffs such as corn "are no longer a fad," said Narayan. One such product now available is a corn-based packing filler similar to polystyrene foam curls. The corn-based material is fully degradable in water, but retains the same resiliency and compressibility factors as the polystyrene predecessor. Narayan also mentioned that such products as disposable cutlery and coated drinking cups have been developed from corn polymers. "On top of using a less expensive, more quickly renewable resource, these polymers have the added bonus of biodegrading back into the soil system, helping us address decreased supplies of organic material, nutrient and water retention problems, and soil erosion concerns."

Narayan says the United States produces about 60 billion pounds of plastic materials each year, with about 20 billion pounds in the form of single-use packages. Japan produces approximately 25 billion pounds of plastics.

"If we were to target just 20 percent of the Japanese market over a three-year period, it would create a new market for 200 million bushels (mbu) of corn; this represents a potential market increase of 1.2-1.5 percent," said Narayan. He cautioned that "this ability to enhance consumer goods in an environmentally friendly way, in both the domestic and international marketplaces, comes once in a lifetime."

Free Trade Pits Farmer Against Farmer

AMES, Iowa — The pitfalls of the U.S./Canadian Free Trade Agreement (FTA) have manifested themselves again in an increasingly bitter disagreement between American and Canadian durum wheat producers.

National Farmers Organization (NFO) President Steve Halloran sees this growing rift between U.S. and Canadian wheat farmers as "indicative of how free trade ends up pitting farmer against farmer and prevents farmers on both sides of the border from focusing upon the one overriding problem they both share - low wheat prices.

"We shouldn't blame either U.S. farmers or Canadian farmers for taking the stance they have. U.S. farmers want trade loopholes closed. The Canadians are taking advantage of the FTA the way it was signed. Each side is fighting to represent what it perceives as the best interests of its durum wheat farmers," he said. "The problem is not which farmers are right or wrong. The problem is that the whole concept of negotiated free trade is wrong.

"Trade disagreements like this one siphon off precious organizational resources that would pay off better in efforts to improve wheat prices in both countries. If these ill-conceived free trade pacts proliferate, I can see the day coming soon when U.S. and Canadian farmers had better be ready for cooperation, not confrontation, or we'll all be losers," he said.

Canadian durum wheat sales into the U.S. this year total 22-million bushels - representing more than one-quarter of all the durum wheat the U.S. will use.

The trade dispute boiled over when the binational panel to arbitrate and rule on FTA ag trade disagreements sided with the Canadians on transportation subsidies and price disclosure issues.

Immediately, on February 10, the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG) issued a news release condemning Canadian Wheat Board durum wheat trading practices. In the same news release, NAWG president Jeff Lunderg called the FTA "an outrage to American wheat farmers that we cannot afford to have repeated in future trade agreements. For that reason, the NAWG will actively oppose the North American Free Trade Agreement as it is currently written."

In a related correspondence, North Dakota U.S. Senator Kent Conrad fired off a strongly-worded letter to new U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor requesting that Kantor begin immediately to close anti-competitive trade loopholes in the U.S./Canadian FTA and negotiate side-agreements in NAFTA. "We cannot allow flawed, unfair provisions of the U.S./Canadian FTA to extend to the NAFTA and undercut U.S. grain growers in Mexican markets as well as our own," Conrad said.

The National Farmers Organization has consistently opposed both the FTA and NAFTA on the basis that it's virtually impossible to negotiate, sign, and implement equitable trade agreements; the agreements were negotiated in secrecy, and the agreements supercede U.S. law, turning power over the American economy to unelected international panels and making it impossible for the U.S. Congress to correct flaws in the trade pacts.

"I hope that U.S. and Canadian wheat farmers, acting through NAWG and the Canadian Wheat Board, can resolve the durum wheat trade issue before it escalates and sours our current friendly international relationship," Halloran said. "We farmers gain nothing from fighting among ourselves. International cooperation to improve farm commodity prices will pay more dividends."

Livestock Notes

The Calving Kit
John Comerford
Penn State Beef Specialist

Calves will be hitting the ground soon in most beef herds and it's time to review the 10 contents of any calving kit.

1. A record book. Not to be overlooked, we have to think further ahead and be sure there is an accurate calving record for each cow. This is essential information for all performance programs, and provides the breeder with valuable details about the success of the nutrition and breeding program for the heard.

2. Portable scales. Recording of actual birth weights has become important information for purebred producers in merchandising their cattle and participating in their breed's performance programs. It can also give the commercial breeder insight into the selection of bulls for breeding to specific cows in the herd for next year.

3. Obstetrical chains. Anybody who breeds cattle has to pull a calf on occasion. The chains are the safest and easiest way to get the calf alive without injury to the cow. When asked when a calf should be pulled, I usually answer that I have not seen very many pulled too early, but I have seen several pulled too late. Remember: keep them clean and pull a calf down between the cow's hocks while rotating it through the pelvis. Pull only when cow pushes.

4. Implants. Volumes of research has shown the value of implanting calves at birth, particularly steer calves. Remember: do not ever implant a bull calf that may be used for breeding and be sure the implant you have is cleared for use in newborn calves.

5. Ear tags. There will never be an easier time for both you and calf to tag it than when you find it. If for no other reason, they sure are easier to catch!

6. A knife or heavy scissors. For bull calves that are destined to be steers, the least amount of stress in castration will be at a younger age. You can successfully castrate a calf at birth with a little knowledge of testicular tissue. Be sure to use a spray antiseptic that is sprayed directly into the wound.

7. Iodine? There is a question mark because some vets tell us that if the navel is not dipped before the calf ever hits the ground, it will probably be too late. However, it sure won't hurt to dip the navel as soon as the calf is found.

8. A hammer and nails. This is used to nail the barn door shut during calving. The best calving pastures are those wooded areas on a south slope with good drainage. One of the best medicines to prevent calf scours is sunshine. Larger areas are preferable to small lots for calving because the animal concentration contributes to disease.

9. Esophageal feeder/ Gatorade/corn syrup/scour boluses. For the guy who did not nail the barn door shut. The first thing that has to happen after the calf is born is to get some colostrum in it. If scours do occur, mix some Gatorade with ½ cup of corn syrup in 2 quarts of warm water and feed the calf twice a day with the mix. There are a lot of commercial products out there that also do a fine job, including synthetic colostrum. Early attention to the calf will decrease losses from scours.

10. A thermos of coffee or tea. The most important economic factor in the cow-calf business is the production of a live calf. First-calf heifers are usually checked every 2-3 hours during calving season, and older cows about four times nightly. When a cow needs your assistance, she usually needs it now.

Failure to provide timely assistance can cause the loss of both the cow and the calf. Try feeding late in the evening (after 7 p.m.) and you will have many more calves born during the daylight hours.

What is Farmer's Lung Disease?

During winter, many farmers work in buildings that may not have adequate ventilation. They may be placing themselves at risk for serious respiratory problems.

Among the more severe respiratory conditions is farmer's lung disease. Yet the disease is often misunderstood by farmers and diagnosed by medical personnel. The following information, adapted from the UC Agricultural Health and Safety Center News, answers questions about this chronic health problem.

Farmer's lung disease is a respiratory illness that may develop in agricultural workers who inhale dust containing bacterial or fungal proteins. Typically it occurs in ranchers or farmers who handle silage or compost in a confined space. Symptoms include chest tightness, fever, muscle aches, chills, shortness of breath and sometimes dry cough. Symptoms may develop slowly, several hours after exposure. In the absence of repeated exposure, the symptoms often disappear. Continued exposure can cause loss of normal respiratory function and permanent damage.

The key to preventing farmer's lung disease is to avoid prolonged work with silage or compost in unventilated areas. If that's not feasible, wear personal protective equipment. The minimum respiratory protection would be a toxic dust mask that prevents inhalation of organic particulates. If you develop symptoms, seek medical attention.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs
More Than $129 Million in Extra Payments

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past six years, we returned more than $129 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $36,600 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.7 million a month.

Robert B. McSparran
President

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

Meat Evaluation Center Announces Bull Results

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center wishes to announce the final results of the 20th annual Bull Performance Testing Program.

The bulls finished the 112-day testing period February 16. The bulls have been scanned ultrasonically to determine fat thickness and to get an estimated loin eye measurement. The bulls have been measured for hip height and have undergone a very comprehensive breeding soundness examination which included semen collection, scrotal circumference, and pelvic measurements.

The breeders who have bulls consigned to the testing program are required to be involved with an on the farm performance testing program and consequently the bulls have complete EPDs available which will be published.

The sale committee has met and selected the bulls to be sold in the sale which is scheduled for Friday, March 26 at noon during Pennsylvania's 4th annual Beef Expo.

There will be 20 Angus bulls offered in the sale. The top-indexing Angus is the R & J Maxima son from Geri Gammel of Womelsdorf, Pa. This bull posted an average daily gain of 4.24 pounds per day, an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,247 and outstanding EPDs. His birth weight EPD is +3.8 pounds, weaning weight EPD is +29 pounds, pure milk is +11 pounds, and his yearling weight EPD is +43 pounds.

There were two Angus bulls tied for second high index. They were the GDAR Equalizer bull from Jeff Davis of Chadds Ford, Pa., that gained 4.36 pounds per day on test and the T.C. Dividend bull from Mountain View Farms of Myerstown, Pa., that gained 4.38 pounds per day.

There will be 15 Polled Herefords offered for sale, with a good mix of high growth and high material trait and calving ease bulls.

The top two indexing and gaining Polled Hereford bulls are sons of PS Ghost Ryder 822 and were both consigned by Myron Sevick of Penna. Furnace, Pa. These two growthy, rapid gaining bulls gained 4.81 pounds per day and 4.46 pounds per day respectively. They also had the second and third heaviest adjusted 365-day weights of 1,345 pounds and 1,335 pounds, respectively.

There will be 15 Simmental bulls offered for sale with several black bulls, several calving ease bulls and a number of high yearling weight, rapid growth bulls.

The top-indexing Simmental is the KBJ Tradewind son consigned by Messick Farms. This bull accomplishes the highest average daily gain and adjusted 365-day weight of the 74 bulls of all breeds. The second-highest indexing Simmental is the son of HCC Flame from Lyle Haflett of Canton, Pa. This growthy, black bull had the second fastest ADG of the Simmentals, recording a 4.54 pounds per day.

The outstanding, black polled Gelbvich that will be offered gained 3.95 pounds per day on test and had an adjusted 365-day weight of 1,409 pounds. This very muscular bull is a son of KCF Bennett Z128.

There will be two flashy, eye-appealing Chiangus offered for sale. Both of these meaty bulls were consigned by Nittany Farms of State College, Pa. They recorded average daily gains of 4.00 pounds per day and 3.37 pounds per day and yearling weights of 1,380 pounds and 1,386 pounds.

There will be four high quality polled Charolais bulls offered for sale with average daily gains ranging from 3.47 pounds per day to 3.75 pounds per day and adjusted 365-day weights from 1,359 pounds to 1,409 pounds. The top two indexing Charolais are from Glenn Turk of Warren, Pa., and the other two are from Bratton Charolais Farm of McVeytown, Pa.

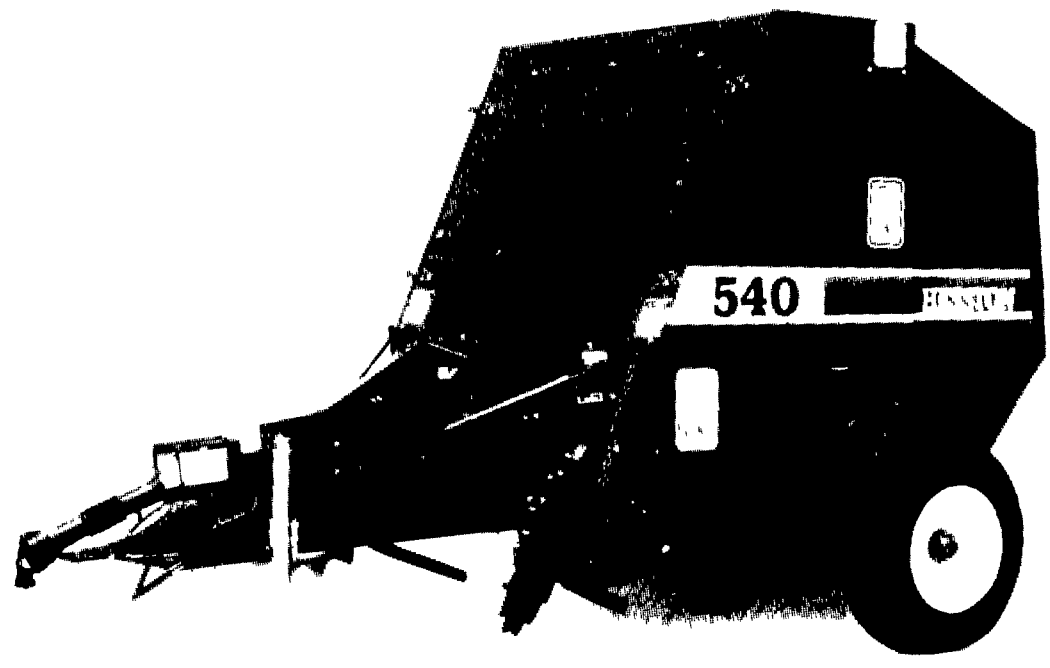
BIGGER BALES. WITHOUT A BIGGER TRACTOR.



Now's The Time To Buy!
See Dealers Below For Company Programs, Financing And Warranty Information

When we designed the 540, we knew you wanted a higher capacity round baler with versatility and convenience. We also knew you liked your tractor.

Truth is, you can keep your present tractor. Because with the 540 attached, all you need is a minimum 45 PTO hp tractor. We built the 540 with all the features of a large baler but in a compact, low-profile design. The direct-feed, open-throat design makes for fast bale starts and easy operation, and the variable chamber makes bales from 30" to 51".

You'll be able to handle a wide variety of crops with great maneuverability. All with your current tractor.

So stop in at your AGCO/Hesston dealer listed here and ask about our flexible financing plans for the 540. Or our wide selection of other equipment, all backed by the AGCO Warranty Program. Hesston. It'll change the way you look at hay fields forever.

Tewksbury Blasts Pricing Formula

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — Any pricing system that sets the same price to dairy farmers in 1993 as it did in 1979 certainly needs to be replaced, claims Arden Tewksbury Mgr. of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag).

Speaking at a meeting of dairy farmers in Wyalusing, Tewksbury blasted the present pricing formula that establishes prices for area dairy farmers.

Tewksbury said the Minnesota-Wisconsin (M & W) Grade B manufactured price that determines the majority of milk prices is antiquated, out-dated, unreliable, unrealistic, and easily manipulated.

The Pro Ag Manager said the M & W price sets the price on milk used for manufactured purposes in the federal milk marketing orders throughout the United States and the formula eventually sets the pay price to dairy farmers.

Milk prices paid to area dairy farmers during the Spring of 1993 could go down to $10.85 per cwt, according to Tewksbury, and this is where the price was in "1979".

Tewksbury asked the crowd, "Can you imagine any other segment of our economy operating on 1979's prices?" Tewksbury was also critical of some farm organizations and dairy co-operatives that are not addressing the serious pricing problems facing dairy farmers

Tewksbury called on dairy farmers to "leapfrog" over their organizations (that are in a limbo on dairy farmers prices), and support the efforts of Pro Ag to establish a new pricing formula based on the average cost of producing milk.

At a National Milk Hearing on June 17th, 1992 at Alexandria, Virginia, Pro Ag, N.F.O. (New York Farm Alliance), and the National Dairy Campaign people testified in favor of the new pricing formula.

According to U.S.D.A. the average cost of producing milk in the United States for 1990 was $14.98 per cwt., but in the Northeast the cost was $16.46 per cwt. Tewksbury said these figures indicate that dairy farmers are being paid about $5 ($.50 per gallon) per cwt. under their cost of production.

A survey conducted by Pro Ag indicates supermarkets in northeastern Pennsylvania are currently selling whole milk for $2.23 per gallon, but Tewksbury claims in February of 1990 the same stores were selling milk at $2.55 per gallon. This means milk currently being purchased by consumers is $.32 a gallon cheaper than three years ago in 1990. Pro Ag officials claim all of the 32 cents per gallon has come from a lower farm price.

Pro Ag wants all farmers, agricultural business people, and consumers to support their efforts. Pro Ag officials can be reached at (717) 833-5776 or (717) 924-3518.

Fan Has Corrosion-Resistant Housing

LANSING, Mich. — For swine producers and poultry contract growers working with ventilation systems in corrosive environments, Aerotech, Inc., has introduced a new version of its low-cost Grower™ fan with a fiberglass housing.

The new fiberglass Grower has the same excellent reliability and high performance as previous Grower fans, and the added benefit of a housing that is corrosion-proof.

The fiberglass Grower fans are available in the 48-inch size with belt-drive and in the 36-inch size with direct-drive or belt-drive.

All fiberglass Grower fans feature a polymer-coated, galvanized-steel propeller and high efficiency motor. The belt-drive models also feature Aerotech's exclusive AeroLink™ belt that eliminates the need for troublesome belt tighteners while reducing vibration, wear, and stretching for longer belt life.

Options include fiberglass discharge cone and guard for up to 15 percent greater performance, and aluminum or plastic inlet shutters.

Aerotech markets a full line of environmental control products including fans, evaporative cooling systems, heaters, and controls. For more information, contact Aerotech, Inc., 929 Terminal Road, Lansing, MI 48906, (800) 227-AERO or (517) 323-2930.

Many Advantages To Land Leasing

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Agricultural land ownership has changed over the years. So has the number of people involved in agriculture. This report from the USDA shares some of the trends in "agland" ownership. This report was distributed through Cornell Cooperative Extension.

Farmers have been leasing more land, instead of buying it, in recent years. "A desire for more management flexibility is one reason for this trend," said economist Denise Rogers of USDA's Economic Research Service (ERS).

"Many producers have found that they can lower their financial risk through leasing instead of owning land," Rogers said. Capital can be used for financing machinery, equipment, and other inputs, instead of buying land.

Large investments are commonplace in farming, and land represents the biggest investment of all. "Nearly three-fourths of U.S. agriculture's assets, by value, are in real estate," Rogers said.

The 1987 Census of Agriculture (the most recent one—the next is scheduled for 1992) showed that 41.7 percent of U.S. farmland was rented, compared with 38.9 percent in 1982, 37.4 percent in 1974, and 35.7 percent in 1969.

More than 402 million acres of farmland were rented in 1987, an increase of nearly 19 million since 1982.

At the same time, less land overall is being used for agriculture. Total land in farms decreased from 1.12 billion acres in 1959 to 1.0 billion in 1974 to 964 million in 1987.

The most popular type of farmland tenure now combines owning and leasing land. Part owners, who own some of the land they farm and rent some of it, accounted for 53.9 percent of the land in farms in 1987. However, since their farms tend to be larger, only 29.2 percent of farm operators were in the part-owner category.

Full owners—who own all the land they farm—accounted for nearly 33 percent of U.S. farmland in 1987 and comprised nearly 60 percent of all farm operators. Tenants, who rent all the land they farm, make up the other category of farm tenure in the Census of Agriculture data. In 1987 they accounted for 11.5 percent of the farms and farmed 13.2 percent of the land. (In the 1930s, 40 percent of all farm operators were tenants.)

Leasing can be for a fixed cash payment, with the operator assuming all the risk, or for a share of the crop and inputs, with the operator and landowner sharing the risk, or for some other agreed-to arrangement.

"Many types of share and fixed rental agreements are used by farmers around the country, but the census data are not broken down into different types of leases," Rogers said.

More than 87 percent of the leased farmland in 1987 was rented from nonoperating landlords, who owned farmland but did not operate farms themselves. The remaining 13 percent was rented from landlords who also had their own farming operations.

Of 10 types of commodities, the highest percentages of land leased in 1987 were for cotton farms (63 percent), cash grains (54 percent), and vegetables and melons (50 percent). The lowest percentage, with only 15 percent of the land leased, was for fruit and tree nuts. Land leased for poultry operations totaled 25 percent, dairy farms 34 percent, and beef cattle operations 38 percent. By state, Alaska was the highest at 73 percent of farmland leased, and massachusetts and New Hampshire the lowest at 13 percent.

Full owners tend to dominate the smaller classes of farms, Rogers said, and part ownership is the main tenure arrangement for larger farms. The average size of part-owner operations is 854 acres—452 rented and 402 owned. Full-owner operations average 257 acres, and tenant-operated farms 528 acres.

Part owners farm 54 percent of all land in farms and account for 47 percent of all farm-product sales. More than half of all farms with sales exceeding $100,000 annually are operated by parts owners. Full-owner farms account for 28.7 percent, and tenant farms 14.3 percent.

"Ownership arrangements have a wide variety of equity and capital requirements," Rogers said. She adds that heavily indebted ownership, such as a mortgage financed by a low down payment, may impose significantly more capital restriction on land use and investments than does leasing the land.

Owning the land offers certain advantages, of course. "Ownership eliminates the costs and risks of negotiating leases or the risk of having a lease terminated," the economist said. It gives the owner a fuller set of rights than is likely to come with leasing, and can result in capital gains associated with appreciation.

"There is also an intangible measure of satisfaction from owning land, reflecting the importance our society places on ownership," Rogers said. Leasing, on the other hand, provides a range of opportunities for access to farmland while spreading risk and managing cash-flow, she said.

Relative costs of land and capital influence decisions about buying or renting land for farm operations, Rogers said. Farms that require large investments in immobile capital—such as dairies or orchards—have higher rates of land ownership, because operators seek the security associated with ownership.

But the types of farm oeprations that require significant investment in mobile capital are more likely to lease land. Cotton and cash grain farms are examples.

Most of the increasing number of very large farms are operated by part owners. The only categories of farm size that have been showing increasing numbers are farms with sales of $500,000 and those operating more than 1,000 acres.

Leasing is also used by young operators entering farming as a means of acquiring farming experience before typing up capital and assuming the risk of land ownership.

Individuals or families operate 87 percent of all farms. Fewer than 10 percent of farms are organized as partnerships.

"Farming is not being taken over by corporations," Rogers said. Less than four percent of all farms are incorporated. Of farm corporations, 90 percent are family owned. Non-family farm corporations constitute 0.3 percent of all farms, farm one percent of the land, and sell six percent of the farm products, by value.

Bartlett Establishes Scholarship

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Howard D. Bartlett, professor emeritus of agricultural engineering in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, has set up an endowment of $15,000 to establish the Howard D. Bartlett Scholarship in Agricultural and Biological Engineering.

Bartlett joined Penn State in 1956 as an associate professor of agricultural engineering and retired with emeritus rank in 1981. He served as acting head of agricultural engineering in 1975-1976. Barlett's dedication to students was formally recognized when he received the Penn State Engineering Society's award for Outstanding Service as a Faculty Adviser to Students in 1966.

"This is a very special gift," said Dr. Dennis Buffington, professor and head of agricultural and biological engineering, and one of Bartlett's advisees as an undergraduate student. "Professor Bartlett dedicated his professional life to higher education, and this scholarship ensures that his commitment to higher education will continue into the future."

The scholarship will provide financial assistance to Pennsylvania students enrolled in the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering who have documented financial need to meet their college expenses.

Recipients must have achieved academic records that show promise of academic success and have a record of activity in student organizations in the profession. Preference will be given to students who demonstrate interest in natural resources conservation.

Bartlett's primary research interests included poultry house ventilation, dairy barn design, silage and grain feeding mechanization, liquid manure injection to soil, and energy recovery from animal wastes. He is author or coauthor of more than 25 technical bulletins, articles, and conference proceeding papers, and many more articles in agricultural, trade, and scientific journals.

Bartlett is a Fellow of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and held membership in the American Society for Engineering Education, the American Society for the Advancement of Science, and the Pennsylvania Society of Professional Engineers. He also is a member of the Sigma Xi, Alpha Epsilon, and Gamma Sigma Delta honor societies.

Nutri-Catalyst A Profitable Herd Investment

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Combining the use of natural ingredients with recent technology, Nutri-Catalyst is strengthening the profit picture on many dairy farms throughout Pennsylvania and Maryland.

The new product, created and distributed by White Oak Mills, is designed to enhance the nutritional value of virtually all types of cattle rations.

"With many years of experience in the dairy business, I have witnessed the sale of a wide variety of unnecessary and even damaging products," said Don Lloyd, director of the dairy department at White Oak Mills.

Farmers are often guilty of buying products without knowing their genuine purpose. Some have catchy names, high levels of vitamins and minerals, phenomenal claims, or perpetual lists of ingredients. However, most of these products fail to compliment the farmers' nutritional programs.

"Frequently, a balanced program is adulterated by one of these unresearched and noncompatible products," said Lloyd.

Concerned with the prosperity of local farmers and dedicated to making a difference in the dairy industry, Lloyd launched an innovative project. His goal was to create a valuable product that would compliment basic feeding programs rather than "pollute" them.

With many years of observation and several ideas in mind, Lloyd set up an organizational meeting with White Oak nutritionist Jorge Estrada and Alltech, Inc. representative Dr. John Beck in early May 1992. Together they researched the use of various ingredients as well as their success or failure rates throughout the years.

After several months of investigating and experimenting, the three man team reached an agreement and a new product was introduced in late September.

"We chose what we knew was natural, effective, and economical," said Lloyd. "And we put it all together into one unique product."

The four components of Nutri-Catalyst — yeast, bacteria, enzymes, and chelated trace minerals — are well documented and provide valuable aid through more efficient feed utilization and better herd health. Their benefits are old knowledge, but the unique combination produces a new technological twist.

Function	Ingredient
Yeast	Helps break down the fiber in the digestive tract.
Lactic Acid-Producing Bacteria	Occurs naturally in the small intestine, required for normal functioning and health
Digestive Enzymes	Speeds digestion of starches, fiber, and protein
Chelated Trace Minerals (Zinc, Copper, Cobalt, Manganese)	Improves health of the udder, feet, legs, and reproductive system and builds up the immune system

The name "Nutri-Catalyst" was created from the idea that the product serves as a nutritional catalyst — enhancing the nutrients that already exist.

"Nobody else is putting a product together like this," said Lloyd. "Our formulation is protected and the name is in the process of being registered with the United States Patent Office."

Nutri-Catalyst is available in both 10 pounds and 30 pounds pails with special latch-on lids to seal in freshness. In an effort to keep the product as dry as possible, it is stored in a plastic bag with silica gel packets surrounding it. A measuring scoop and evaluation card are also included in the bucket. For the customers' convenience, Nutri-Catalyst is now available in 40 pound bags which are handy for refilling empty pails.

Using the recommended dosage of only one ounce per cow per day, most farmers can visually see some results within three weeks.

"Feedback from users has been really good," said Lloyd. Increased feed intake, a more consistent manure condition, and higher solid components in milk are just a few of the observations.

After using Nutri-Catalyst for several months, farmers are seeing evidence of the chelates working in herd health and reproduction.

"Nutri-Catalyst isn't just an additional feed expense. It's a profitable investment in the future of your herd," said Lloyd.

The interest in Nutri-Catalyst has increased considerably over the past several months. As the product continues to reap positive results, distribution is expected to expand both nationally and internationally.

Don Lloyd displays a 40 pound bag and a 30 pound pail of White Oak's new product, Nutri-Catalyst.

Kohl Is Award Recipient

NORTHUMBERLAND (Northumberland Co.) — James F. Kohl, executive vice president of Furman Foods, Inc., has been named the recipient of The Guard Society of the Food Industries' 1993 Outstanding Young Professional Service Award.

The award was presented to Kohl recently in Chicago, Ill. as part of the Society's annual meeting and awards program.

A graduate of Shikellamy High School and Penn State University, Kohl is active in numerous professional activities including president of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association, chairman of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference (1992), Pennsylvania State Agriculture Advisory Board, Pennsylvania Vegetable Research and Marketing Board, Pennsylvania Farmers Assoc., Pennsylvania Horticulture Alliance, Pennsylvania State Department of Horticultural Advisory Council, State of Pennsylvania Agricultural Research and Advisory Council, and board member for Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living.

The Guard Society of the Food Industries is for persons who are leaders in any facet of the food industries. Membership in The Guard Society is a recognition of one's interest in the food industries and their active pursuit of excellence of the food industries.

The function of The Guard Society is threefold: to honor those with given years of service in the food industries, to annually recognize an individual that is 40 years of age or younger who is presently employed in the food industries as the Outstanding Young Professional Service Awardee, and to support the food industries by providing assistance in state, area, and/or national functions and meetings, and to promote the image of the food industries, and processed foods in particular.

The Guard Society nominee must have demonstrated achievement indicating a promising future by their work related to the food industry, support of their chosen profession, and involvement and leadership in community affairs.

Kohl will use the award monies to provide a $1,500 scholarship to the university of his choice for someone in food-related studies.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.
ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

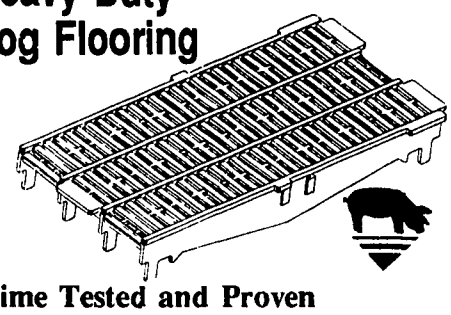
REPLACING HOG FLOORING? CONSIDERING NEW CONSTRUCTION? ☑ CHECK OUT Polygrate™

Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are bevelled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

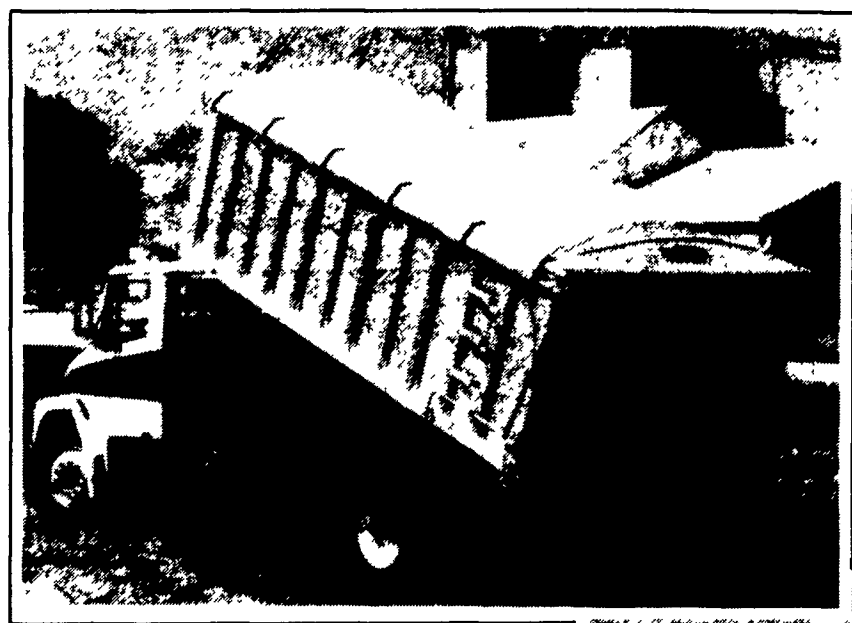
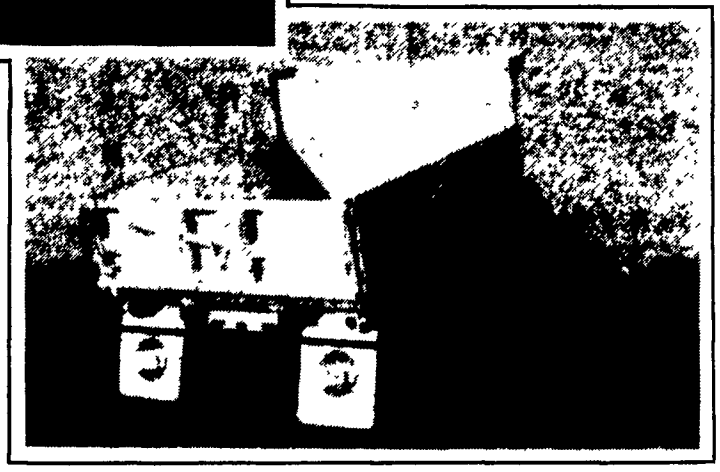
EBY AGRI-DUMP BODIES
Rugged...built like a heavy dump truck



Eby Aluminum Agri-Dump Bodies pay off in dependable long-term service. Their all-aluminum construction means:
- Greater payload efficiency
- Maintenance-free service
- Substantially higher resale value.

Eby's ume-tested design is available in lengths to 24' for grain bodies and 10½' for general purpose dump bodies. A long list of standard features such as tarp rail, built-in steps, aerodynamic uprights and Harsh hoist is complemented by a full range of custom options, including tailgates, Wahpeton tarps and grain chute.

When you select your next grain body or general purpose dump body, consider the value that aluminum offers. It's a worry-free investment in your future.



CHECK OUT THESE FEATURES/BENEFITS
- Up to 40% lighter than steel, for greater payload
- Designed for long life
- Resale value
- Corrosion resistant, never needs painting
- Appearance to complement any truck
- Complete list of popular options, including tailgates, tarps and sides

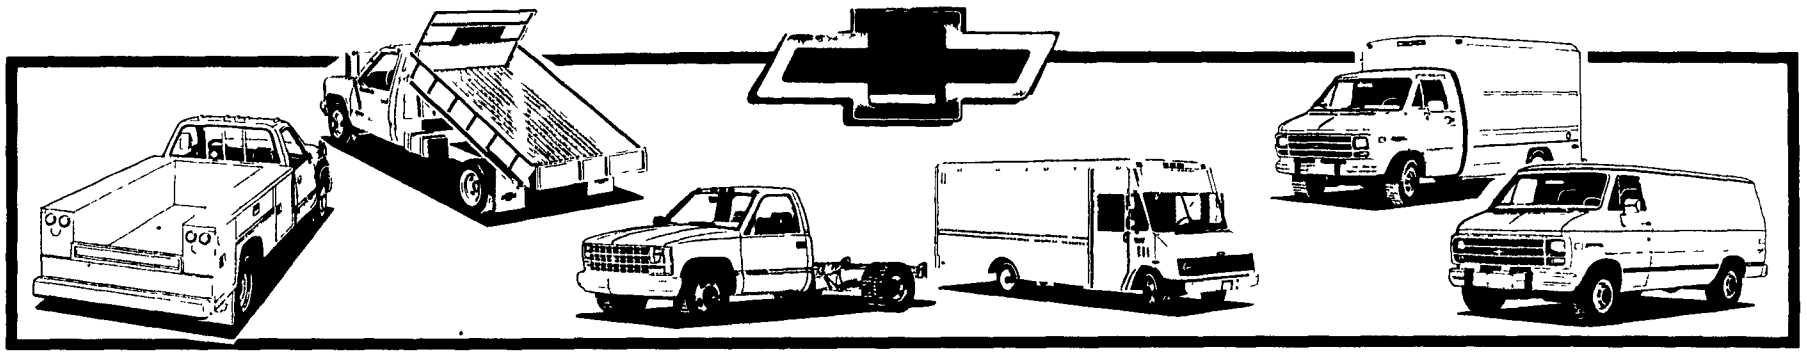
Committed to the Agri Transportation Business

Golden's #1 wants your truck business... and we're ready to work hard to prove it!



Reputation: We may be Reading's newest Chevrolet dealer, but we bring over half a century of experience and a reputation of providing the best in Pennsylvania's transportation services. Now truck owners can get that same dependability and reliability!

Working Trucks: We keep your work trucks working by offering Saturday service from 8am-4 pm. Now you can have your fleet maintained while your company rests-you'll save big with little or no downtime.

Fleet Pricing: You don't have to order 10 or more trucks to get fleet pricing at Golden's #1. In fact, if you're buying the truck for your company, even if it's only 1, you'll get fleet pricing that will save you $$$$. Let us bid on your next vehicle and we'll prove it!

Trained Truck Specialists: If you buy a work truck from a car salesperson, you might end up with the wrong truck. Our truck specialists are trained to make sure the truck you buy will do the job you need done - no more, and certainly no less...

For all your truck needs, call Bob Seitzinger, our commercial truck manager, today at (215) 374-8600. We're looking forward to hearing from you!

INTRODUCES NO HASSLE BUYING

We admit it Car sales have been a game. Dealers inflating prices to negotiate them down Sales people play acting with managers The public has had enough and so have we.

We're Keller Brothers Ford A car dealer with a whole new way of doing business We give you our lowest price up front. No negotiating. No Hassle Buying Why are we doing it? Because it's the right thing to do!

EVERY CAR AND TRUCK IS MARKED WITH THE LOWEST PRICE WE CAN OFFER. OUR LOWEST PRICE... PERIOD!

Multi-Use Livestock Complex Gains Support

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — The Crawford County agricultural community is pooling its energy and resources to bring to reality a multi-use livestock complex at the Crawford County Fairgrounds.

With the approval of the county commissioners, the building steering committee is raising funds so construction can begin as soon as spring weather breaks.

According to Ron Kerr, Titusville, and Bob Rose, Cochranton, cochairmen for the steering committee, the fundraising goal of $175,000 will come from the support of individuals, farms, agribusinesses, and organizations who care about the youth of Crawford County.

The complex will include three existing buildings and two new buildings with clear-span construction to provide for maximum versatility and use. One new building will house the beef cattle during the fair and the other will be a show arena with easy access from the cattle barn as well as the sheep and swine housing areas.

Changes needed to be made to reduce the chance of accidents with livestock and the general public, said Kerr. During the 4-H and FFA livestock show, cattle are lead some distance from the barns to the existing Youth Show Arena.

The current facilities for sheep and swine are limited which restricted the number of youth able to participate in the programs. With the new facility, adequate space will be available for all the market livestock shows and ample room for participants and buyers during the livestock sale.

Some other use of the new clear-span arena include indoor horse and pony shows, sports shows, tourism shows, machinery and industrial trade shows, and many educational programs. The committee plans the complex to be as versatile as possible within their budget restrictions.

Bruce Stainbrook, Meadville, fundraising chairman, reports that to date money and pledges total $70,000 with additional in-kind contributions including grading, trucking, gravel, and cement already promised.

Many businesses are making their contributions through the advertising signs that will be used around the arena, said Rose. Each sign will be at least one 4-foot by 8-foot piece of plywood that has been painted by specified artists. Businesses must contract for at least a five-year period at $100 per year plus fees for the materials and labor to paint the signs. Rose hopes that most of the agricultural businesses and organizations support the project in this way.

Any individual or business that wishes to contribute to the project should send contributions to Crawford County Livestock Building Fund, Fred Wagner, treasurer; Courthouse, Meadville, PA 16335.

For additional information contact Ron Kerr at (814) 438-3831 or (814) 827-1506.

No-Till Available In Montgomery County

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — The Montgomery County Conservation District is geared up and ready to assist county crop producers through the no-till program.

The Conservation District will have the following equipment available to producers for the 1993 planting season: grain drill (1) - 10 feet wide - 7" row spacing for $10/acre and corn planter (1) - 4-row - 30" spacing for $10/acre.

The program not only encourages the use of the no-till system, but also provides the users with a hands-on experience with the latest refinements on the modern equipment.

Since its inception in 1983, the district sponsored program has logged more than 8,400 acres, for a soil savings of approximately 42,015 tons. No-till has become a popular tool for conservation tillage because it reduces the amount of soil lost.

The no-till method may not benefit all farming techniques as conditions and soil type may vary. However, no-till equipment has evolved to a high degree in the past 15 years which has proven to be an asset to many farmers. In addition, time on the field is reduced and fuel and machinery costs are lowered, which reduces the cost of crop production.

The savings are realized by the practice of planting in existing grass or crop residue which eliminates exposing the soil to the impact of rainfall, and concentrated water runoff which washes away soil as well as soil nutrients.

As in conventional farming, herbicides are used to control unwanted vegetation. However, once under control, crop rotation and best management practices may reduce the use of herbicide application.

For additional information or scheduling of the no-till equipment, contact Donald Fitzpatrick at the Montgomery County Conservation District office at (215) 489-4506.

Woodrow Provides Scholarship

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — George V. Woodrow of Onancock, Va., recently established a $25,000 scholarship in his name with Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The George V. Woodrow Scholarship provides recognition and financial assistance to outstanding students in the College of Agricultural Sciences. Consideration is given to all full-time undergraduate students enrolled or planning to enroll in the college with superior academic records or who demonstrate promise of superior academic performance.

The college's scholarship committee selects a number of recipients each year and determines the amount awarded to each. Students who remain eligible may receive the scholarship more than once.

Woodrow received an associate degree in agricultural business at Penn State in 1921. While a student at Penn State, Woodrow was a member of the Delta Chi Fraternity and also worked at the University Creamery, where he helped make cheese and ice cream. After leaving Penn State, he worked as a building inspector for Radnor Township in Delaware County.

Is Your Farm Worthy To Be Named Dairy Of Distinction? Apply Now For This 1993 Beautification Recognition Program.

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

COVINGTON (Tioga County)—The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, Inc., is again looking for applications from nice looking dairy farm to reward the efforts made in beautification. Known as the Dairy of Distinction program, recognition is given to well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store,

State President Dan BAker, a dairyman from Covington, Tioga County, said the program has been well received and program leaders look forward to an excellent program in 1993.

"There are plenty of good looking dairy farms out there that have not been judged," Baker said. "And even those who have entered the selection process in the past years, without success should enter again."

The program provides rewards of recognition to producers who maintain attractive production sites. This recognition benefits the entire dairy industry, as well as individual dairymen. Not only does the favorable publicity generated by the program in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, farmers use the distinction to promote their own operation or seek and hire farm labor.

Paul Nichols, the secretary for the Pennsylvania program, said applications may be sent to him any time after January 1, 1993. Deadline for applications is April 15. Judging is completed in May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings. The states are divided into districts and a local committee oversees the program in each district.

A team of judges designated by the local committee visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In Pennsylvania, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler is asked to be part of the judging process.

"One of the things I always tell people is that even though they may not now have the most fancy place, they can work toward the principles of the Dairy of Distinction program," Nichols said. "By doing this, they work toward a goal that encourages consumers to use more dairy products."

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given by Lancaster Farming to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program.

"As a dairy farmer, you work hard all year long, taking care of your farm," said Helen Fountain, program executive secretary. "In addition to managing your herd, there are lawns to mow, flowers to plant, and overall maintenance to keep farm buildings looking great. You deserve to be recognized for all the hard work, dedication and pride you put into your farmstead.

"It's time you and your farm received some recognition for your hard work. The coveted Dairy of Distinction award will give you that recognition, In addition your attractive farm will enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk, thereby stimulating milk sales and encourage public support for the dairy industry."

Active dairy farms in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are eligible to apply for the award. Criteria for Dairy of Distinction awards include: clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads and lands; and well-maintained fences. Cleanliness of animals, barnyard, feed areas, as well as manure management, are also taken into consideration.

Applications are available from each state's program secretary or local cooperative extension. In New York, contact Evelyn Lightfoote, 3053 Depew Road, Stanley, N.Y. 14561. Phone: (716) 526-6654. In New Jersey, contact Angust Knispel, RD 1, Box 325, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: 201) 735-4989.

In Pennsylvania, you may contact Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Tower Business Building, 239 Schuyler Ave., Kingston, PA 18704.

The North View Farm of the Calvin and Mary Will family in Somerset County is an example of the farms that were designated Dairy of Distinction last year. You are invited to use the application to have your farm named in 1993.

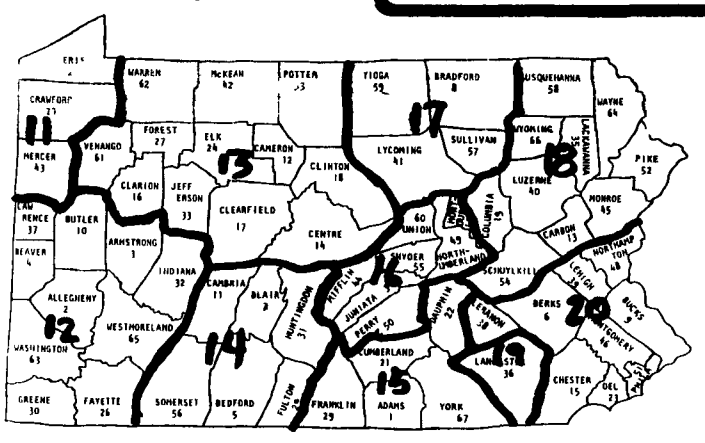
Dairy of Distinction
Dairy Farm Beautification Program



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are: District 11, Leslie Firth; District 12, Wally Jackson; District 13, Susan DuJour; District 14, Janet and David Hileman; District 15, Norman Coons; District 16, Robert and Bernice Gable; District 17, Larue Thomas; District 18, Allen Roszel; District 19, Lisa Risser; and District 20, Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to install at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present a color farm portrait print to each of this year's winners in Pennsylvania. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Most Farmers Likely To Comply With Provisions

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farmland Trust reported that a nationwide survey of farmers with conservation compliance plans shows the majority (53 percent) expected to have completed most of their implementation work by the start of this year, two years ahead of the 1995 deadline.

AFT said the survey also found most producers believe soil erosion will decrease and their earnings will remain the same or rise as a result of their plans. In addition, it noted that most farmers believe that those who do not implement their plans will be discovered and have their farm program benefits eliminated.

AFT, a national farmland conservation group based in Washington, D.C., characterized its findings as encouraging. "The survey results show that the conservation provisions of the 1985 Farm Bill are working," said AFT President Ralph E. Grossi. "They demonstrate that the idea of conservation compliance has been broadly accepted in the farming community.

"While we're gratified, we also recognize that nearly half (47 percent) of the surveyed farmers indicate they will not fully implement their plans until this year or next. It also appears as many as 14 percent of producers do not intend to implement their plans at all. We believe the USDA must do whatever is necessary to ensure all plans are fully and satisfactorily implemented."

Grossi called on the Clinton Administration to establish a public-private task force of producers, USDA representatives, and conservationists to determine what steps must be taken to ensure full compliance. "While our results indicate that many of the non-starters may have had plans that do not require much effort before 1993 or 1994 and others may be confused about when to begin, we still are concerned that we have such a large number of non-compliers this close to the 1995 deadline."

Under the 1985 Farm Bill, producers with highly erodible farmland must completely implement conservation compliance plans by Jan. 1, 1995 to remain eligible for federal farm program payments. Through 1991, more than 1.2 million farmers had written conservation plans for 135 million acres. An additional six million acres requiring another 200,000 plans were added in 1992.

AFT actively participated in the development of the conservation title of the 1985 Farm Bill. Conservation compliance was one of the bill's key provisions. AFT has consistently worked to link farm program benefits to good stewardship of the land and undertook the survey to see how well the compliance provisions are being implemented. Through its newly created Center for Agriculture in the Environment, AFT contracted with J. Dixon Esseks, professor of public administration at Northern Illinois University, and Steven E. Kraft, professor of agribusiness economics at Southern Illinois University, for the survey. Their past research has focused on soil conservation and other natural resource issues.

The two professors surveyed some 1,000 farmers in 100 counties in 32 states. Names were drawn randomly from a list of all producers with conservation compliance plans. Virtually all were farmer operators with highly erodible tracts of land. The survey, which showed no regional bias, consisted of telephone interviews averaging 18 minutes. Nearly 80 percent of the sampled farmers responded to the survey, which took place from Aug. 29 to Nov. 15, 1992. Subsequently, their responses were cross-checked for accuracy.

AFT said the survey uncovered these additional findings:

- Compliance plans tend to be complex (Three or more practices) and represent a substantial portion of producers' farmland. Most common practices are, in order, residue management, crop rotations, grassed waterways, contour farming and terraces.
- The majority of farmers (71 percent) do not want to change their plans. Those who do have added new land or found practices too difficult or uneconomical. Residue management has created the strongest dissatisfaction.
- Farmers are fairly optimistic about the financial impact of their plans. One-third anticipate increased earnings, 39 percent anticipate no change in earnings, and only one-fifth expect to lose money. Those producers with most of their plan implementation efforts completed are more likely to expect to make — or at least not to lose — money.
- Most farmers think producers who do not enact their plans will be caught and have their eligibility for benefits cut off. But the vast majority — 86 percent — believe producers in their county will fully implement their plans by January 1995.
- Most producers think soil erosion in their counties will decrease as a result of their compliance plans.
- Most producers consider the Soil Conservation Service the best source for technical assistance.

W-L Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.

If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.

National Ag Day Reflects American Agriculture

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Across the United States, more than 20 million men and women who provide food and fiber will be honored during National Agriculture Day.

National Agriculture Day and National Agriculture Week coincide with the beginning of spring when thousands of farmers are preparing their fields for planting.

Ag Day is intended to unite the entire food and agriculture industry. Perhaps more importantly, it provides an opportunity to promote a better understanding about the important role our food and agriculture industry plays.

The American food and agriculture system is very diverse. It represents nearly 16 percent of the Gross National Product and provides an estimated 21 million jobs.

Even though the American food and agriculture system is one of the world's richest resources, it is often taken for granted, and sometimes misunderstood. We've forgotten what a production miracle the industry really is. We've forgotten what an extraordinary system it has become, known for variety, abundance, dependability and quality.

Technological advancement is one reason why America's food and agriculture system is a leader in the world marketplace. It is so advanced and respected that many foreign governments are turning to American professionals for assistance.

One key to American agriculture's efficiency and productivity has been an openness to new ideas. The industry keeps discovering new and better methods of producing food and fiber products.

American farmers have also improved their production through sheer determination and an old-fashioned spirit of community cooperation. When the first threshing machines came out, for example, they were too costly for individual farmers to buy. Fed up with the tedious process of hand-threshing, groups of farmers pooled their resources and bought one machine to share. This dramatically improved production because farmers increased their yields and efficiency.

Our openness to new ideas continues today and research projects play such an important role. The industry is continually looking for ways to improve or modify foods so everyone can enjoy them, develop leaner cuts of meat, prolong shelf life of foods, change the composition of produce for transportation, and discover new uses for agricultural products.

But there is always room for improvement, and the industry needs to do a better job communicating with consumers. As technology grows more advanced, and more people move away from life on the farm, consumers often have a limited understanding about food and agriculture.

The industry has to reach out and educate more people on what we do to provide them with an abundant supply of wholesome food, consistently and affordably.

We must continue to safeguard and protect the environment. Because our natural resources are so important to our well-being, we have to be ever more vigilant about using new technology responsibly and wisely.

And the industry must continue to develop new ideas, concepts and technological advancements so it can provide quality products at affordable prices to consumers every day.

We have to make certain that our food supply keeps growing better every day. We can't fall prey to outdated methods. We must continue the American tradition of innovation and cutting edge technology.

A host of activities will take place across the country, including mall displays, educational programs, luncheons and jobs exchanges.

The hard work and dedication of Pennsylvania's 52,000 farm families continue to keep agriculture the number one industry of the Commonwealth. Keystone farmers and agribusinesses are the leading agricultural producers in the northeastern United States.

Cash income from farm marketing during 1991 totaled $3.49 billion, down seven percent from the previous year because of a serious drought. Another 38 billion dollars in economic activity is generated annually by Pennsylvania agriculture.

Dairy production is the leading segment of our agricultural industry. Cash receipts from all marketings of Pennsylvania milk in 1990 totaled $1.44 billion, up three percent from the previous year.

The combined value of Pennsylvania's poultry production from broilers, eggs and turkeys in 1991 was $465 million.

Cash receipts in 1991 from the sale of livestock and livestock products totaled $2.48 billion, however, this figure includes poultry and milk receipts. Actual cash receipts from the sale of meat animals and miscellaneous livestock totaled $702 million, making it the third leading segment of the industry.

The wholesale value of sales by commercial flower and foliage producers in Pennsylvania during 1991 totaled $100 million.

The cash receipts of all crops sold in Pennsylvania during 1990 totaled $1.05 billion.

Agricultural exports from Pennsylvania were valued at $347 million during the last federal fiscal year, up to 10.5 percent from the previous year. This figure includes all crops, livestock, food and tobacco.

Pennsylvania only ranks 37th nationally in farmland with 8 million acres, and 17th in the number of farms. But as the following statistics indicate, our farm families are some of the most productive in the country:

PSU Opens Rural Development Center

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — To address the many challengers rural communities face, the Center for Economic and Community Development has been established in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Rural development has been and continues to be a priority for the college," said Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean of the college. "This career will help our faculty coordinate and expand their rural development efforts."

Nearly a third of Pennsylvania's population lives in municipalities with less than 2,500 residents. These towns often have a good quality of life and low cost of living, but often are too small to support specialized businesses or essential public services such as schools, sewage and water systems.

Rural residents are more likely to be poor than urban citizens. Maintaining economic activity can be difficult, leading rural America's best and brightest young people to seek their fortune elsewhere.

A quarter of rural children live in poverty, while the infant mortality rate in the poorest counties is nearly twice the national average.

"Penn State has a large number of scientists and educators concerned with the issues affecting rural areas," said Dr. Stephen Smith, the center's director and associate professor of agricultural economics. "The center currently has more than 20 members, all of whom have studied rural issues extensively."

The center's goals include developing effective research, extension and education programs in rural development; providing an easy way for interested people to communicate with rural development faculty; and fostering collaboration among faculty members and others involved in rural issues.

In April, the center will begin publishing "Economic and Community Development News," a quarterly newsletter for extension agents, state legislators, local government and business leaders, faculty at other institutions and others interested in rural issues.

The center also is sponsoring a series of seminars on rural issues. Speakers will include both Penn State faculty and rural development experts from outside the university.

"Our faculty have expertise in a wide range of rural issues," Smith said. "These include land use planning and regulation, water quality management, farmland preservation, health care, job creation, community planning, child care and family management."

Research being conducted by faculty in the center includes studies of the economic and social transformation of rural communities, rural service industries, consumer information and decision making, rural farm and nonfarm labor markets, community action and economic development, home-based businesses, rural health and poverty, industry location analysis, water resource policy, part-time farming and child care.

The center also seeks outstanding candidates from all academic backgrounds who wish to pursue graduate study in economic and community development, emphasizing either economic or sociological aspects.

For more information about the Center for Economic and Community Development or to subscribe to "Economic and Community Development News," contact Dr. Stephen Smith, The Pennsylvania State University, 112 Armsby Building, University Park, PA 16802-5600, or call (814) 863-8245.

Chester Receives More Than $3.1 Million To Save Farmland

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Earlier this year, the Chester County Board of Commissioners set aside $900,000 in open space monies as the county's match for the state-sponsored Agricultural Conservation Easement Program. The Commissioners announced that this money yielded more than $3.1 million in state funding.

The Agricultural Conservation Easement Program is a state program that provides matching funds to counties for farmland preservation. With today's announcement, Chester County will have more than $4 million to use for the purchase of easements on farmland in 1993.

Commissioner Karen L. Martynick said the state's appropriation is impressive as it represents nearly 10 percent of the $32 million available statewide for participating counties.

"Chester County, in each round of the program, has consistently captured one of the largest awards from the state. This reflects both the importance of agriculture in Chester County and the high level of commitment we have made to agricultural preservation," Martynick said.

She said, "Recently this board affirmed its commitment to furthering the goals of the open space program by dedicating an additional $20 million for our open space and related efforts. Through this program we are preserving farmland. At the same time, we are strengthening the county's agricultural economy and we are saving open space."

Chester County has participated in the state-county program since 1989. Together with the county farmland preservation program implemented as part of the Chester County Open Space Plan, easements have been purchased on 15 farms, totaling close to 1,600 acres. Action is pending on an additional 18 farms, totaling more than 1,800 acres. And appraisals are currently being conducted on another 18 farms, totaling approximately 1,500 acres.

The 1993 funding brings the County's overall funding contribution supporting both programs to $3.8 million, and the state's overall contribution to $11 million.

NEUEP Forms New Association

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Northeast United Egg Producers (NEUEP) announced that it will be starting a new egg industry organization.

The new association is being formed to gain the flexibility to employ egg promotion methods not feasible under UEP.

"Changing industry conditions have created a need for us to expand our activities beyond those traditionally engaged in by cooperatives," said NEUEP Chairman Andy Wadsworth.

The new organization will work with egg processors, further processors, and allied industries in a united effort to increase demand for eggs and egg products. By working in alliance with these groups, the association will expand its ability to affect the position of eggs in the marketplace.

Both groups emphasize that they may rejoin in the future if industry and governmental conditions allow.

The new association will continue to operate from NEUEP's offices at 808 17th Street, N.W. #200, Washington, DC 20006.

Gospel Concert Set

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — A Gospel Concert will be held Saturday, March 27, at 7:30 p.m. at Pequea Valley High School east of Intercourse on Rt. 772.

The concert is sponsored by Intercourse Lions Club, featuring The Royal Sounds and The Martin Family.

Admission is $5 and Children under 12 are free.

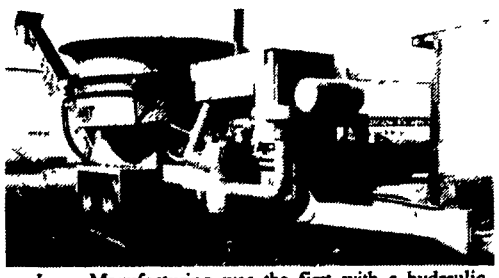
JONES MANUFACTURING CO. Mighty GIANT
P.O Box 36 • Beemer, NE 68716 •
Phone (402) 528-3861 • FAX (402) 528-3239



Jones Manufacturing was the first with a hydraulic-opening tub, the first with an electronic governor and the first with a Hydra-fork. From the single 14" discharge auger, to the rubber lagged, top-drive elevator with our exclusive Jones-Ridge Belt, no other grinder in the world has the features, capacity, and durability of the Jones Mighty Giant..

With several of our first units manufactured in the early 1960's still in use today, there's no question Jones Manufacturing's Mighty Giant is the best value for your money, and the only grinder for your operation!

Mighty GIANT Tub Grinders:

- ✔ Highest available production capacity
- ✔ Low maintenance costs
- ✔ Most efficient size for portable and stationary use.
- ✔ Self-contained, portable hydrafork and PTO models also available

Degelman

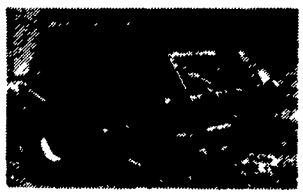
SEE BINKLEY & HURST TODAY FOR HEAVY DUTY QUALITY ROCK PICKERS AND ROCK RAKES!

BY REMOVING ROCKS YOU SAVE YOUR FARM EQUIPMENT AND LOWER YOUR REPAIR COSTS!

Degelman

ROCK PICKERS

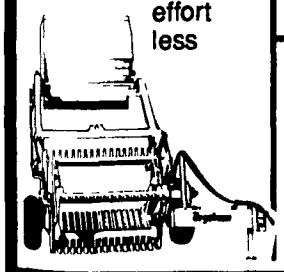
NEW



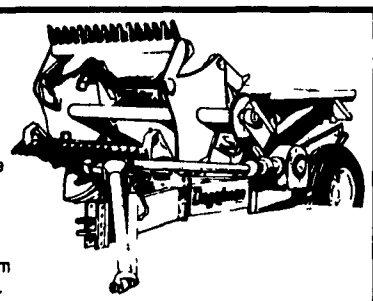
We are pleased to introduce the new SIGNATURE 6000 hydraulic and PTO drive stone picker from Degelman. If your land contains stones from the size of softballs to 55 gal. drums, you need this unit on your farm. Diggers available for removal of large rocks.

ROCK PICKERS

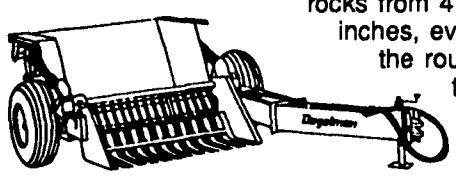
Hi-Lift
The Hi-Lift makes field piling and the removal of rocks by truck simple and effort less



Semi-Hi
A hardworking reel type picker ideal for field piling. Picks gravel-size stones to boulders in continuous picking action, then dumps them conveniently and easily.

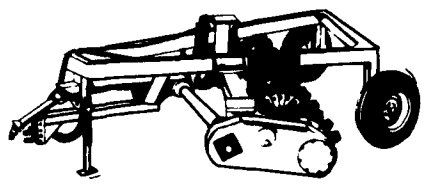


Prong Type
Man handles rocks from 4 to 36 inches, even on the roughest terrain



ROCK RAKE

The Degelman Rock Rake is designed to windrow small to medium sized rocks and other ground debris for easy picking. Rock-free fields mean less down-time, greater profits.



TIME IS MONEY

and when your equipment is down, it costs you plenty.

That's why Dengelman engineered farm implements are a wise investment.

StrongBox™ The battery with a LIFETIME trade-in allowance

Built for the long haul, StrongBox batteries take all the punishment your heavy equipment can deliver. Epoxy-anchored elements, through-the partition welds, and extra-heavy plates are just a few of their rugged features. And StrongBox batteries give you an excellent warranty plus a guaranteed lifetime trade-in allowance. Time to change your battery? Change to a StrongBox. All prices quoted include your old battery in exchange.

NEW 6000 SERIES TRACTORS...

NEW 600 SERIES LOADERS... GREAT NEWS

Your hydraulic power needs vary from one loader job to the next. So we built a new hydraulic system for new 6000 Series Tractors that varies pressure and flow to match your demand. If you need a big flow of oil, you'll get it .. the 16 gpm main pump provides maximum pressure up to 2900 psi. You get exactly the response you need, fed to the fastest cycling, most productive new loaders we've ever built.

Come see us for more details.

MAKING AGRICULTURE BETTER WITH PLASTIC

- Written guarantee against U.V. inhibitor breakdown.
- Tested Worldwide in all climates
- No windrowing
- .001 gauge
- Accurate length and weight per roll
- High density water resistant core.
- Tear resistant
- Exceptional strength, memory and tack migration
- Low density blown film
- Well packaged for roll protection
- Reflects the sun and eliminates "cooking"
- Availabe in 20" and 30" rolls
- Sunfilm has 14-15% UV inhibitor (twice as much as other brands)
- Sunflim has greater stretch characteristics (50-75% stretch)
- Sunfilm is the leader in silage wrap
- Bales wrapped in test plot for 2 years are still good

New M-F 100-140 hp tractors

Advanced QUADRAM Power makes a difference you can hear and feel.

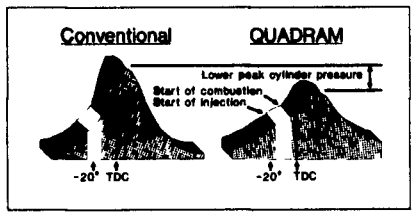
Massey-Ferguson is setting the standards for the 90s with three new 100 to 140 hp high-performance tractors that deliver improved engine torque characteristics and fuel efficiency with lower noise levels and lower engine stress.

Revolutionary new engines

The key to quick, smooth, efficient combustion is complete air and fuel mixing.

The Quadram cylinders produce an intense swirl of air for quick and thorough mixing of the fuel and air after injection. As a result, injection can be delayed closer to top-dead-center (TDC).

A unique 4-lobed (QUAD) bowl on the crown of the piston maximizes the amount of air swirl in the combustion chamber.



Lower peak cylinder pressures and stresses result when less combustion takes place prior to TDC.

Perkins 1000 Series engines have a very small amount of combustion taking place prior to TDC. As a result, the engines are more efficient and powerful, with much lower noise and vibration.

You'll notice the Quadram difference right away. The engine runs smoother and quieter — up to 50% quieter than competitive engines.

But the only way you can really appreciate the M-F Quadram advantage is to actually see and hear the tractors perform. So even if you aren't currently in the market for a tractor of this size, you owe it to yourself to see the latest in agricultural engine technology.

WHEN PLANNING YOUR FORAGE PROGRAMS, REMEMBER THAT YOUR MAIN OBJECTIVE IS TO STORE THE PLANT AND REMOVE IT FROM STORAGE IN AS GOOD CONDITIKON AS POSSIBLE. THE UPRIGHT SILO HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED IN ITS ABILITY TO DO THIS.

ON MOST DAIRY FARMS, FORAGE QUALITY IS THE SINGLE MOST IMPORTANT FACTOR RELATING TO PROFIT.

"NOBODY PROTECTS FORAGE QUALITY LIKE WE DO...NOBODY!"

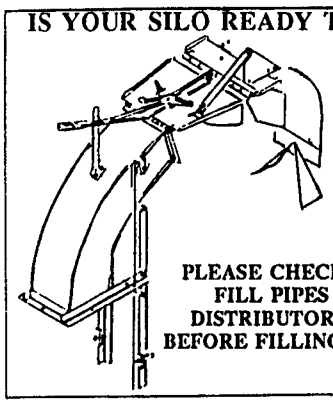
S & S SILO SERVICE

ATTENTION FARMERS
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Super All Traction 23°

R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

Tend-R-Leen: A Profitable Way To Feed Beef Cattle.

The Tend-R-Leen program is simple and convenient with no complicated formulas. Cattle eat only whole shelled corn, supplemented with the Tend-R-Leen formula and mineral.

The Tend-R-Leen program eliminates roughage feeding, expensive storage and processing. There is no grinding; less equipment and labor are needed. And there's up to 50% less manure produced.

The Tend-R-Leen program gets animals to market weight in 12 months or less.

Program Helps Fruit Growers Manage Frost

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A single frost can devastate fruit crops, inflicting damage that takes years to correct. Soon a computerized expert system being developed in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences may make it easier for growers to protect their orchards from frost damage.

"In one season, growers can lose hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of fruit to frost damage," said Dr. Paul Heinemann, assistant professor of agricultural and biological engineering. "Yet even as scientists demonstrate that frost protection systems pay for themselves in reduced crop loss, growers remain reluctant to install them. Many fear that the cost is too expensive or that managing such a system would be too time-consuming."

Heinemann hopes that one of his research projects—a computer program that makes frost protection decisions easier, reducing management time and effort—will increase growers' acceptance of crop-saving frost protection systems.

When completed, the Frost Protection Decision Support Program will allow vegetable crop managers to use a personal computer for planning, implementing, and managing a frost protection system. The program, which is expected to be available in 1994, also should be helpful to cooperative extension personnel and consultants.

"The program has four main components," said Heinemann, "frost protection strategies, operational management, forecasting, and instrumentation." The first module, frost protection strategies, summarizes frost protection methods and compares them economically. "This part of the system also includes information on risk partitioning, site selection, heating design, sprinkling, wind machines, and cover systems."

The operational management component guides the crop manager during a frost night. "A grower could use this part of the program to determine sprinkler rates for under-and over-tree irrigation, heater requirements, and the effectiveness of wind machines," Heineman said.

The forecasting section of the program includes long-term tools for determining "frost windows," periods when a particular area is susceptible to frost. "It also features short-term tools to show how far temperatures will drop during a particular night and how long the cold may last.

"The fourth component, instrumentation, shows the grower how to locate sensors in the field and what types of sensors to use," Heinemann said.

The frost program will be available in both Macintosh and IBM PC versions. Other fruit management expert systems that have already been or are being developed at Penn State include the Penn State Apple Orchard Consultant, PeachES, and VITIS.

For more information, contact Paul Heinemann at The Pennsylvania State University, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-7685.

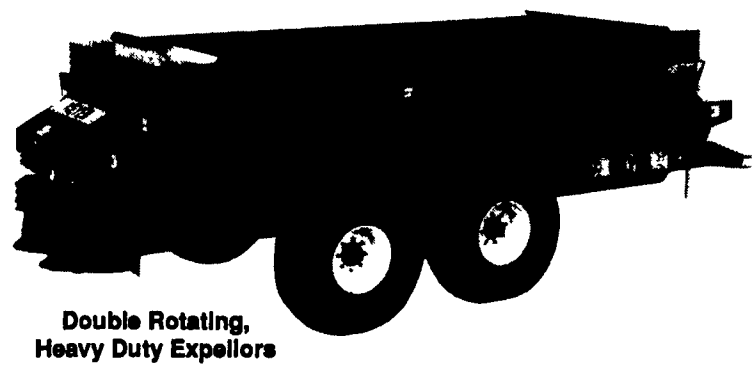
Super Spreader



Double Rotating, Heavy Duty Expellors

Meyer Mfg. Corp. has developed a new style of manure spreader that can handle a wide variety of manure. The double expellor system rips away tough pen or frozen manure and applies it to the field in a smooth, even pattern. The new Meyer unit unloads out the rear, not the side, to prevent debri from coming back to the spreader and tractor. The Super Spreader is available in 260 bu., 325 bu., 360 bu., 390 bu., 450 bu., and 540 bu. units.

Two Large 20" Augers Help Prevent Bridging Problems

Our tank sides are almost straight up & down, not V shaped like other units. The augers are made of tough 3/8" sectional steel flighting. Our auger design cleans the bottom of the tank completely — no frozen manure buildup like beater type spreaders have.

Meyer Mfg. Corp. has developed a new style of forage box that can unload at a much faster rate of speed. This is accomplished thru a low range-high range variable speed system. Apron speeds range from 0-7.5' per minute in low range and 0-17' per minute in high range. The Meyer TSS also allows the operator to inch the augers free of material before engaging the apron chain. This box is available in the All Steel TSS or the TSS AL Aluminized model.

LAND PRIDE

15' ROTARY CUTTER

Land Pride 15' Rotary Cutter offers rugged dependability

Starting with a 10-gauge deck for the center section and wings, we've added effective reinforcement channels to each section for superior strength. With a mowing height ranging from 2" to 14", it can also handle material up to two inches thick. With two self-leveling rods from front to rear, mowing height can easily be maintained, as well as deck-flexing being held to a minimum.

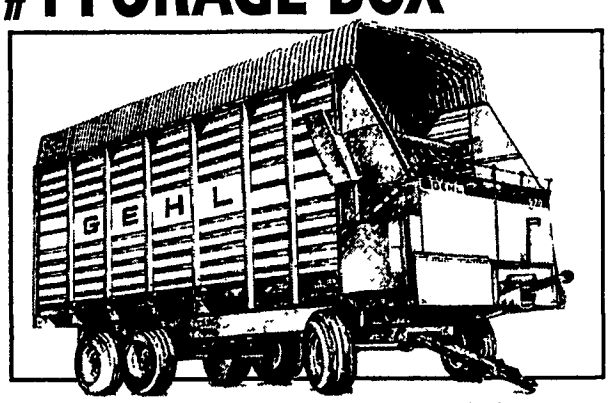
GEHL

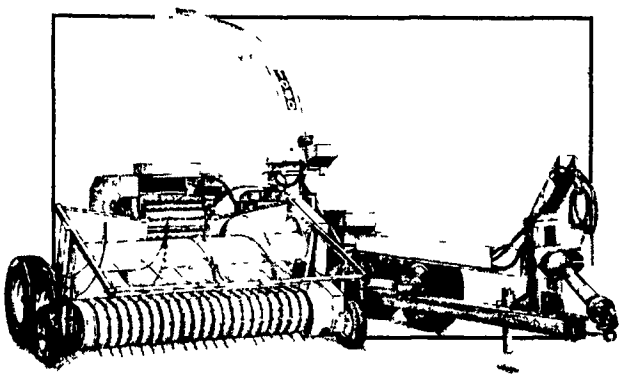
NORTH AMERICA'S #1 FORAGE BOX



Gehl makes the best-selling forage box in North America Here's why:

- Five sizes deliver the capacity to match your forage harvesting operation
- 10-Year Warranty against rust-through on sides, endgate, stakes and roof.
- Wide 23-1/2 inch cross conveyor extends nine inches beyond the box side, for easy positioning to the blower.
- Even-Feed third beater has extended tines to break up clumps for smooth crop delivery to the cross conveyor.
- Four-speed drive system features #50 roller chain for added durability
- Heavy-duty Gehl running gears match the capacity of Gehl forage boxes.

CHOP IT DOWN



Gehl forage harvesters get the job done faster with these performance features

- Exclusive Auto-Max Load-Sensing System – Increase capacity by up to 20%. Lets you operate at top capacity without the fear of downtime due to overloading.
- Metal-Stop Metal Detector – Prevents machine damage and hardware disease.
- In-head Hydraulic Knife Sharpener – Lets you sharpen knives in the field.
- Patented One-Sided Cutterbar Adjustment – Makes adjusting the cutterbar quick and easy.
- Three Models To Choose From – Including the largest capacity pull-type forage harvester on the market.

REAL ESTATE AUCTION

TWO PARCELS!

109 A. FARM W/COMPLETE SET OF BUILDINGS + A MODERN BRICK HOME, TO SETTLE THE ESTATE OF THE LATE GLADYS B. BACON

SAT., APRIL 10, 1993

10:00 A.M.

On the premises on Lucky Road, R.D. #1, Brogue, York County, PA 17309. R.D. #1, Brogue, PA (York County) Rt. I-83 to PA Exit 6 at York. Rt. 74 south through Red Lion and continue 8 mi. to Brogue Post Office. Turn left onto Lucky Rd. and go ½ mi. to auction site on left. From southern Lancaster County, cross Norman Wood Bridge. North on Rt. 74 to Brogue. Right on Lucky Rd. and ½ mi. to farm on left.

PARCEL 1. A large farm of 109 acres m/l, in a high state of cultivation. Approx. 80 acres are tillable and situated nearly level, just rolling enough to provide proper drainage. There are approximately 25 acres of woodland, and the balance of the land is around the buildings.

The dwelling is a 2½ story frame home with asbestos siding. Large spacious living quarters of approx. 2300 sq. ft. Lg. cat-in kitchen, living room, parlor, one bedroom and half-bath on first floor. 3 bedrooms and bath on second floor. Large attic and basement.

Outbuildings consist of a large 30x74 barn, 32x52 potato storage w/climate control, 22x50 corn barn, 16x38 hog pen, three-car garage, and other buildings.

There are 6 building rights with the farm. One building right stays with the present set of buildings, allowing for potential sub-division of 5 building lots.

PARCEL 2. A level lot of land of 9/10+ acre, which adjoins PARCEL 1. Improved with a 1½ story brick dwelling of approx. 3700 sq. ft., and approx. 30 years old. This gorgeous home has a large modern eat-in kitchen, large living room with corner stone fireplace, large dining room, three bedrooms and two baths, panelled office and a laundry room on first floor. Hardwood floors in most rooms. The second floor has large sitting room, bedroom and bath. The full basement consists of one-third family room with brick fireplace, one third summer kitchen and the rest is a large cold cellar. Attached two-car garage.

INSPECTION: Tours of the land and inspection of the building will be given at Open House to be held on Sunday, March 14, 21 & 28 from 1:00 to 4:00 P.M.

TERMS: A non-refundable down-payment of 10% of the gavel price is required on day of auction in cash or check with bank letter specifying this auction on this date. Balance due in full on-or before June 10, 1993.

PUBLIC AUCTION

112.8 ACRE YORK COUNTY FARM

SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1993

At 12:00 Noon

Located just south of Red Lion in North Hopewell Township, York County, Pa.

Directions: From Red Lion follow Rt. 24 to Pleasant View Rd. T.L. Property on the left watch for signs.

Here is an excellent opportunity to purchase a historic farm that has 80 tillable acres that are gently rolling, in full cultivation with good conservation practices. A quiet valley has open land with a spring fed stream. (Good for pasture land) some woodland. This farm has not had animals for years but would be a great place for animals of any type.

Historical Note!

This home is in need of work but this huge structure sits by the stream and was known as the Sechrist Mill. It operated through the 1800s by water power grinding grains for local residents. The water wheel is no longer there but the basic structure is the same. In approximately 1900 it was converted to a residence and the water wheel ceased operating. The barn is a large structure in average condition with many possibilities. New roof last year. (nice barn) Another Historic Note: Neighbors say that years ago gold found on the farm prompted a mining attempt. Mining costs outweighed profits it is told and now the area is farmed over. Owners & auctioneers make no warranties to such claims and are printed for historical interest only.

If you are interested in a good agricultural farm, historical site or just a good sound investment of over 100 acres here is your opportunity. Call for details.

10% down day of auction, balance in 60 days.

Mr. & Mrs. Charles Moore, Penny & Roland Moore

Comments From Charlie And Roland Moore:

"Since changing to Ultimate EXT the cows are holding their weight and milking very well. When they were on beans they were grossly thin. We're happy because the program is working. Our fat is low, but we haven't been breeding for fat for the last 5 years. Only 10-15% of the herd is registered, but most others are fourth generation and are ID'd"

The feeding program consists of corn silage, alfalfa haylage, ryelage, HM shelled corn, NA 40D plus, and Ultimate EXT 32%.
